Smith,2006 The Self Possessed is a multifaceted diachronic study reconsidering the very nature of religion in South Asia the culmination of years of intensive research Frederick M Smith proposes that positive oracular or ecstatic possession is the most common form of spiritual expression in India and that it has been linguistically distinguished from negative disease producing possession for thousands of years In South Asia possession has always been broader and more diverse than in the West where it has been almost entirely characterized as demonic At best spirit possession has been regarded as a medically treatable psychological ailment and at worst as a condition that requires exorcism or punishment In South and East Asia ecstatic or oracular possession has been widely practiced throughout history occupying a position of respect in early and recent Hinduism and in certain forms of Buddhism Smith analyzes Indic literature from all ages the earliest Vedic texts the Mahabharata Buddhist Jain Yogic Ayurvedic and Tantric texts Hindu devotional literature Sanskrit drama and narrative literature and more than a hundred ethnographies He identifies several forms of possession including festival initiatory oracular and devotional and demonstrates their multivocality within a wide range of sects and religious identities Possession is common among both men and women and is practiced by members of all social and caste strata Smith theorizes on notions of embodiment disembodiment selfhood personal identity and other key issues through the prism of possession redefining the relationship between Sanskritic and vernacular culture and between elite and popular religion Smith's study is also comparative introducing considerable material from Tibet classical China modern America and elsewhere Brilliant and persuasive The Self Possessed provides careful new translations of rare material and is the most comprehensive study in any language on this subject

best preserved by exercising an immanent critique of its premises and the conclusions to which they often led By distinguishing between what is still and what is no longer alive in Critical Theory these essays seek to demonstrate its continuing relevance in the 21st century Fifty years after the appearance of The Dialectical Imagination his pioneering history of the Frankfurt School Martin Jay reflects on what may be living and dead in its legacy Rather than treating it with filial piety as a fortress to be defended he takes seriously its anti systematic impulse and sensitivity to changing historical circumstances Honouring the Frankfurt School s practice of immanent critique he puts critical pressure on a number of its own ideas by probing their contradictory impulses Among them are the pathologization of political deviance through stigmatizing authoritarian personalities the undefended theological premises of Walter Benjamin s work and the ambivalence of its members analyses of anti Semitism and Zionism Additional questions are asked about other time honored Marxist themes the meaning of alienation the alleged damages of abstraction and the advocacy of a politics based on a singular notion of the truth Rather however than allowing these questions to snowball into an unwarranted repudiation of the Frankfurt School legacy as a whole the essays also acknowledge a number of its still potent arguments They explore its neglected but now timely analysis of racket society Adorno s dialectical reading of aesthetic sublimation and the unexpected implications of Benjamin s focus on the corpse for political theory Jay shows that it is a still evolving theoretical tradition which offers resources for the understanding of and perhaps even practical betterment of our increasingly troubled world
