Sibton Abbey Cartularies and Charters Sibton Abbey, 1985 A wealth of surviving documents provide an unusually comprehensive overview of this Cistercian house Charters of St. Bartholomew's Priory, Sudbury Richard Mortimer, 1996 Original documents relating to minor foundation illustrate lower levels of local society and government of the town The Benedictine priory of St Bartholomew outside Sudbury was a cell of Westminster Abbey founded in the reign of Henry I by Wulfric the moneyer Although a small and poorly endowed establishment it has nevertheless and unusually left over 130 original documents in the muniments at Westminster enabling this volume in the Suffolk Charters series to be the first to be devoted to a group of original documents rather than medieval transcriptions Dating mostly from the thirteenth and early fourteenth centuries the collection illustrates the lower levels of local society and the government of the town providing a wealth of evidence for trades and occupations place names and personal names in the Sudbury area including the earliest known reeves and mayors of Sudbury Of particular interest are a late fourteenth century inventory of the priory which brings alive the physical surroundings of the monks and the quantities of seals attached to the charters including an unusual number of women's seals RICHARD MORTIMER has been Keeper of the Muniments Westminster Abbey since 1986 he has edited four previous volumes in the Suffolk Charters series monks and the quantities of seals attached to the charters including an unusual number of women's seals RICHARD MORTIMER has been Keeper of the Muniments Westminster Abbey since 1986 he has edited four previous volumes in the Suffolk Charters series monks and the quantities of seals attached to the charters including an unusual number of women's seals RICHARD MORTIMER has been Keeper of the Muniments Westminster Abbey since 1986 he has edited four previous volumes in the Suffolk Charters series monks and the quantities of seals attached to the charters including an unusual number of women's seals RICHARD MORTIMER has been Keeper of the Muniments Westminster Abbey since 1986 he has edited four previous volumes in the Suffolk Charters series Sibton Abbey Cartularies and Charters Sibton Abbey, 1985 A wealth of surviving documents provide an unusually comprehensive overview of this Cistercian house East Anglian A wealth of surviving documents provide an unusually comprehensive overview of the only Cistercian house in Suffolk Domesday Descendants K. S. B. Keats-Rohan, 2002 Entries on persons living in post Conquest England 1066-1166 documented in Domesday book pipe rolls and Cartae Baronum Includes Continental origins family relationships and descent of fees Suffolk in the Middle Ages Norman Scarfe, 2007 Norman Scarfe explores place names the Sutton Hoo ship burial the coming of Christianity and the abbey at Bury St Edmunds concluding with an evocative study of five Suffolk places Southwold Dunwich Yoxford and Wingfield and Fressingfield The modern landscape of Suffolk is still essentially a medieval one though much of it is even earlier the five hundred medieval churches and ten thousand listed houses of historic or architectural interest and the Hundred lanes going back at least to the tenth century are often found to be set in a landscape created before the Roman conquest Suffolk in the Middle Ages opens with a discussion of the earliest written records the place names as a guide to settlement patterns including the setting of Sutton Hoo Among the grave goods found in that celebrated ship and discussed here was the whetstone sceptre asked to carry it from its showcase in the British Museum to the laboratory the author acknowledges a closer feeling of involvement even than helping to re open the ship in its mound in 1966 His explanation of the presence of the whetstone sceptre printed here has never been challenged The identification of a carved Anglo Saxon cross at Iken in 1977 prompted the essay here on St Botolph and the coming of East Anglian Christianity This leads to a consideration of the Danish invasion of East Anglia and a reexamination of the posthumous victory of King Edmund and Christianity as portrayed in an imaginary Breckland warren on the front of this book Scarfe s carefully reasoned argument that the Metropolitan Museum s famous walrusivory cross was made for the monks choir at Bury has never been refuted Life in Bury abbey is vividly reconstructed it was the most richly documented flowering of the work of East Anglia s apostles Felix and Fursa which also led to the phenomenal establishment in Suffolk by 1086 of four hundred of the five hundred medieval churches In four East Suffolk essays Southwold Dunwich Yoxford and Wingfield are exposed to Norman Scarfe s interpretative skills He reveals a past few could have guessed at often quite as curious as the Two Strange Tales unravelled in his concluding pages

Ecclesiastical Lordship, Seigneurial Power and the Commercialization of Milling in Medieval England Adam Lucas, 2016-04-29 This is the first detailed study of the role of the Church in the commercialization of milling in medieval England Focusing on the period from the late eleventh to the mid sixteenth centuries it examines the estate management practices of more than thirty English religious houses founded by the Benedictines Cistercians Augustinians and other minor orders with an emphasis on the role played by mills and milling in the establishment and development of a range of different sized episcopal and conventual foundations Contrary to the views espoused by a number of prominent historians of technology since the 1930s the book demonstrates that patterns of mill acquisition innovation and exploitation were shaped not only by the size wealth and distribution of a house s estates but also by environmental and demographic factors changing cultural attitudes and legal conventions prevailing and emergent technical traditions the personal relations of a house with its patrons tenants servants and neighbours and the entrepreneurial and administrative flair of bishops abbots priors and other ecclesiastical officials

Missed Opportunities? David Postles, 2009 Postles examines how the religious failed to fulfill both their obligations and the expectations of them so that the affective relation between the enclosed religious and the laity was eclipsed by the early 14th century

Literary Theory Paul Maurice Clogan, 1989 Naming the People of England, c.1100-1350 Dave Postles, 2020-05-15 Medieval historians have for some time recognized the significance of personal naming processes and patterns for the illumination of social relations such as kinship and spiritual kinship or godparenthood Increasingly they are employing the investigation of personal naming anthroponymy as part of their elucidation of cultural change attempting through changes in patterns of personal naming to discern cultural transitions and transformations Recent coordinated research on the European continent has produced major collaborative discussion of the cultural implications of naming in France the Iberian peninsular and Italy The fruits of new research into the Germanic lands have also richly enhanced our understanding of cultural change there So it is predicated that a new trans European culture arose in the centuries about and after the year 1000 Omitted from this coordinated understanding of the arrival of a new European cultural tradition as it came to persist is the British archipelago We are however far from devoid of scholarly examination of the culture of personal naming in the British Isles An older generation of linguists produced a basic foundation although it has not remained free of some criticism Subsequently several scholars have independently advanced the interpretive analysis Clark Fellows Jensen Insley and McClure At one level then this book attempts a synthesis of that previous highly valuable but diffuse research to make it more widely known understood and accessible At another level nonetheless it engages with what has become a prevailing narrative of cultural change in England after the Norman Conquest the rapid transformation of English naming and culture through the assimilation of a new dominant extraneous influence By reinserting the detail and complexity it is hoped to demonstrate that far from a single uniform homologous culture there existed residual even resistant and regional cultures The account it is hoped presents a cohesive new narrative of the cultural implications of personal naming in England whilst also addressing important issues of gender politics and social organization

Suffolk Charters, 1996 The Haskins Society Journal Studies in Medieval History Robert Patterson, 2003-08-02 The Haskins Society named after the celebrated American medievalist Charles Homer Haskins was founded in 1982 to provide a forum for the discussion and study of English and related continental history in the middle ages

The Commercialisation of English Society, 1000-1500 R. H. Britnell, 1996 The commercialisation of English society offers a major new interpretation of social and economic change in England over five centuries By 1500 English livelihoods depended more upon money and commercial transactions than ever before the institutional framework of markets had been transformed and urban development was more pronounced These changes were not however caused by any unilinear development of population output or money supply

This pioneering study examines both institutional and economic transformation and the social changes that resulted and stresses the limited importance of formal trading institutions for the development of local trade. Commercial transition is throughout analysed from a broader perspective that looks at the changing power relations within medieval society which might loosely be described as feudal and considers how these relations were affected by such commercial development.

The Foldcourse and East Anglian

Agriculture and Landscape, 1100-1900 John Belcher, 2020. First survey of one of the most important pre modern farming systems and its effects on society and landscape. A landmark volume essential reading for all those interested in social agricultural and landscape history as well as in East Anglia's past. Professor Tom Williamson, University of East Anglia, England, in the medieval and early modern periods was farmed under a wide range of agrarian regimes, each of which was both engendered by and had in turn a determining influence upon innumerable aspects of society and landscape. Reconstructing the complex history of these systems, how they actually worked on the ground, how and why they first developed and how they evolved over time is thus crucial for our understanding of the lived experience of past generations and the physical environments which they inhabited. But studies of past agricultural regimes which are detailed enough to highlight their full social, economic and environmental character and implications are surprisingly thin on the ground. This innovative book dissects the character of one key example, the foldcourse system of East Anglia, from its genesis in the early Middle Ages to its demise in the nineteenth century. It casts a mass of new light on an institution that structured rural life in one region of England over many centuries. But it also provides important new insights into the nature of early farming systems more generally and the intricate balance of human agency and environmental structures that shaped and sustained them. Wind, Water, Work Adam Lucas, 2006 This book is the most comprehensive empirical study to date of the social and technical aspects of milling during the ancient and medieval periods Drawing on the latest archaeological evidence and historical studies the book examines the chronological development and technical details of handmills beast mills watermills and windmills from the first millennium BCE to c 1500 It discusses the many and varied uses to which mills were turned in the civilisations of Rome China Islam and Europe and the many types of mill that existed The book also includes comparative regional studies of the social and economic significance of milling and tackles several important historiographical issues such as whether technological stagnation was a characteristic of late Antiquity whether there was an industrial revolution in the European Middle Ages based on waterpower and how contemporary studies in the social shaping of technology can shed light on the study of pre modern technology

Dodnash Priory Charters Christopher Harper-Bill, 1998 The history of Dodnash Priory one of numerous Augustinian priories founded in East Anglia in the twelfth and early thirteenth centuries has hitherto been totally obscure The two hundred original charters edited here now show that it was founded by Wimer the chaplain sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk and a prominent servant of Henry II and that although always small it played a disproportionately large part in the economic and social life of south east Suffolk for the next three centuries The early charters include the first known references to Flatford Mill at East Bergholt later documents relate to serious flooding at the end of the thirteenth century and soon thereafter to the leasing of estates in order to adapt to new economic conditions As always the charters provide much information about local lay society as well as the canons themselves
