Making Up the Difference Erynn Masi de Casanova, 2011-06-01 Globalization and economic restructuring have decimated formal jobs in developing countries pushing many women into informal employment such as direct selling of cosmetics perfume and other personal care products as a way to make up the difference between household income and expenses In Ecuador with its persistent economic crisis and few opportunities for financially and personally rewarding work women increasingly choose direct selling as a way to earn income by activating their social networks While few women earn the cars and trips that are iconic prizes in the direct selling organization many use direct selling as part of a set of household survival strategies In this first in depth study of a cosmetics direct selling organization in Latin America Erynn Masi de Casanova explores women's identities as workers including their juggling of paid work and domestic responsibilities their ideas about professional appearance and their strategies for collecting money from customers Focusing on women who work for the country's leading direct selling organization she offers fascinating portraits of the everyday lives of women selling personal care products in Ecuador's largest city Guayaquil Addressing gender relations including a look at men's direct and indirect involvement the importance of image and the social and economic context of direct selling Casanova challenges assumptions that this kind of flexible employment resolves women's work home conflicts and offers an important new perspective on women's work in developing countries

The Truth About Breaking Up, Making Up, and Moving On Chad Eastham, 2013-01-07 Relationships are like road trips Sometimes they're an exciting adventure But sometimes they're like a traffic jam going nowhere Or even worse they're a wrong turn that's taken you hundreds of miles off your course With much needed humor and honest advice bestselling author and speaker Chad Eastham helps you think through tough but necessary relationship issues such as Why some people find happiness while others find heartache Why pain hurts so much When to break up When to make up Chad's conversational tone facts and advice encourage young people to rethink life's conversations even the difficult stuff like heartbreak There is nothing in life that is too big too painful or too difficult that God cannot make better and use to teach us about love Nothing

Making Up Our Mind Sigal R. Ben-Porath, Michael C. Johanek, 2019-04-24 If free market advocates had total control over education policy would the shared public system of education collapse Would school choice revitalize schooling with its innovative force With proliferating charters and voucher schemes would the United States finally make a dramatic break with its past and expand parental choice Those are not only the wrong questions they're the wrong premises argue philosopher Sigal R Ben Porath and historian Michael C Johanek in Making Up Our Mind Market driven school choices aren't new They predate the republic and for generations parents have chosen to educate their children through an evolving mix of publicly supported private charitable and entrepreneurial enterprises The question is not whether to have school choice It is how we will regulate who has which choices in our mixed market for schooling and what we as a nation hope to accomplish with that mix of choices Looking beyond the simplistic divide between those who oppose government intervention and those who support public education the authors make the case for a structured landscape of choice in schooling one that protects the interests of children and of society while also identifying key shared values on which a broadly acceptable policy could rest

Making-Up People: Youth, Truth and Politics Judith Bessant, 2020-12-30 This book is about modern politics and young people Judith Bessant revises some long standing myths about children and young people s politics She highlights the huge gap between the many ways young people and politics are talked about and how they have long been politically active Bessant draws on a relational historical sociology to show how since the nineteenth century certain historical dynamics political interests and social imaginaries have enabled social scientists writers political leaders and policymakers to imagine and make up different kinds of young people Given these representations of childhood adolescence and youth everyone knows that young people are cognitively immature inexperienced morally under developed and lack good judgement For these reasons they cannot possibly be allowed to engage in the serious grown up business of politics Yet in just one of the many contradictions young people are criticised by many of their elders for being politically apathetic and disengaged from politics Many think recent global warming movements largely led by quite young people are a novel phenomenon Yet young people have been at the forefront of political movements of all kinds since the French Revolution Since the 1960s children and young people increasingly played a major if sometimes obscured role in civil rights anti war anti globalisation anti austerity and global warming movements This accessible book is rich in theoretical and historical insight that is sure to appeal to sociologists historians youth studies scholars and political scientists as well as to the general reader

Making Up Your Mind Robert Mutti, 2002-09-04 This focused text is directed consistently towards teaching students to write their own arguments so as to better understand their own thoughts and present them to others in a clear written form The text also provides a distinctive discussion of the role of emotion in argument under the concept of emotional intelligence and includes a wide range of exercises In introducing students to the nature of argument and especially ethical argument Making Up Your Mind features a comprehensive introduction to the logical forms of assertions and the most common forms of expression in English The book then shows how to use all the main terms of argument and provides a brief introduction to the most common forms of syllogism The deductive and inductive aspects of argument are treated and students are taught a basic technique of testing arguments for validity Making Up Your Mind provides an argument outline which can be used to organize virtually any ethical argument This argument outline also provides a realistic context in which to study the most important informal fallacies and learn how to avoid them In its closing chapters the book discusses the nature of good evidence and good sources of evidence and their role in argument Included are discussions of scientific method the logical form of arguments about causal theories and arguments from analogy
