Course Requirements:

- 1) Regular attendance in class. If you miss classes during the semester, please talk to me as soon as possible. Regular attendance will help your academic standing, especially if you are "borderline" (e.g. between a B- and a C+). If you know in advance that you will miss a class, please tell us beforehand. At the same time, I reserve the right to lower your grade for poor attendance. It is your responsibility to obtain lecture notes from your fellow students. If you are taking this class pass/fail, you must have a "D" (=65) average in all aspects of the course—including attendance.
- 2) Active participation in class. This means coming prepared and on time, taking notes, being attentive, and participating in class discussions. Students are expected to be punctual. I welcome and encourage input from a wide range of viewpoints. However, I will not tolerate disruptive behavior or discourteous manners and speech in class.
- 3) Three written exams plus one 5-8 page research paper. The exams consist of a mixture between multiple choice and short-essay questions and will be weighted equally, each contributing 25% to your final grade (exams are on September 26 and October 31; the final exam is on Tuesday, December 17, from 4:30- 7pm). You must tell me the topic of your paper by September 26; paper drafts (voluntary) are due on November 14 and the final paper is due on December 3. Together with your attendance and participation record, the paper contributes the final 25% percent of your course grade. I highly encourage you to turn the paper in on time. Your paper grade will be docked by one step for each additional day (e.g., if it's one day late and would have been an A- paper, you would get a B+; you'd get a B if it were two days late, etc.). More details later; no need to panic. If you want to use this course to fulfill a college writing requirement, please talk to me asap; you must declare your intention in writing no later than September 26; in that case, submitting a paper draft by November 14 is mandatory.
- 4) You are expected to do the readings for this course on your own. Most readings are required. Extra-credit readings are clearly marked in the syllabus (in italics). Those contained in the readings packet are marked in the syllabus with a . Before each exam, I will hand out study guides to let you know what you need to extract from the readings. As a rule, we do not discuss the readings in class -- unless I announce it prior to the day the material will be discussed. However, I urge you to do the readings for each week ahead of class. I reserve the right to give "pop-
