Bagenstos examines the history of the movement and discusses the various often conflicting projects of diverse participants He argues that while the courts deserve some criticism some may also be fairly aimed at the choices made by prominent disability rights activists as they crafted and argued for the ADA The author concludes with an assessment of the limits of antidiscrimination law in integrating and empowering people with disabilities and he suggests new policy directions to make these goals a reality Women in the Judiciary Ulrike Schultz, Gisela Shaw, 2013-09-13 Does gender matter in judging And if so in what way Why were there so few women judges only two or three decades ago and why are there so many now in most countries of the Western world How do women judges experience their work in a previously male dominated environment What are their professional careers How do they organise and live their lives And finally and most notably do women judge
