Race Self Employment And Upward Mobility An Illusive American Dream:

Race, Self-Employment, and Upward Mobility Timothy Mason Bates, 1997 Refuting traditional notions about entrepreneurship and opportunity scholar Timothy Bates finds that across all racial and ethnic lines self employment and upward mobility mainly are open to those who are educated skilled and with significant financial resources Bates s analysis is based largely on the massive Characteristics of Business Owners survey compiled by the U S Census Bureau Toward the Meeting of the Waters Winfred B. Moore, Jr., Orville Vernon Burton, 2022-03-23 2009 Choice Outstanding Academic Title A provocative look into civil rights progress in the Palmetto State from activists statesmen and historians Toward the Meeting of the Waters represents a watershed moment in civil rights history bringing together voices of leading historians alongside recollections from central participants to provide the first comprehensive history of the civil rights movement as experienced by black and white South Carolinians Edited by Winfred B Moore Jr and Orville Vernon Burton this work originated with a highly publicized landmark conference on civil rights held at the Citadel in Charleston The volume opens with an assessment of the transition of South Carolina leaders from defiance to moderate enforcement of federally mandated integration and includes commentary by former governor and U S senator Ernest F Hollings and former governor John C West Subsequent chapters recall defining moments of white on black violence and aggression to set the context for understanding the efforts of reformers such as Levi G Byrd and Septima Poinsette Clark and for interpreting key episodes of white resistance Emerging from these essays is arresting evidence that although South Carolina did not experience as much violence as many other southern states the civil rights movement here was more fiercely embattled than previously acknowledged The section of retrospectives serves as an oral history of the era as it was experienced by a mixture of locally and nationally recognized participants including historians such as John Hope Franklin and Tony Badger as well as civil rights activists Joseph A De Laine Jr Beatrice Brown Rivers Charles McDew Constance Curry Matthew J Perry Jr Harvey B Gantt and Cleveland Sellers Jr The volume concludes with essays by historians Gavin Wright Dan Carter and Charles Joyner who bring this story to the present day and examine the legacy of the civil rights movement in South Carolina from a modern perspective Toward the Meeting of the Waters also includes thirty seven photographs from the period most of them by Cecil Williams and many published here for the first time

Economic Survival Strategies of Turkish Migrants in London Olgu Karan, 2017-03-14 In Economic Survival Strategies of Turkish Migrants in London Karan shows how this collectively created social capital gradually acquired cultural capital as the migrants children became familiar with the English language and as the experience of running businesses in London was shared among the migrants Alongside these processes he sees the emergence of a new form of ethnic identification to our people the T rkiyeli based on the sharing of common experiences And this identification he finds is shared by both Kurdish and Turkish communities as well as by those with religious and non religious beliefs The book provides detailed insights into these migrant experiences while also considering the theoretical explanations It is a really welcome contribution for everyone concerned with the problems and challenges of integration and of identify today Professor Steve Jefferys London Metropolitan University UK This study is about economic survival in the Turkish and Kurdish communities of North London with some interesting comparisons to the longer established Turkish Cypriot community It is to be welcomed that the study spans macro and micro levels Also to be welcomed is that it eschews the idea that identity and culture is fixed and unchanging providing some fascinating and important examples to the contrary and that it moves beyond essentially culturalist approaches to entrepreneurship and even more so mainstream individualist ones Professor Theo

Nichols Cardiff University UK Dr Karan noticed that two ethnic communities in conflictual relationships with each other in home country Turkey are marshalling collective resources in a very cooperative way across ethnic boundaries and forming small business ventures and thus contributing to the empowerment and upgrading of their households and communities

Professor Bahattin Ak it Maltepe University Istanbul Turkey This book based on semi structured interviews and other material shows how the collapse of the textile industry in London pushed members of the Kurdish and Turkish communities to become business owners in catering and retail Having relatively limited education and knowledge in the English language together with discrimination in the mainstream labor made the transition attractive In addition UK s legal framework and strong sense of solidarity within the groups made it possible to set up a business However competition is fierce and authorities hardly supportive To stay in business owners their family members and hired co ethnics have to engage in long working hours leading to social isolation Most business owners are men and relations within the family are patriarchal I found this scholarly and well written book a valuable and welcomed contribution to the literature on how ethnic minorities in rich countries make their living Bjorn Gustafsson Senior Professor Department of Social Work University of Gothenburg Sweden and Research Fellow Institute for the Study of Labor IZA Bonn Germany
