Contagious Divides Nayan Shah, 2001-10-29 Nayan Shah has written a book of exceptional originality and importance. With a focus on issues of body, family, and home, central concerns of urban health reform, he illuminates the role of political leaders, public opinion, and professionals in the construction and reconstruction of race and the making of citizens in San Francisco. He brilliantly analyzes the politics of the movement from exclusion to inclusion, regulation to entitlement, showing it to be an interactive process. Yet as he shows with great subtlety, the mark of race remains. As a study of citizenship and difference, this work speaks to a central theme of American history. Thomas Bender, Director of the International Center for Advanced Studies at NYU and editor of Rethinking American History in a Global Age. Contagious Divides is an ambitious contribution to our understanding of the troubled history of race in America. Nayan Shah offers new insight into the ways that race was inscribed on the streets, the bodies, and the institutions of San Francisco's Chinatown. Above all, he offers powerful examples of the impact of ideas about disease, sexuality, and place on the rhetoric and practice of racial inequality in modern America. Thomas J. Sugrue, author of The Origins of the Urban Crisis.

Identity and Interethnic Marriage in the United States Stanley Gaines, Jr., 2017-05-25 Drawing on psychological and sociological perspectives as well as quantitative and qualitative data, Identity and Interethnic Marriage in the United States considers the ways the self and social identity are linked to the dynamics of interethnic marriage. Bringing together the classic theoretical contributions of George Herbert Mead, Erving Goffman, and Erik Erikson with contemporary research on ethnic identity inspired by Jean Phinney, this book argues that the self and social identity, especially ethnic identity, are reflected in individuals' complex journey from singlehood to interethnic marriage within the United States.

An American Health Dilemma W. Michael Byrd, Linda A. Clayton, 2012-10-02 At times mirroring and at times shockingly disparate to the rise of traditional white American medicine, the history of African American health care is a story of traditional healers, root doctors, granny midwives, underappreciated and overworked African American physicians, scrupulous and unscrupulous white doctors, and scientists, governmental support and neglect, epidemics, and poverty. Virtually every part of this story revolves around race. More than 50 years after the publication of Gunnar Myrdal's 1944 classic about race relations in the USA, An American Health Dilemma presents a comprehensive and groundbreaking history and social analysis of race, race relations, and the African American medical and public health experience. Beginning with the origins of western medicine and science in Egypt, Greece, and Rome, the authors explore the relationship between race, medicine, and health care from the precursors of American science and medicine through the days of the slave trade, with the harrowing middle passage, and equally deadly breaking in period through the Civil War and the gains of reconstruction and the reversals caused by Jim Crow laws. It offers an extensive examination of the history of intellectual and scientific racism that evolved to give sanction to the mistreatment, medical abuse, and neglect of African Americans and other non white people Also included are biographical portraits of black medical pioneers like James McCune Smith the first African American to earn a degree from a European university and anecdotal vignettes like the tragic story of the Hottentot Venus which illustrate larger themes An American Health Dilemma promises to become an irreplaceable and essential look at African American and medical history and will provide an invaluable baseline for future exploration of race and racism in the American health system Postcolonial Literature and the United States: Race, Ethnicity, and Literature , Probing essays that examine critical issues surrounding the United States s ever expanding international cultural identity in the postcolonial era Download Plain Text version At the beginning of the twenty first century we may be in a transnational moment increasingly aware of the ways in which local and national narratives in literature and elsewhere cannot be conceived apart from a radically new sense of shared human histories and global interdependence To think transnationally about literature history and culture requires a study of the evolution of hybrid identities within nation states and diasporic identities across national boundaries Studies addressing issues of race ethnicity and empire in U S culture have provided some of the most innovative and controversial contributions to recent scholarship Postcolonial Theory and the United States Race Ethnicity and Literature represents a new chapter in the emerging dialogues about the importance of borders on a global scale This book collects nineteen essays written in the 1990s in this emergent field by both well established and up and coming scholars Almost all the essays have been either especially written for this volume or revised for inclusion here These essays are accessible well focused resources for college and university students and their teachers displaying both historical depth and theoretical finesse as they attempt close and lively readings The anthology includes more than one discussion of each literary tradition associated with major racial or ethnic communities Such a gathering of diverse complementary and often competing viewpoints provides a good introduction to the cultural differences and commonalities that comprise the United States today The volume opens with two essays by the editors first a survey of the ideas in the individual pieces and second a long essay that places current debates in U S ethnicity and race studies within both the history of American studies as a whole and recent developments in postcolonial theory Amritjit Singh a professor of English and African American studies at Rhode Island College is coeditor of Conversations with Ralph Ellison and Conversations with Ishmael Reed both from University Press of Mississippi Peter Schmidt a professor of English at Swarthmore College is the author of The Heart of the Story Eudora Welty s Short Fiction University Press of Mississippi Race and Ethnicity in Latin America Jorge I Dominguez,2018-12-07 First Published in 1994 In nearly all racially and ethnically heterogeneous societies there is overt national conflict among parties and social movements organized on the basis of race and ethnicity Such conflict has been much less evident in Latin America Scholars have pondered the nature of race and ethnicity with regard to both Afro American and Indo American societies though research on Brazil has been particularly prominent Special attention has been given to the relationship between social class and race and ethnicity Culture and Difference Antonia
