Making England Landscape Of Staffordshire:

British and Irish Archaeology ,1994 The Shaping of a Community Beat A. Kümin,2016-12-05 This book offers a new perspective to the current debate about popular religious attitudes in Tudor England laying particular emphasis on the social and secular dimensions of parish life The argument focuses on the role of the laity and especially on the office of churchwarden It assesses the rising levels of parish income the importance of the social context for fund raising strategies and the growing expenditure on priests voluntary activities and administrative duties The final part discusses the Reformation related reduction in religious options and the intensifying trend towards oligarchical parish regimes and official local government responsibilities Wherever possible the English situation is put into sharper focus by comparisons with local ecclesiastical life on the Continent and appendices provide a detailed financial analysis for a large number of parishes

Greater Medieval Houses of England and Wales, 1300-1500: Volume 2, East Anglia, Central England and Wales Anthony Emery,1996 The second volume of a massive illustrated survey of the greater houses of medieval England and Wales first published in 1996 The Northern Danelaw D.M. Hadley,2001-01-01 Investigating the changing nature of lordship and peasant statuses the transformation of estate structures the emergence of villages and the development of the parish system D M Hadley also explains the peculiarities of the northern Danelaw and reassesses the impact of the Scandinavian settlements on its society and culture A detailed local study is combined with a consideration of wider issues concerning Anglo Saxon England and long and short term changes unrelated to successive conquests British Archaeological Abstracts ,1977 Education, Literacy and Society, 1830-70 W. B. Stephens,1987 Parks in Medieval England S.A. Miles,2009-07-16 Parks were prominent and indeed controversial features of the medieval countryside but they have been unevenly studied and remain only partly understood Stephen Miles provides the first full length study of the subject examining parks across the country and throughout the Middle Ages in their full social economic jurisdictional and landscape context The first half of the book investigates the purpose of these royal and aristocratic reserves which have been variously claimed as hunting grounds economic assets landscape settings for residences and status symbols An emphasis on the aristocratic passion for the chase as the key motivation for park making provides an important challenge to more recent views and allows for a deeper appreciation of the connection between park making and the expression of power and lordship The second part of the book examines the impact of park creation on wider society from the king and aristocracy to peasants and townsmen Instead of the traditional emphasis on the importance of royal regulation greater attention is paid to the effects of lordly park making on other members of the landed elite and ordinary people These widespread enclosures interfered with customary uses of woodland and waste hunting practices roads and farming not surprisingly they could become a focus for aristocratic feud popular protest and furtive resistance Combining historical archaeological and landscape evidence this ground breaking study provides fresh insight into contemporary values and how
