and 2011 Capitalism was first introduced into Malaysia through colonialism specifically to supply Britain with much needed raw materials for its industrial development. Aside from economic exploitation, colonial rule had also produced a highly unequal and socially distant multicultural society whose multifaceted divisions kept the colonial rulers in supreme authority. After independence, Britain ensured that Malaysia became a staunch western ally by structuring in a capitalist system specifically helmed by western educated elites through what appeared to be formal democratic institutions. In such a system, the Malaysian ruling elites have been able to manage the country's democratic processes to its advantage as well as preempt or suppress serious internal challenges to its power often in the name of national stability. As a result, an increasingly unpopular National Front political coalition has remained in power in the country since 1957. Meanwhile, Malaysia's marginal position in the world economy, which has maintained its economic subordination to the developed countries of the west and Japan, has reproduced the internal social inequities inherited from colonial rule and channeled the largest returns of economic growths into the hands of the country's foreign investors as well as local elites associated with the ruling machinery. Over the years, however, the state has lost some of its political legitimacy in the face of widening social disparities, increased ethnic polarization, and prevalent corruption. This has been made possible by extensive exposures of these issues via new social media and communications technology. Hence, informational globalization may have begun to empower Malaysians in a new struggle for political reform, thereby reconfiguring the balance of power between the state and civil society. Unlike other past research, Malaysia in the World Economy combines both macro and micro theoretical approaches in critically analyzing the relationship between capitalist development and democratization in Malaysia within a comparative historical and world systemic context.

Handbook of Ethnic Conflict Dan Landis, Rosita D. Albert, 2012-02-14. Although group conflict is hardly new, the last decade has seen a proliferation of conflicts engaging intrastate ethnic groups. It is estimated that two thirds of violent conflicts being fought each year in every part of the globe, including North America, are ethnic conflicts. Unlike traditional warfare, civilians comprise more than 80 percent of the casualties, and the economic and psychological impact on survivors is often so devastating that some experts believe that ethnic conflict is the most destabilizing force in the post Cold War world. Although these conflicts also have political, economic, and other causes, the purpose of this volume is to develop a psychological understanding of ethnic warfare. More specifically, Handbook of Ethnopolitical Conflict explores the function of ethnic, religious, and national identities in intergroup conflict. In addition, it features recommendations for policy makers with the intention to reduce or ameliorate the occurrences and consequences of these conflicts worldwide.

Authoritarian Populism in Malaysia A. Munro-Kua, 1996-11-13. Socio-economic and political issues are dealt with selectively within a chronological historical framework covering the dramatic colonial impact of 1940-60 until the present day. The state is examined from the point of view of social class as well as communalism to explain the dominance of the ruling coalition over the 37 years since independence. The author argues that authoritarian populism is the concept that best fits the apparent paradox of an enduring regime via the ballot box and the extensive restrictions on the scope of democracy particularly through the repressive apparatus of detention without trial. The underlying theme is a critique and explanation of Malaysia's human rights record.

Transforming Malaysia Anthony Milner, Abdul Rahman Embong, Tham Siew Yean, 2014-02-28. In the wake of Malaysia's 13th General Election, some commentators speak of a sharpening of ethnic politics with Prime Minister Najib blaming a Chinese tsunami for his government's polling setbacks; others are optimistic about the arrival of a new, non-racialized form of politics and the emergence of transethnic solidarity. This book, which engages with both the race paradigm and its opponents, warns that change is likely to come slowly but is not impossible. Malaysia's race paradigm is a man-made ideological construct, one that has been contested in the past and could realistically be contested in the future. In confronting the continuing challenge of globalization, Malaysians should not neglect the history of ideas and ideology as they search for new options.

The Politics of Education in Malaysia Linda J. Reid, 1988. The Changing Urban Demographic Structure in Peninsular Malaysia, 1957-1980 Keng Kun Choo, 1982. Discourses, Agency and Identity in Malaysia Zawawi Ibrahim, Gareth Richards, Victor T. King, 2021-10-23. This book seeks to break new ground both empirically and conceptually in examining discourses of identity formation and the agency of critical social practices in Malaysia. Taking an inclusive cultural studies perspective, it questions the ideological narrative of race and ethnicity that dominates explanations of conflicts and cleavages in the Malaysian context. The contributions are organised in three broad themes: Identities in Contestation, Borders, Complexities and Hybridities; takes a range of empirical studies, literary translation, religion, gender, ethnicity, indigeneity and sexual orientation to break down preconceived notions of fixed identities. This then opens up an examination of Identities and Movements, Agency and Alternative Discourses, in which contributors deal with counter-hegemonic social movements of anti-racism, young people, environmentalism and independent publishing that explicitly seek to open up greater critical democratic space within the Malaysian polity. The third section, Identities and Narratives, Culture and the Media, then provides a close textual reading of some exemplars of new cultural and media practices found in oral testimonies, popular music, film, radio programming and storytelling, who have consciously created bodies of work that question the dominant national narrative. This book is a valuable interdisciplinary work for advanced students and researchers interested in representations of identity and nationhood in Malaysia and for those with wider interests in the fields of critical cultural studies and discourse analysis. Here is a fresh, startling book to aid the task of unbinding the straitjackets of Malay, Chinese and Indian, with which colonialism bound Malaysia's plural inheritance and on which the postcolonial state continues to rely. In it, a panoply of unlikely identities: Bajau liminality, Kelabit philosophy, Islamic feminism.

refugee hybridity and more finds expression and offers hope for liberation Rachel Leow University of Cambridge This book shakes the foundations of race thinking in Malaysian studies by expanding the range of cases perspectives and outcomes of identity It offers students of Malaysia an examination of identity and agency that is expansive critical and engaging and its interdisciplinary depth brings Malaysian studies into conversation with scholarship across the world Sumit Mandal University of Nottingham Malaysia This is a much needed work that helps us to take apart the colonial inherited categories of race which informed the notion of the plural society the idea of plurality without multiculturalism It complicates the picture of identity by bringing in religion gender indigeneity and sexual orientation and helps us to imagine what a truly multiculturalist Malaysia might look like Syed Farid Alatas National University of Singapore Minorities in the Middle Walter P.

Zenner,1991-01-01 Throughout the world certain ethnic groups have made a living through trade and have found a place for themselves in their societies middle strata At times these middlemen minorities have aroused the envy of their neighbors and been subjected to a variety of persecutions In this book Walter P Zenner examines explanations for this phenomenon and analyzes such groups as the Jews the Chinese the Scots and the South Asians abroad Anti-Semitism in Contemporary Malaysia Mary J. Ainslie,2019-06-21 Offering an empirical study into anti Semitism and anti Israel attitudes in Malaysia this book examines the complicated nature and function of such beliefs within the contemporary context mapping these discourses onto different ethnic and economic divisions Based largely upon qualitative interviews with thirty Malaysian participants who detail their own experiences with and perceptions of this phenomenon the project reveals how political actors and organizations in Malaysia achieve political success and maintain political power through investing in the Palestinian cause simultaneously demonizing Israel and Jews to an astounding degree However the book also reveals how in contrast to this state led agenda challenging anti Semitism and pushing for dialogue with Israel has become a means by which progressive citizens can critique authorities and reassert their desire for a liberal and heterogenic Malaysia The book therefore argues that both interest in and even support for Judaism and Israel may be more prominent than the official Malaysian position may suggest with citizens holding far more complex opinions and views upon this subject matter

Malaysia's Parliamentary System Lloyd D Musolf,2019-03-08 Malaysia a new nation whose very existence depends on holding disparate ethnic groups in balance is an example of a developing nation whose legislature does influence policy This pioneering survey and analysis of the Malaysian parliament carefully documents and interprets the interaction of legislator party and voter in Malaysia The study ind The State and Ethnic Politics in SouthEast Asia David Brown,2003-09-02 Ethnic tensions in Southeast Asia represent a clear threat to the future stability of the region David Brown s clear and systematic study outlines the patterns of ethnic politics in Burma Singapore Indonesia Malaysia Thailand The study considers the influence of the State on the formation of ethnic groups and investigates why some countries are more successful in managing their ethnic politics than others Competitive Elections in Developing Countries Myron

The Cauldron of Ethnicity in the Modern World Manning Nash, 1989

The melting pot metaphor conveys an image of individuals from varied origins blending imperceptibly together But when such ingredients as inequality nationalism or perceived injustice are added to the mix the melting pot can become a seething cauldron Manning Nash's examination of ethnicity in the postcolonial world offers insights into the ways that ethnic tensions are engendered and sustained Ethnicity Nash suggests is formed by historical processes based on preexisting elements of society and culture Notions of ethnicity have at their core the recursive metaphor of blood bed and cult body substance kinship and religious belief When individuals who perceive themselves bound by these ties are threatened in some way ethnicity becomes a unifying call to action Nash identifies a number of concepts political self rule economic opportunity cultural identity religious freedom that have been rallying cries for ethnic struggles in the twentieth century He offers a novel analysis of the ways that ethnic groups identify themselves and maintain boundaries and he assesses the circumstances under which ethnicity may be relevant or nearly irrelevant to political economic and cultural dynamics Nash presents three case studies that highlight the multifaceted nature of ethnicity and that each demonstrate a particular mode of comparative method He compares a situation of conquest Ladino and Maya in Mexico and Guatemala a new excolonial nation with nearly equally sized groups Chinese and Malays in Malaysia and a small immigrant group in a large nation Jews in the United States pointing out the many possible combinations of political economic or cultural struggles in ethnic conflicts Even in nations where such conflict is minimal Nash warns ethnicity remains a reservoir of turbulence in a world where power wealth and dignity are unevenly and illegitimately distributed

Chinese Politics in Malaysia Pek Koon Heng, 1988 Unlike most standard works on Malaysian politics which tend to treat Chinese politics as one component part in the complex mosaic of multi racial politics in Malaysia this book focuses on the unique configuration of Chinese political development within that mosaic Highlighting the importance of the Malaysian Chinese Association MCA in engaging the active participation of Malaysians of Chinese descent in the mainstream politics of their adopted homeland the author charts that organization's history social and ideological background and pivotal role in the events surrounding the defeat of communist insurgency and the attainment of independence
