Self-sufficiency for Children Mary Norwak,1980 Early Childhood Programs for Low-income Families United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions. Subcommittee on Children and Families,2000 The psychological process of stereotyping: Content, forming, internalizing, mechanisms, effects, and interventions Baoshan Zhang,Magdalena Zawisza,Fangfang Wen,Junhua Dang,Fengqing Zhao,2023-02-06 Stereotype is a pervasive and persistent human tendency that stems from a basic cognitive need to categorize simplify and process the complex world This tendency is a precondition for social bias prejudice and discrimination Previous research has mainly focused on the content psychological mechanisms and intervention strategies of negative stereotypes as well as the stereotype threat phenomenon induced by an evaluative context where a negative in group stereotype could be confirmed However there is a lack of research examining the psychological process of forming and internalizing social stereotypes the neurocognitive mechanisms of stereotypes and the interventions including potential neurocognitive interventions addressing the consequences of negative stereotypes Furthermore as per the Behavioral Immune System BIS theory the very presence of a pathogen is likely to increase stereotyping across various social categories especially in those with a heightened perception of vulnerability to disease Thus stereotypes can be enhanced in the context of pathogen exposure such as the current outbreak of COVID 19 pandemic People exposed to the virus are more likely to suffer from personal and institutional stereotypes and discrimination which may cause negative consequences to personal and social well being Therefore in the current context of global Covid 19 pandemic it is necessary to investigate the increasing biases driven by stereotypes regarding viewing pathogens as a threat which holds across different social categories Specifically what constitutes and shapes stereotypes towards people living in epidemic areas What are the consequences of these short term shaped stereotypes What is the relationship between the consequences of these stereotypes and traditional stereotypes i e stereotypes towards race gender and age Will these short term stereotypes interact with traditional stereotypes to exacerbate discrimination or will the recategorization based on the short term stereotypes during Covid 19 pandemic allow people to ignore the traditional inferior social identity and in turn to promote social integration among different groups And how can we prevent the increasing tendency of relying on stereotypes and instead increase pro social behaviors in the Covid 19 context The current Research Topic focuses on understanding the psychological process of forming and internalizing social stereotypes the neurocognitive mechanisms of stereotypes as well as interventions including potential neurocognitive interventions regarding the consequences of negative stereotypes And we also aim to gather the latest research investigating the broad psychological process of social stereotyping with an emphasis on the implications under the Covid 19 context That is this Research Topic is also interested in the negative stereotypes specific to Covid 19 pandemic as well as relevant preventative interventions aimed at people perceived as at higher Covid 19 exposure risk Theoretical and empirical research from psychology sociology and related fields is welcome Examples of possible themes for manuscripts include but are not limited to the following topics The content of stereotypes Social categorization and discrimination based on stereotypes Traditional stereotypes and their consequences The psychological process of social stereotype formation and internalization The mechanisms including neurocognitive mechanisms of stereotypes and its consequences The stereotype neutralizing interventions including neurocognitive intervention strategies towards negative stereotypes The psychological process of stereotypes during Covid 19 pandemic The social group categorization and social cohesion during Covid 19 pandemic The interactions between traditional stereotypes towards social groups seen as inferior in the dominant culture and the short term stereotypes during Covid 19 pandemic The strategies of tackling stereotypes in Covid 19 pandemic

The African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child: A Commentary Julia Sloth-Nielsen, Elvis Fokala , Godfrey Odongo , 2025-01-01 Since its adoption in July 1990 and entry into force in November 1999 the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child African Children s Charter has become a key treaty within the African human rights system governing children s rights in Africa To date 51 out of 55 African Union member states have ratified the African Children s Charter which demonstrates a growing commitment to respect protect and promote the rights of children There is no doubt that the Charter since entering into force has significantly contributed to the development of standards and practice related to children in Africa This comprehensive commentary on the African Children s Charter the first of its kind provides a systematic analysis of each article of the Charter tracing the origin of the rights highlighting and explaining unique African concepts and normative standards featured in the Charter The Commentary aims to be a one stop shop for anyone interested in protecting and promoting children s rights in Africa such as researchers teachers students practitioners policy makers and activists Authored by an array of contributors steeped in African jurisprudence and human rights values comprising 38 discrete chapters it constitutes an essential and contemporary guide to the legal understanding of the various provisions the Charter provides for It is edited by three African scholars prominent in the field of children s rights in Africa Prof Julia Sloth Nielsen Prof Elvis Fokala and Dr Godfrey Odongo This Commentary is the second in the PULP series of Commentaries on African human rights law Abuse and Violence Towards Young Children Roy Evans,2017-10-02 Levels of violence abuse and neglect in early childhood are reported internationally as having reached epidemic proportions The prevalence of all forms of violence to children has been difficult to establish particularly in low and middle income countries However even in countries with a high GDP the sexual abuse of children and young people by predatory adults may continue undetected for decades In parts of Africa young children are mutilated and killed for religious reasons Physical beatings that injure and break bones are still common in the Western world Pornography and sexual abuse involving young children is propagated worldwide through the internet The prevention of this violence will require substantial shifts in parental and public attitudes to children and the development and support of national systems of preventive legislation The last 20 years has seen the emergence of a body of material which interrogates early childhood violence and neglect in a wider range of global settings particularly those countries with a low GDP This book aims to highlight important features of national and international initiatives which are rooted in findings from systematic research The continued abuse and neglect of children has been attributed to social acceptance not understanding the importance of reporting abuse and the limitations of child welfare systems This book will be of interest to practitioners in health care education and social work services as well as field workers implementing programmes to address all forms of abuse at family community and national level This book was originally published as a special issue of Early Child Development and Care Library of Congress Subject Headings Library of Congress,2011 Raising Self-sufficient Kids : an Honest Mom's Guide to Intentional Parenting Kody Hanner,2024 In a world where instant gratification is the norm how can we raise kids who are self sufficient respectful and filled with integrity In Raising Self Sufficient Kids Kody takes you on an eye opening journey through her own experiences as a mom navigating the joys and challenges of intentional parenting With heartfelt honesty and a touch of humor Kody reflects on the importance of modeling behaviors that promote independence and responsibility in our children She encourages parents to examine their own mindsets challenging them to consider What am I teaching my kids through my actions and choices Each chapter is filled with relatable stories that balance deep emotions with moments that will make you laugh out loud making the journey of parenting feel a little less daunting and a lot more fun From practical tips on fostering resilience and accountability to insights on creating a nurturing environment where respect flourishes this guide is packed with actionable advice grounded in real life parenting trials Embrace the opportunity to grow alongside your children as you explore the values of respect and integrity together Join Kody on this heartfelt venture and discover how you can cultivate a

Kids National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Committee on Applying Neurobiological and Socio-Behavioral Sciences from Prenatal Through Early Childhood Development: A Health Equity Approach, 2019-12-27 Children are the foundation of the United States and supporting them is a key component of building a successful future. However, millions of children face health inequities that compromise their development, well-being, and long-term outcomes despite substantial scientific evidence about how those adversities contribute to poor health. Advancements in neurobiological and socio-behavioral science show that critical biological systems develop in the prenatal through early childhood periods and neurobiological development is extremely responsive to environmental influences during these stages. Consequently, social, economic, cultural, and environmental factors significantly affect a child's health ecosystem and ability to thrive throughout adulthood. Vibrant and Healthy Kids: Aligning Science, Practice, and Policy to Advance Health Equity builds upon and updates research from Communities in Action Pathways to Health Equity 2017 and From Neurons to Neighborhoods: The Science of Early Childhood Development 2000. This report provides a brief overview of stressors that affect childhood development and health, a framework for applying current brain and development science to the real world, a roadmap for implementing tailored interventions, and recommendations about improving systems to better align with our understanding of the significant impact of health equity.
