Race Religion:

Race, Religion, Region Fay Botham, Sara M. Patterson, 2006-09-15 Racial and religious groups have played a key role in shaping the American West yet scholars have for the most part ignored how race and religion have influenced regional identity In this collection eleven contributors explore the intersections of race religion and region to show how they transformed the West From the Punjabi Mexican Americans of California to the European American shamans of Arizona to the Mexican Chinese of the borderlands historical meanings of race in the American West are complex and are further complicated by religious identities This book moves beyond familiar stereotypes to achieve a more nuanced understanding of race while also showing how ethnicity formed in conjunction with religious and regional identity The chapters demonstrate how religion shaped cultural encounters contributed to the construction of racial identities and served as a motivating factor in the lives of historical actors The opening chapters document how religion fostered community in Los Angeles in the first half of the twentieth century The second section examines how physical encounters such as those involving Chinese immigrants Hermanos Penitentes and Pueblo dancers shaped religious and racial encounters in the West The final essays investigate racial and religious identity among the Latter day Saints and southern California Muslims As these contributions clearly show race religion and region are as critical as gender sexuality and class in understanding the melting pot that is the West By depicting the West as a unique site for understanding race and religion they open a new window on how we view all of America

This Side of Heaven Robert J. Priest, Alvaro L. Nieves, 2006-12-07 In recent years Christian scholars have become increasingly aware of their responsibility to recognize and respond to the challenges posed by ethnic and racial diversity Similarly historically white Christian colleges universities seminaries and congregations are struggling to transform themselves into communities that are welcoming to minorities and sensitive to their needs This collection of all new essays is meant to enable those who are engaged in these initiatives to understand the historical linkage of race ethnicity and Christianity and to explore the ways in which constructive change can be achieved The volume is the product of a long term study funded by the Wabash Center for Teaching and Learning in Theology In the course of this study it emerged that many Christian institutions now offer courses on race and ethnicity but that there is very little relevant literature written from the standpoint of rigorous Christian scholarship This book is intended to fill that gap The authors address such questions as What has been the history of Christian churches and leaders in relation to slavery segregation and apartheid Which biblical texts and doctrines have historically been employed on behalf of racial projects and which are relevant to the racial and ethnic crises of our day How have religious leaders constructively engaged such crises How do congregations shape the values civic commitments understandings and sensitivities of their membership How can local congregations be sites for racial reconciliation and justice initiatives Are there positive models for how churches and other religious institutions have helped to bring healing to racial and ethnic tensions and divides How might Christians in the professions work to bring justice to business education government and other areas of society When good intentions fail to accomplish desired ends how do we analyze what went wrong Written by an interracial and interethnic team of scholars representing diverse disciplines this book will meet a pressing need and set a new standard for the discussion of race and ethnicity in the Christian context
