Single-phase grounding line selection method for closed-loop distribution network adapted to medium voltage microgrid access Qinghui Lu,Xiang-Gen Yin,Jian Qiao,Zhichang Liu,Lingjin Zhu,Xin Yin,2023-09-16 Aim The access of the medium voltage MV microgrid changes the radial structure of traditional distribution networks causing the distribution network to operate in a closed loop manner The closed loop operation complicates the fault characteristics of the distribution network and the traditional single phase grounding SPG line selection method is no longer applicable Therefore it is necessary to propose a new targeted SPG line selection method Methods This paper analyzes the network structure of MV microgrids and MV distribution networks and establishes a multi level closed loop operation distribution network model with MV microgrid access Then the SPG fault characteristics of the closed loop operation distribution system under the small current grounding mode are analyzed from the perspective of two level bus nodes Furthermore based on the analysis of fault characteristics a closed loop operation distribution network line selection method suitable for microgrid access is proposed and a detailed design is carried out in terms of equipment configuration and communication schemes forming a relatively complete automatic line selection system At the same time the proposed line selection scheme is based on the two level bus nodes which can be analogously applied to the multi level closed loop operation distribution network Results The simulation results show that the proposed line selection scheme can be effectively applied to the closed loop operation distribution network with MV microgrid access Conclusion The traditional SPG line selection method will have misjudgment problems after the MV microgrid is integrated into the distribution network but the line selection method proposed in this paper has good adaptability

Rivering Daphne Marlatt,2014-04-23 Opening doors dreaming awake tracing networks of music and meaning Marlatt s poetry stands out as an essential engagement with what matters to anyone writing with a social environmental conscience Rivering includes poems inspired by the village of Steveston where before the war a Japanese Canadian community lived within the rhythms of salmon on the Fraser River delta Also gathered into Rivering lesbian love poetry from Touch to my Tongue a transformance of Nicole Brossard s Mauve passages from The Given winner of the 2009 Dorothy Livesay Poetry Prize a traditional Kuri song from the Noh drama The Gull and an unpublished excerpt from the chamber opera Shadow Catch Difficult beautiful heart breaking realities of the twenty first century are urgently immediate in selections from Liquidities Vancouver Poems Then and Now All of the poems speak to Marlatt's poetics of place and of language as passage between distant or disparate human beings and between human beings and the more than human world The selections are framed by Susan Knutson's deeply attentive critical introduction and by Marlatt's immediacies of writing a new lyrical essay investigating the act of writing Closing with a walking meditation situated by her Buddhist practice Rivering is both a pocket Marlatt and an introduction to one of the best poets of our time Poets Talk Pauline

Butling, Susan Rudy, 2005-01-15 This is a book that takes on the hard questions about the role of poets in society together with the challenges of reading difficult poetry Using the relaxed format of the personal interview Butling and Rudy open doors to some of the most challenging and important poetry of the 1990s Robert Kroetsch talks about his dread of systems and his subversive use of sub-literary forms Erin Mour and Daphne Marlatt discuss the feminist trajectories in their work how to jump circuits and activate alternative networks Dionne Brand links her poetics to Marxist politics and Pan African liberation movements Annharte explains her use of humour to de-program Native people Jeff Derksen wants to disarticulate and rearticulate linguistic and social systems while Fred Wah emphasizes the role of poetry in changing how we see the world

Fundamentals of Computer Networks Matthew N. O. Sadiku, Cajetan M. Akujuobi, 2022-08-29 This textbook presents computer networks to electrical and computer engineering students in a manner that is clearer more interesting and easier to understand than other texts All principles are presented in a lucid logical step by step manner As much as possible the authors avoid wordiness and giving too much detail that could hide concepts and impede overall understanding of the material Ten review questions in the form of multiple choice objective items are provided at the end of each chapter with answers The review questions are intended to cover the little tricks which the examples and end of chapter problems may not cover They serve as a self test device and help students determine how well they have mastered the chapter

Taken Daphne Marlatt, 1996 In this graceful haunting and evocative novel the Gulf War becomes a touch stone for Suzanne's meditation on her mother's life in World War II Taken is a tribute to women whose lives have been taken over or even taken by war In the end out of the wreckage of grief and power love and light however changed endure "Code of Massachusetts regulations, 2015", 2015 Archival snapshot of entire looseleaf Code of Massachusetts Regulations held by the Social Law Library of Massachusetts as of January 2020 Everyday Magic Laurie Ricou, 2011-11-01 Child language is a subject in which everyone is an expert All parents study their children's language carefully if undeliberately and every family has its precious memories of the unique verbal improvisations of childhood For writers who continually struggle with and revel in the mysteries of language the language of children holds a special attraction Everyday Magic looks at the way Canadian writers have written through as distinct from for or about children at the ways they have used child language and children's models of perception to achieve various literary effects It describes how texts might be shaped by child usage and speculates that adult artists often find themselves surprised and informed by the child language they seek to create Ricou examines how the distinctive features of child language described by psycholinguists intersect with the written languages used by writers to suggest not only a child language but also the way a child sees and organizes an understanding of the world. The book's subtitle putting the term child language into the plural points out that not one but many written interpretations of the child's perspectives are possible. In order to emphasize this plurality and indicate that there are any number of child languages, the author has organized his study as a series of closely related essays. Each chapter considers the work of a Canadian author or authors with the book as a whole moving from the more conventional writers to those who step outside the bounds of convention. Ricou proposes analogies with Wordsworth and Dylan Thomas, Proust and Dickens but he finds his principal subject in the inherent interest of, for example, the Piagetian scheme that W. O. Mitchell seems to adopt in Who Has Seen the Wind, the obsessions with similes in Ernest Buckler, the variations on the Bildungsroman in Margaret Laurence and Alice Munro, and the persistent experiments with presymbolic language in Bill Bissett. For these and other writers such as Clark Blaise, Emily Carr, Dennis Lee, Dorothy Livesay, P. K. Page, James Reaney, and Miriam Waddington, Ricou illuminates the particular literary languages appropriate to each author's subject. The result is a fascinating and unique approach to Canadian literature.

The Given Daphne Marlatt, 2014-05-06 Winner of the Dorothy Livesay Poetry Prize, Finalist for the Pat Lowther Memorial Award. You remember what it is, you remember the feel of home, that moment of coming into your body. So begins Daphne Marlatt's haunting and multi-layered long poem which reads with all the urgency and depth of a novel. Set in present day and 1950s Vancouver, The Given begins with the news of a mother's death, then opens up to become an intricate tapestry of lives as Marlatt deftly interweaves the past with the present, replicating the arc of memory itself while questing for and questioning the meaning of home and identity. Circling around the narrator's mother, theatrical, troubled, imprisoned in the small existence of a 1950s housewife and a persistent presence in the lives of others, The Given is a ceremony performed for her and for all those who have left, who go on burning in us. In luminous, deeply resonant fragments, Marlatt resoundingly answers the drive to live with deep attention in a now that is for all of us tangled in the past.

Network Sovereignty Marisa Elena Duarte, 2017-07-11 In 2012, the United Nations General Assembly determined that affordable Internet access is a human right critical to citizen participation in democratic governments. Given the significance of information and communication technologies (ICTs) to social and political life, many U.S. tribes and Native organizations have created their own projects from streaming radio to building networks to telecommunications advocacy. In Network Sovereignty, Marisa Duarte examines these ICT projects to explore the significance of information flows and information systems to Native sovereignty and toward self governance self determination and decolonization By reframing how tribes and Native organizations harness these technologies as a means to overcome colonial disconnections Network Sovereignty shifts the discussion of information and communication technologies in Native communities from one of exploitation to one of Indigenous possibility
