Northwestern California Sean O'Neill,2008 Examines the linguistic relativity principle in relation to the Hupa Yurok and Karuk Indians Despite centuries of intertribal contact the American Indian peoples of northwestern California have continued to speak a variety of distinct languages At the same time they have come to embrace a common way of life based on salmon fishing and shared religious practices In this thought provoking re examination of the hypothesis of linguistic relativity Sean O'Neill looks closely at the Hupa Yurok and Karuk peoples to explore the striking juxtaposition between linguistic diversity and relative cultural uniformity among their communities O'Neill examines intertribal contact multilingualism storytelling and historical change among the three tribes focusing on the traditional culture of the region as it existed during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries He asks important historical questions at the heart of the linguistic relativity hypothesis Have the languages in fact grown more similar as a result of contact multilingualism and cultural convergence Or have they instead maintained some of their striking grammatical and semantic differences Through comparison of the three languages O Neill shows that long term contact among the tribes intensified their linguistic differences creating unique Hupa Yurok and Karuk identities If language encapsulates worldview as the principle of linguistic relativity suggests then this region s linguistic diversity is puzzling Analyzing patterns of linguistic accommodation as seen in the semantics of space and time grammatical classification and specialized cultural vocabularies O Neill resolves the apparent paradox by assessing long term effects of contact

The Lost Universe Gene Weltfish, 1977-01-01 A fascinating insight into the life and culture of the Pawnee people is achieved here by the author s presentation of carefully gathered information in the form of a narrative of one year in Pawnee village The first few chapters lay the groundwork of kinship lines followed by a narration of the life of one person in the village Customs ceremonies beliefs and hard work become apparent as the author leads one through the intricacies of the activities Although it presents a great deal of detailed anthropological material the manner of presentation turns the book into a readable account The book is based on years of first hand study as well as scholarly research and is recommended as an in depth study of Plains Indian life Reprint Bulletin Book Reviews Gene Weltfish is coauthor with Ruth Benedict of The Races of Mankind She is also the author of The Origins of Art and other books
