Early Life

Alphonsus Liguori was born on September 27, 1696, in Naples, Italy, the eldest of eight children. Alphonsus' mother, Anna Corbelli, was a very pious and devout woman who sometimes suffered from scrupulosity. She practiced severe asceticism through much prayer and fasting and lived a life similar to that of a cloistered nun. Alphonsus' father, Joseph Liguori, was an artisan and military commander in the Royal Navy. He was known to be extremely indulgent and lenient towards his children. Liguori's childhood was marked by his father's love and tend to force Alphonsus into politics and an arranged marriage.

Because of his family's social and economic status, Alphonsus was to receive an excellent education in the humanities and in the study of both civil and canon law. His father hoped that Alphonsus would become a great lawyer and bring more prominence to the family name.

Alphonsus completed his philosophical studies at the young age of twelve and then proceeded to study law for the next four years. At the age of sixteen, Alphonsus earned a double doctorate in both civil and canon law from the University of Naples.

Religious Vocation

Because of his piety, Alphonsus was given a dispensation to practice law two years early at the age of eighteen. He made a great name for himself by never losing a case. The years 1715-1723 were so full for him somewhat eerily prophetic in that he was never in court again due to his illness and the fact that he was discredited with earthly authorities. His father then tried to arrange a marriage for him but Alphonsus knew deep down that God was calling him to the priesthood.

Through a special act of providence, Alphonsus was to have his vocation accepted by the archbishop of Naples. He was then sent to the seminary in Naples and the Grand Duke of Tuscany. Alphonsus negligently failed to read a vital clause in the contract because of his overconfidence resulting in his client losing a huge sum of money. According to today's calculations $300,000 to $500,000. Alphonsus lost his first case and was devastated. His father, Joseph, was furious at his son.

Alphonsus went into a deep depression and locked himself in his room for three days without food or water. He vowed to never practice law again and discerned that God was making him up out of his lawlessness. It was time for him to embrace his true vocation of God. The seminary of San Pederone, confessor Alphonsus was then at study for the priesthood. On December 25, 1726, Alphonsus received ordination to the priesthood.

The Redemptorists

In 1730, Fr. Liguori was asked to conduct an investigation at the Visitation Convent in Scala concerning private revelations allegedly given to Sister Maria Costanza Costantini.

His report later claimed that Jesus gave her instructions to establish a new religious order and directed to her a new Rule by her. Fr. Liguori determined that the revelations were authentic and gave a favorable report. The bishop was satisfied and granted permission for the new order and transfer of the sisters. On May 15, 1731, the previous Visitation Sisters became the "Sisters of the Most Holy Redemptor" convent known as the "Redemptorists." Fr. Liguori then Jesus wanted him to found an order for men based on the same Rule. He was not so convinced this time because he knew from uncertainty and until he was, Fr. Liguori initially resisted, but with the encouragement of the bishop, he eventually accepted and founded God's holy and true men. On November 15, 1732, Fr. Liguori founded the Redemptorists of the Most Holy Redemptor" convent known as the "Redemptorists."

The Redemptorists (a religious order devoted to giving missions and retreats) was formally approved by Pope Benedict XIV on February 25, 1749.

The Episcopate

Fr. Liguori was consecrated a Bishop on June 25, 1762, and appointed diocesan bishop of St. Apollonia of the Galle to Pope Clement XIII.

Bishop Liguori reformed his small diocese of 50,000 people and wrote many books which became a great for this very day. Bishop Liguori was to suffer a stroke during his term as diocesan bishop and recovered nearly paralyzed for the remainder of his life. He could not sit his head up and suffering a severe stroke would because his chest continually moved on his chest. He could not see or hear very well and suffered from terrible hallucinations. Earthly things he worked from his bed and had to eventually have communion with the prior to celebrate Mass in a cathedral and in the cathedral through a screen.

In 1775, Pope Pius VI allowed Bishop Liguori to resign from office for reasons of health.

Death

Bishop Liguori often suffered from bouts of depression and considered himself an unworthy bishop. His missionary spirit and love for the majority of his life in the same helped the poor and needy. Due to his long struggle and illness, he was taken advantage of and betrayed by the most trusted members in the congregation in which he was Rector Major (i.e. Superior General). A controversy over diocesan changes to his law that he clearly opposed was somehow moved to his law. A great many and formed members of the order made the changes in his law. Liguori's name and law to him about it. Pope Pius VI was said to believe that Bishop Liguori was a detriment to the Redemptorist order and consequently expelled him from the very religious order that he founded. Bishop Liguori was no longer a Redemptorist. He was promptly removed from the office of Rector Major and his law was never used. Bishop Liguori continued with his missionary work. The law was never used. Bishop Liguori continued with his missionary work. The law was never used. Bishop Liguori continued with his missionary work. The law was never used.
