to resolve this crisis in counting Drawing on a wealth of official institutional and private sources culled from China India and the United States the author explores the choices made and the effects they engendered through a series of vivid encounters with political leaders professional statisticians academics ordinary statistical workers and even literary figures Early reliance on Soviet inspired methods of enumeration became increasingly untenable in China by the middle of the 1950s A series of unprecedented and unexpected exchanges with Indian statisticians followed as the Chinese sought to learn about the then exciting new technology of random sampling These developments were in turn overtaken by the tumult of the Great Leap Forward 1958 1961 when both probabilistic and exhaustive methods were rejected and statistics was refashioned into an essentially ethnographic enterprise The author argues that this history usually narrowly described as a universal if European history cannot be understood without acknowledging Soviet and Indian influences which not only revises existing models of Cold War science but also globalizes the wider developments in the history of statistics and data For historians of China and social science and political scientists sociologists and anthropologists studying modern China

Wartime Culture in Guilin, 1938-1944 Pingchao Zhu, 2015-10-30 This book examines the development of wartime culture in the city of Guilin Guangxi Province in southwestern China during a major part of the country's war of resistance against Japanese invasion between 1938 and 1944 This study challenges existing historiography on China's wartime culture at three levels First the Guangxi warlord group played a crucial role in maintaining regional security providing a liberalized political environment for wartime cultural activities and facilitating wartime nationalist communist relations at both local and national levels Second wartime culture was more literary than political and it reflected a powerful intellectual vigor that was an indispensable component of China's war efforts Intellectuals of different social and political backgrounds were their own organic selves feeling no pressure to come to intellectual consensus in literary production Third wartime culture was characterized by the active participation of many international groups political organizations and foreign individuals The literary works produced in Guilin between 1938 and 1944 clearly reflected a combination of Chinese national and international anti fascist and anti military sentiment Chinese literary masterpieces were translated into different foreign languages and noted foreign literature and political works were introduced to Chinese audiences through various cultural and political exchange programs in the city
