Cosmopolitan Power in International Relations Giulio M. Gallarotti, 2010-09-27 How can nations optimize their power in the modern world system Realist theory has underscored the importance of hard power as the ultimate path to national strength In this vision nations require the muscle and strategies to compel compliance and achieve their full power potential But in fact changes in world politics have increasingly encouraged national leaders to complement traditional power resources with more enlightened strategies oriented around the use of soft power resources The resources to compel compliance have to be increasingly integrated with the resources to cultivate compliance Only through this integration of hard and soft power can nations truly achieve their greatest strength in modern world politics and this realization carries important implications for competing paradigms of international relations The idea of power optimization can only be delivered through the integration of the three leading paradigms of international relations Realism Neoliberalism and Constructivism

The Power of Legitimacy Christopher Gelpi, 2010-01-10 A major departure from mainstream security studies this book mounts a thoughtful challenge to realist theories of crisis bargaining It tests the proposition that normative standards of behavior influence state actions in security related conflicts Specifically it examines the construction of bilateral norms as the settlements of security related disputes and the effects these settlements have on subsequent interactions over the same issue Drawing on institutionalist arguments about the informational impact of norms Christopher Gelpi contends that norms act as signals that give meaning to other states behavior in at least two important ways First they provide a mutually acceptable focal point for limiting both demands and concessions Second security norms change the context in which coercive behavior is interpreted That is norms can cause coercive behavior to be interpreted as punishment rather than aggression Gelpi tests this argument against its most prominent competitor a realist model of crisis bargaining in three stages First he uses a probit analysis to perform a quantitative test on the population of 122 reinitiated international crises between 1929 and 1979 Second he conducts detailed case studies of the Cienfuegos Submarine Conflict and the Six Day War Finally he conducts a second statistical analysis examining the conditions under which security norms will succeed or fail While hypotheses derived from realist coercion theory receive only mixed support Gelpi finds strong evidence that states can and do construct normative standards that guide their behavior in international crises

The Urban Sublime in American Literary Naturalism Christophe Den Tandt, 1998 In this dynamic reappraisal of American literary naturalism Christophe Den Tandt connects late nineteenth century fiction to its romantic urban gothic roots and to recent discussions of the sublime in postmodern theory Den Tandt focuses on aspects of naturalist novels their use of hyperbole and hysteria of the grotesque and the abject of uncanniness and mesmerism that have often been left in the periphery of naturalist discourse He argues that realistic strategies of literary representation can never succeed in depicting the urban environment since the logic of the city rests on a network of hidden relations Naturalist texts try to resolve this dilemma by opposing sublime components and realistic documentary elements

Physics, Structure, and Reality Jill North, 2021 Jill North offers answers to questions at the heart of the project of interpreting physics How do we figure out the nature of the world from a mathematically formulated theory What do we infer about the world when a physical theory can be mathematically formulated in different ways The notion of structure is crucial to North's answers

A Female Poetics of Empire Julia Kuehn, 2013-10-30 Many well known male writers produced fictions about colonial spaces and discussed the advantages of realism over romance and vice versa in the art of fiction debate of the 1880s but how did female writers contribute to colonial fiction This volume links fictional non fictional and pictorial representations of a colonial otherness with the late nineteenth century artistic concerns about representational conventions and possibilities The author explores these texts and images through the postcolonial framework of exoticism arguing that the epistemological dilemma of a self encountering an other results in the interrelated predicament to find poetic modalities mimetic realistic and documentary on the one hand romantic fantastic and picturesque on the other that befit an exotic representation Thus women writers did not only participate in the making of colonial fictions but also in the late nineteenth century artistic debate about the nature of fiction This book maps the epistemological concerns of exoticism and of difference self and other home and away familiarity and strangeness onto the representational modes of realism and romance The author focuses exclusively on female novelists travel writers and painters of the turn of the century exotic and especially on neglected authors of academically under researched genres such as the bestselling novel and the travelogue
