Making Globalisation Hc:

Education in Global Health Policy Making and Management Eduardo Missoni, Fabrizio

Tediosi, 2013-11-17T00:00:00+01:00 Global health has been increasingly recognized as a key element of sustainable development. The recent increase in the number of public and private global health actors and the complex global governance for health boosted the need for professionals who combine a thorough understanding of health related challenges with multidisciplinary training in social sciences, economics and management. In the past few years this has led not only to the mushrooming of courses dedicated to global health but also academic degrees in global health. By reviewing a recent attempt to innovate the educational offerings in global health policy and management by a consortium of academic institutions in Italy, the book analyzes the recent trends in global health education. The book concludes that while global health and development is certainly an emerging area in the higher education systems of many countries, international offerings in graduate programs are still highly dominated by those taught in medical schools, often failing to combine health sciences with economic, social and management sciences. The multidisciplinary nature of global health education programs should be improved.

Negotiating And Navigating Global Health: Case Studies In Global Health Diplomacy Ellen

Roskam, Ilona Kickbusch, 2011-12-28 Diplomacy is undergoing profound changes in the 21st century and global health is one of the areas where this is most apparent. The negotiation processes that shape and manage the global policy environment for health are increasingly conducted not only between public health experts representing health ministries of nation states but include many other major players at the national level and in the global arena. These include philanthropists and public-private players. As health moves beyond its purely technical realm to become an ever more critical element in foreign policy, security policy and trade agreements, new skills are needed to negotiate global regimes, international agreements and treaties and to maintain relations with a wide range of actors. The intent of this book is to provide learning tools for today's broad group of new health diplomats in the landscape of this ever-shifting complex technical and political arena. The case studies are told as the negotiations were experienced by individuals who participated in the various debates, dialogues, negotiations or by experts who have studied them. This collection fills an important gap in both knowledge and practice, providing insight on how negotiations on global health issues have transpired, the successes, challenges, failures, tools and frameworks for negotiation mechanisms of policy coherence, ways to achieve global health objectives internationally and how global health diplomacy used as a foreign policy tool can improve relations between nations.
