

Issue of Racism Around the World

✓ Exclusively available on IvyPanda

Racism is an artificially constructed social concept manifested through discrimination, prejudice, oppression, and biased attitudes toward groups of people based on their race. Such an attitude is validated by stereotypical thinking that asserts that a particular population of the same race shares the same qualities in terms of their characteristics or behavior. One of the instances of racism around the world is the manifestations of violence against indigenous women, which threatens the safety of this vulnerable group and should be mitigated.

Racism strongly shapes people's attitudes toward others due to their difference. The implications of stereotypical thinking and consecutive racism were the antecedents of the imperial past when wars and conflict justified the opposition between population groups based on their distinction ("Violence against indigenous women," 2022). In particular, the high rates of violence committed against indigenous women are rooted in the inequality and implied superiority of non-indigenous individuals over the representatives of a minority race. Regardless of the proven statistics and omnipresence of such racism manifestations, the impunity of such wrongdoings is alarming ("Violence against indigenous women," 2022). Moreover, the overlapping of gender-based and race-based discrimination through violence demonstrates the depth of the problem. Among the efforts that have been made to combat this problem, research and policy proposals for international human rights law improvement are the most influential. In addition, the Human Rights Council of the United Nations promotes preventative and protection-based measures for indigenous women at risk of discriminatory violence. However, more effective systematic approaches are needed to eliminate racism within legal and social domains.

In conclusion, with the repeated instances of racism occurring worldwide, its persistence is most applicable to underrepresented indigenous people. In particular, female individuals representing indigenous groups are significantly vulnerable in light of racism and discrimination. It is essential to initiate practices to bridge the racial representation gap, eliminate the stereotypical perception of minorities, and promote non-discriminatory attitudes toward all people regardless of race.

Baker, 2016-08-05 This book is about the war on the police that is taking place in America today It is about the unfair and false narratives being promulgated against the police by black activists left wing liberals and the lamestream media It is about racial politics and violence in the black community and how it spills over onto the police It is about controversial uses of force by the police It is about injustices being perpetrated against the police by neer do wells It is also about how to improve the situation overall Scientific Racism in Modern South Africa Saul Dubow, 1995-06-30 A study of the history of intellectual and scientific racism in modern South Africa The Subject of Race in American Science Fiction Sharon DeGraw, 2006-12-19 While the connections between science fiction and race have largely been neglected by scholars racial identity is a key element of the subjectivity constructed in American SF In his Mars series Edgar Rice Burroughs primarily supported essentialist constructions of racial identity but also included a few elements of racial egalitarianism Writing in the 1930s George S Schuyler revised Burroughs normative SF triangle of white author white audience and white protagonist and promoted an individualistic highly variable concept of race instead While both Burroughs and Schuyler wrote SF focusing on racial identity the largely separate genres of science fiction and African American literature prevented the similarities between the two authors from being adequately acknowledged and explored Beginning in the 1960s Samuel R Delany more fully joined SF and African American literature Delany expands on Schuyler s racial constructionist approach to identity including gender and sexuality in addition to race Critically intertwining the genres of SF and African American literature allows a critique of the racism in the science fiction and a more accurate and positive portrayal of the scientific connections in the African American literature Connecting the popular fiction of Burroughs the controversial career of Schuyler and the postmodern texts of Delany illuminates a gradual change from a stable essentialist construction of racial identity at the turn of the century to the variable social construction of poststructuralist subjectivity today     Federal Council Bulletin ,1925
