Hodge, 2019-04-01 In Ecology and Ethnogenesis Adam R Hodge argues that the Eastern Shoshone tribe now located on the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming underwent a process of ethnogenesis through cultural attachment to its physical environment that proved integral to its survival and existence He explores the intersection of environmental indigenous and gender history to illuminate the historic roots of the Eastern Shoshone bands that inhabited the intermountain West during the nineteenth century Hodge presents an impressive longue dur e narrative of Eastern Shoshone history from roughly 1000 CE to 1868 analyzing the major developments that influenced Shoshone culture and identity Geographically spanning the Great Basin Rocky Mountain Columbia Plateau and Great Plains regions Ecology and Ethnogenesis engages environmental history to explore the synergistic relationship between the subsistence methods of indigenous people and the lands that they inhabited prior to the reservation era In examining that history Hodge treats Shoshones other Native peoples and Euroamericans as agents who through their use of the environment were major components of much broader ecosystems The story of the Eastern Shoshones over eight hundred years is an epic story of ecological transformation human agency and cultural adaptation Ecology and Ethnogenesis is a major contribution to environmental history ethnohistory and Native American history It explores Eastern Shoshone ethnogenesis based on interdisciplinary research in history archaeology anthropology and the natural sciences in devoting more attention to the dynamic and often traumatic history of precontact Native America and to how the deeper past profoundly influenced the postcontact era American Myths, Legends, and Tall Tales Christopher R. Journeys West Virginia

Kerns, 2010-03-01 Journeys West traces journeys made during seven months of fieldwork in 1935 and 1936 by Julian Steward a young anthropologist and his wife Jane Virginia Kerns identifies the scores of Native elders whom they met throughout the Western desert men and women previously known in print only by initials and thus largely invisible as primary sources of Steward's classic ethnography Besides humanizing Steward's cultural informants revealing them as distinct individuals and also as first generation survivors of an ecological crisis caused by American settlement of their lands Kerns shows how the elders worked with Steward Each helped to construct an ethnographic portrait of life in a particular place in the high desert of the Great Basin The elders memories of how they and their ancestors had lived by hunting and gathering a sustainable way of life that endured for generations richly illustrated what Steward termed cultural adaptation It later became a key concept in anthropology and remains relevant today in an age of global environmental crisis Based on meticulous research this book draws on an impressive array of evidence from interviews and observations to census data correspondence and the field journal of the Stewards Journeys West illuminates not only on the elders who were Steward's guides but also the practice of ethnographic fieldwork a research method that is both a journey and a distinctive way of looking listening and learning
