Making It On Our Own:

To Make this Land Our Own Arlin C. Migliazzo, 2007 A case study in the social history of frontier town building set in the swamps of South Carolina On the banks of the lower Savannah River the military objectives of South Carolina officials the ambitions of Swiss entrepreneur Jean Pierre Purry and the dreams of Protestants from Switzerland France Germany Italy and England converged in a planned settlement named Purrysburg This examination of the first South Carolina township in Governor Robert Johnson's strategic plan to populate and defend the colonial backcountry offers the clearest picture to date of the settlement of the colony's Southern frontier by ethnically diverse and contractually obligated immigrants Arlin C. Migliazzo contends that the story of Purrysburg Township founded in 1732 and set in the forbidding environment bounded by the Savannah River and the Coosawhatchie swamps challenges the notion that white colonists shed their ethnic distinctions to become a monolithic culture He views Purrysburg as a laboratory in which to observe ethnic phenomena in the colonial and antebellum South Separated by linguistic religious and cultural barriers the migrants adapted familiar social processes from their homelands to create a workable sense of community and identity His work is one of only a handful of examples of what has been deemed the new social history methodology as applied to a South Carolina subject Initially devastated by privation and a high mortality rate Purrysburg residents also suffered the vicissitudes of an indifferent provincial elite the encroachment of lowcountry rice planters Prevost's invasion in 1779 and ultimate destruction of the settlement by Sherman's army Migliazzo details the community's changing military and economic fortunes the gradual displacement of its residents to neighboring communities the role of African Americans in the region the complex religious life of township settlers and the quirky contributions of Purry's climatological speculations to the fateful siting of this first township

How to Make Our Own News John Maxwell, 2000 A must read for community activists who've ever wondered how to get their stories in the media How to Make Our Own News will also be a useful resource for journalists who cover environmental issues The author is a veteran journalist who also has long been directly engaged in work on behalf of the environment and he has written a cogent how to on reaching audiences developing story ideas conducting successful interviews and writing stories that will be accepted by news editors The work includes appendixes that summarise Agenda 21 the principles of sustainable development that resulted from the 1992 Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro

We Make Our Own History Laurence Cox, Alf Gunvald Nilsen, 2014-08-20 We live in the twilight of neoliberalism the ruling classes can no longer rule as before and ordinary people are no longer willing to be ruled in the old way Pursued by global elites since the 1970s neoliberalism is defined by dispossession and ever increasing inequality The refusal to continue to be ruled like this ya basta appears in an arc of resistance stretching from rural India to the cities of the global North From this network of movements new visions are emerging of a future beyond neoliberalism We Make Our Own History responds to these visions by reclaiming Marxism as a theory born from activist experience and practice This book marks a break both with established social movement theory and with those forms of Marxism which treat the practice of social movement organising as an unproblematic process It shows how movements can develop from local conflicts to global struggles how neoliberalism operates as a social movement from above and how popular struggles can create new worlds from below Out Here on Our Own J.
