Making Of Citizens Young People News And Politics:

The Making of Citizens David Buckingham, 2002-01-04 New book from well known author in media education and editor of Media Education and Culture series formerly UCL now Routledge Examines how television news and popular programmes have affected young people's views of issues such as politics and citizenship Television News, Politics and Young People M. Wayne, J. Petley, C. Murray, L. Henderson, 2010-04-09 Why are young people alienated from television news This book argues that contemporary trends indicating deepening disconnection from news about public life reflect both problems in the way television news covers politics the single biggest item on the news and problems with the nature of politics itself under neo liberal capitalism Young Citizens and New Media Peter Dahlgren, 2013-10-11 This book integrates four distinct topics young people citizenship new media and learning processes When taken together these four topics merge to define an arena of social and research attention that has become compelling in recent years The general international concern expressed of declining democratic engagement and the role of citizenship today becomes all the more acute when it turns to younger people At the same time there is growing attention being paid to the potential of new media especially internet and mobile telephony to play a role in facilitating newer forms of political participation It is clear that many of the present manifestations of new politics in the extra parliamentary domain not only make sophisticated use of such media but are indeed highly dependent on them With an impressive array of contributors this book will appeal to those interested in a number of spheres including media and cultural studies political science pedagogy and sociology Young People, Media and Politics in the Digital Age Vera Slavtcheva-Petkova, 2023-10-27 The book explores the relationship among young people politics and the media It presents a novel multidimensional analytical framework The Circle Line Media Model which accounts for the importance of a range of processes actors and social structures in the political socialisation process By defining political socialisation as a lifelong interactive process that develops civic cultures collective identities and citizenship underpinned by social structures nationality and generational order the author draws attention to its manifestation in acts of political participation and interactions with authoritative actors such as school teachers family the media and friends peers The volume's longitudinal study on young people Europe and the media spanning 13 years of research in two very different countries also makes recommendations for more effectively engaging young people with politics and political media based on Generation Z's own views about current deficiencies in their relationship with news media Shedding new light on the changing nature of young people's engagement with politics this book will be of interest to researchers lecturers professors and upper level undergraduate and postgraduate students in the fields of media studies communication and journalism studies as well as politics and sociology Youth Culture, Education and Resistance , 2010-01-01 Youth Culture Education and Resistance Subverting the Commercial Ordering of Life is a ground breaking collection of essays that illustrate how youth culture has the potential to build solidarity amongst teachers activists scholars and practitioners for the purposes of confronting the dominant ideological doctrine influencing life at today's historical juncture emblemized through neoliberalism as well as building a society free from oppressive social formations. Several leading international scholars and educators provide empirically and theoretically rich portraits of youth challenging the commercialized status quo inside and outside K-12 classrooms. They also illustrate how cultural manifestations of youth speak directly against the social actors who continually vilify youth as the source of their own marginalization and the world's suffering and misery.

Encyclopedia of Science and Technology Communication Susanna Hornig Priest, 2010-07-14

The explosion of scientific information is exacerbating the information gap between richer poorer educated less educated publics. The proliferation of media technology and the popularity of the Internet help some keep up with these developments but also make it more likely others fall further behind. This is taking place in a globalizing economy and society that further complicates the division between information haves and have nots and compounds the challenge of communicating about emerging science and technology to increasingly diverse audiences. Journalism about science and technology must fill this gap yet journalists and journalism students themselves struggle to keep abreast of contemporary scientific developments. Scientist aided by public relations and public information professionals must get their stories out not only to other scientists but also to broader public audiences. Funding agencies increasingly expect their grantees to engage in outreach and education and such activity can be seen as both a survival strategy and an ethical imperative for taxpayer supported university based research. Science communication often in new forms must expand to meet all these needs. Providing a comprehensive introduction to students professionals and scholars in this area is a unique challenge because practitioners in these fields must grasp both the principles of science and the principles of science communication while understanding the social contexts of each. For this reason science journalism and science communication are often addressed only in advanced undergraduate or graduate specialty courses rather than covered exhaustively in lower division courses. Even so those entering the field rarely will have a comprehensive background in both science and communication studies. This circumstance underscores the importance of compiling useful reference materials. The Encyclopedia of Science and Technology Communication presents resources and strategies for science communicators including theoretical material and background on recent controversies and key institutional actors and sources. Science communicators need to understand more than how to interpret scientific facts and conclusions they need to understand basic elements of the politics sociology and philosophy of science as well as relevant media and communication theory principles of risk communication new trends and how to evaluate the effectiveness of science communication programmes to mention just a few of the major challenges. This work will help to develop and enhance such understanding as it addresses these challenges and more. Topics covered include advocacy policy and research organizations environmental and health communication philosophy of science media theory and science communication informal science education science journalism as a profession risk communication theory public understanding of science pseudo science in the news special problems in reporting science and technology science communication ethics Education for Citizenship: Ideas Into Action Nick Clough, Cathie Holden, 2005-06-29 This book explains how to incorporate citizenship into the curriculum by providing practical guidance and photocopiable materials making it extremely useful for teachers in the primary and early secondary sectors Young People and the Future of News Lynn Schofield Clark, Regina Marchi, 2017-09-21 This book examines youth media practices on social media introducing the concept of connective journalism as a precursor to collective political action Cultural Citizenship and Popular Culture Joke Hermes, 2023-09-27 Written in an accessible and engaging style this book uses a series of case studies to show how popular media are important to us as a source of pleasure and entertainment but also in communicating about the world with others Social media platforms have changed how we talk about what we like and dislike in our popular media use Cultural citizenship shows how these discussions speak to belonging to what we feel our rights and responsibilities are in today's polarized world Cultural Citizenship and Popular Culture is based on audience led research and does not privilege textual analysis as a starting point for taking popular media use's measure Instead it offers research tools to listen to others This book offers scholars and students of media and creative industries a means to understand their professional position as one in which they engage with rather than assume to know what users of popular cultural texts and products think and feel The Material Child David Buckingham, 2011-10-10 David Buckingham is Professor of Education at the Institute of Education University of London and Visiting Professor at the Norwegian Centre for Child Research NTNU Trondheim Youth Cultures in the Age of Global Media Sara Bragg, Mary Jane Kehily, 2014-02-06 This book explores the impact of globalisation and new technologies on youth cultures around the world from the Birmingham School to the youthspheres of South Korea In a timely reappraisal of youth cultures in contemporary times this collection profiles the best of new research in youth studies written by leading scholars in the field Populism, Media and Education Maria Ranieri, 2016-01-22 Based on a major research project funded by the European Commission Populism Media and Education studies how discriminatory stereotypes are built online with a particular focus on right wing populism Globalization and migration have led to a new era of populism and racism in Western countries rekindling traditional forms of discrimination through innovative means New media platforms are being seen by populist organizations as a method to promote hate speech and unprecedented forms of proselytism Race gender disability and sexual orientation are all being used to discriminate and young people are the preferred target for populist organizations and movements This book examines how media education can help to deconstruct such hate speech and promote young people's full participation in media saturated societies Drawing on rich examples from Austria Belgium Bulgaria France Italy Slovenia and the UK countries characterized by different political and cultural contexts Populism Media and Education addresses key questions about the meaning of new populism the nature of engagement and the role of education and citizenship in the digital century With its international and interdisciplinary approach this book is essential reading for

Misunderstanding News Audiences Eiri Elvestad, Angela Phillips, 2018-04-09 Misunderstanding News Audiences interrogates the prevailing myths around the impact of the Internet and social media on news consumption and democracy The book draws on a broad range of comparative research into audience engagement with news across different geographic regions to provide insight into the experience of news audiences in the twenty first century From its inception it was imagined that the Internet would benignly transform the nature of news media and its consumers There were predictions that it would for example break up news oligarchies improve plurality and diversity through news personalisation create genuine social solidarity online and increase political awareness and participation among citizens However this book finds that while mainstream news media is still the major source of news the new media environment appears to lead to greater polarisation between news junkies and news avoiders and to greater political polarisation The authors also argue that the dominant role of the USA in the field of news audience research has created myths about a global news audience which obscures the importance of national context as a major explanation for news exposure differences Misunderstanding News Audiences presents an important analysis of findings from recent audience studies and in doing so encourages readers to re evaluate popular beliefs about the influence of the Internet on news consumption and democracy in the West

The Civic Web Shakuntala Banaji, 2013-10-11 An investigation of how governments organizations and groups use the Internet to promote civic and political engagement among young people There has been widespread concern in contemporary Western societies about declining engagement in civic life people are less inclined to vote to join political parties to campaign for social causes or to trust political processes Young people in particular are frequently described as alienated or apathetic Some have looked optimistically to new media and particularly the Internet as a means of revitalizing civic life and democracy Governments political parties charities NGOs activists religious and ethnic groups and grassroots organizations have created a range of youth oriented websites that encourage widely divergent forms of civic engagement and use varying degrees of interactivity But are young people really apathetic and lacking in motivation Does the Internet have the power to re engage those disenchanted with politics and civic life Based on a major research project funded by the European Commission this book attempts to understand the role of the Internet in promoting young people s participation Examples are drawn from Hungary the Netherlands Slovenia Spain Sweden Turkey and the United Kingdom countries offering contrasting political systems and cultural contexts The book also addresses broader questions about the meaning of civic engagement the nature of new forms of participation and their implications for the future of civic life
