Good Reader

by Fredric L. Villanueva

In the peaceful town of Agoo, there was a young man who named Tim. He is always excited about his father's homecoming. His father is good carpenter. That day when his father arrived, Tim saw a long paper inside his father's bag. He suddenly became curious and immediately asked what that paper was. His father showed the paper with the drawing of hanging cabinet working plan. Tim asked his father on how to read the working plan which has a lot of different lines and measurements. His father explained how to read it.

Tim's father said that knowing what the different types of lines represent in a construction drawing is one of the most basic blueprint reading skills. He told to Tim to begin with the title block where he will find the first piece of information in construction site plans. Then, study the plan legend which is the key to decoding and understanding basic symbols in the drawings. Tim also needs to find the blueprint's scale and orientation that indicates the difference between the size of the finished structure and the size of the drawing. Lastly,

Tim needs to look for notes from the architect which provide additional context on aspects of the blueprints that would be difficult to interpret.
