Rebirth Of The Older Child:

The Rebirth of the Older Child Brita Bergland, 1993-01-01 Bringing Whales Ashore Jakobina K. Arch, 2018-04-01

Japan today defends its controversial whaling expeditions by invoking tradition but what was the historical reality In examining the techniques and impacts of whaling during the Tokugawa period 1603 1868 Jakobina Arch shows that the organized shore based whaling that first developed during these years bore little resemblance to modern Japanese whaling Drawing on a wide range of sources from whaling ledgers to recipe books and gravestones for fetal whales she traces how the images of whales and by products of commercial whaling were woven into the lives of people throughout Japan Economically Pacific Ocean resources were central in supporting the expanding Tokugawa state In this vivid and nuanced study of how the Japanese people brought whales ashore during the Tokugawa period Arch makes important contributions to both environmental and Japanese history by connecting Japanese whaling to marine environmental history in the Pacific including the devastating impact of American whaling in the nineteenth century

Citizenship in Contemporary Societies Brian Milne, 2013-04-15 This book examines the notion of children having full citizenship. It does so historically through intellectual discourse, beliefs, and moral and ideological positions on children. It looks at the status and extent of knowledge of the position of children covering about 2500 years. The book takes European and other cultures, traditions, and beliefs into consideration. It reflects on the topic from a variety of disciplines including social sciences, theology, and philosophy. The book places children's citizenship in the centre of children's rights discourse. Part of the work is a critical appraisal of children's participation because it diverts attention away from children as members of society toward being a separable group. The book moves on from child participation using a children's rights based argument toward examination of the relationship of the child with the state, i.e. as potentially full member citizens.

Matricide in Language Miglena Nikolchina, 2020-10-06 The nexus of psychoanalytic literary and philosophical approaches in this book focuses on an intertextual reading of Woolf and Kristeva in order to address the enigma of the persistent suppression of women's contributions to culture. In spite of the efforts of feminist theory and history to turn the tide, this process is with us still. I am the first of a new genus. Mary Wollstonecraft: When I looked around I saw and heard of none like me. Mary Shelley: I look everywhere for grandmothers and find none. Elizabeth Barrett Browning: Why isn't there a tradition of the mothers? Virginia Woolf: Women have no past, no history. Simone de Beauvoir: I look for myself throughout the centuries and I don't see myself anywhere. Helene Cixous: As Woolf noted, strange spaces of silence separate the solitary female utterances throughout history. The brutal vicissitudes of the contemporary reception of feminist thinkers, crushed between traditional academia and an anti-intellectualism that describes itself as activism, are symptoms of the fact that the conditions which produced the strange spaces of silence and made the repetitive generic loneliness from Wollstonecraft to Cixous possible are still operative. They have found their way into the present age as reactionary conformity that manages to discredit any notion of feminine specificity or freedom that is not based on seduction, which means not based on reproduction and consumption. Kristeva: The intertextual approach to Kristeva and Woolf brings to light matricide as the silent engine behind the stammering of female temporality. Matricide is offered as an entrance to the conceptualization of the cultural ramifications of a language that wavers between hypnotic passion and murder. As Joan Scott has demonstrated, the oscillations between fantasies of uniqueness and fantasies of fusion are characteristic of women's movements. Matricide in Language claims that these fantasies are subtended by imaginary matricide and that they can explain the extreme discursive practices that are characteristic of the debate in and around feminism.

Buddha in Sri Lanka Swarna Wickremaratne, 2012-02-01 This book provides both an erudite and intimate look at how Buddhism is lived in Sri Lanka. While India is known as the birthplace of Buddhism, Sri Lanka is its other home. Buddhism extends back over twenty-five hundred years on the island and remains at the center of its spiritual traditions and culture. Throughout the book, author Swarna Wickremaratne incorporates a personal view, sharing stories of herself, her family, friends, and acquaintances as they lived.

Buddhism both during her Sri Lankan girlhood and during more recent times This personal view makes the traditions come alive as Wickremaratne details Buddhist beliefs customs rituals and ceremonies and folklore She also provides a fascinating discussion of the Sangha the institutional monkhood in Sri Lanka including its history codes of conduct and evolution and resilience over time Wickremaratne explores the recent attempts by many monks to reinvent themselves in a society characterized by secularization globalization and a tide of aggressive Christian evangelization The Power & Intelligence of Karma & Reincarnation Dharma,2014-04 In the distant past life was pretty harsh most work was manual labor medicine was primitive and there was little law order the perfect opening to religions that promised an easy afterlife Life was mocked as sin up there awaited a magical land of plenty These religions kept us weak God made in the image of the local King reduced followers down to slaves servants down on their knees begging for mercy and seeking pity This book asks for a paradigm change are we still weak Do we still think we can just run away from problems This book is for the Strong the Warrior for those who see Life as a Great Gift from God God as our Teacher as we build the paradise right here on Earth and make Her Proud of us Create build a great Future for all life on earth Only Reincarnation gives us such an opportunity
