Vincent, Late Montague Burton Professor of International Relations R J Vincent, 1990 Hedley Bull Montague Burton Professor of International Relations at Oxford from 1977 until his death in 1985 was one of the great scholars of his generation He wrote within a tradition of political thought which he himself traced back to Hobbes and Hume and to Grotius and the natural lawyers He not only added to the literature in this tradition but he also showed how it could become a foundation for the study of International Relations In this book leading scholars attempt to come to terms with his contribution to the subject by offering essays on each of the major aspects of his thought The central political question in International Relations is how order might exist amidst anarchy This was the question which Hedley Bull took as his starting point for thought and he returned to it throughout his career notably in his major work The Anarchical Society The exploration of this question is the central theme in the present volume and each of the authors take it as a point of departure and examine it from a different point of view such as society order the Third World strategy and the contemporary system and of professing the subject of International Relations The return to fundamentals involved in this enterprise will make this volume an important and valuable work The contributors are J D B Miller Stanley Hoffman R J Vincent T B Millar Robert Gilpin Jr James Richardson and Carsten Holbraad

O'Hagan, 2002-04-09 West is a concept widely used in international relations but we rarely reflect on what we mean by the term Conceptions of and what the West is vary widely This book examines conceptions of the West drawn from writers from diverse historical and

Spheres of Influence in International Relations Susanna Hast, 2016-04-01 Current events happening around the world especially the humanitarian interventions by NATO and the West within the context of the so called Arab Spring make the understanding of the role of spheres of influence in international politics absolutely critical Hast explores the practical implications and applications of this theory challenging the concept by using historical examples such as suzerainty and colonialism as well as the emergence of a hierarchical international order This study further connects the English School tradition post war international order the Cold War and images of Russia with the concept of the sphere of influence to initiate debate and provide a fresh outlook on a concept which has little recent attention

Neumann, Ole Waever, 2005-06-29 This book presents the state of the art of international relations theory through an analysis of the work of twelve key contemporary thinkers John Vincent Kenneth Waltz Robert O Keohane Robert Gilpin Bertrand Badie John Ruggie Hayward Alker Nicholas G Onuf Alexander Wendt Jean Bethke Elshtain R B J Walker and James Der Derian The authors aim to break with the usual procedure in the field which juxtaposes aspects of the work of contemporary theorists with others presenting them as part of a disembodied school of thought or paradigm A more individual focus can demonstrate instead the well rounded character of some of the leading oeuvres and can thus offer a more representative view of the discipline This book is designed to cover the work of theorists whom students of international relations will read and sometimes struggle with The essays can be read either as introductions to the work of these theorists or as companions to it Each chapter attempts to place the thinker in the landscape of the discipline to identify how they go about studying International Relations and to discuss what others can learn from them
