

been. The Enlightenment ideal of transparent classification, the universal library, must be abandoned along with any messianic pursuit of an eschatological purity. It must be replaced by an ideal of hospitality ('hospitalière langagière') which combines love of one's own language with acceptance of otherness. Resistance is motivated by fear and hatred of the outsider, seen as a menace to our linguistic heritage and identity. The movement between languages may appear insurmountable (as in Chomsky, 'bien infranchissable'), but the empirical rejoinder is in this case a devastating one: since translation exists it must be possible. This in turn becomes the ethical ideal of conduct to others within one's own language, towards those who are not strangers: it is always possible to say the same thing otherwise ('autrement dit', perhaps better translated as to and for the other, otherly).

The interest of this recent position lies partly in its reformulation of Ricoeur's earlier hermeneutics founded on the dialectic of explanation and understanding of writing conceived in terms of singular artefacts. Instead of a move to generalized textuality (or linguisticity if one prefers Gadamer), it now posits endless transitions between specific writings. Rather than the deconstructive or Heideggerian unmasking of false origins, acceptance of our condition within writing (as 'nomads errants') implies an opportunity for creative reconstruction and ethical openness to the other. Writing implies writings. This in turn entails a world of divergent but not therefore hostile or incompatible languages and traditions: comprehension of that multiplicity may then become a model for ethical openness to the other both within and outside our own heritages.

The Politics of Metaphor

Don Miller

Keywords boundary, common sense, politics

Metaphor, like any good metaphor, has more than one face: it is, after all, the very stuff of possible worlds promised or denied. It may free or imprison us; it may trumpet its presence or infiltrate unnoticed. We are understandably ambivalent. One moment it appears to be the embodiment of language; the next its betrayer. It indeed troubles us. Little wonder that metaphor can suddenly be seen as the foundation metaphor of politics itself.

There are two related vectors of the politics of metaphor. One is the ostensibly academic question of the place of metaphor, and hence its meaning. Common western thought still welcomes metaphor, after Aristotle, as an attractive accoutrement of things rhetorical but of having no place in other discourse. We are instantly in the politics of boundaries. Conventional wisdom (and common academic practice) today still insists that metaphor stay in its proper place; elsewhere it is persona non grata.

The Greek tradition gives the modern world a second lean on the issue. Aristotle also saw metaphor as providing a change in perspective, of telling us something new. It is not just a manner of words, it is about thoughts, new thoughts. He was lavish in its praise: it is 'one thing that cannot be learned from others – it is a sign of genius – [it] implies an intuitive perception of the similarity in dissimilars'. Paul Ricoeur, like many others, echoes this sentiment today.

The face of the metaphoric new is one of strangeness, even of a disconcerting incongruity. It upsets the established order. New metaphors may well enthuse those ready to pursue difference; but they frighten others wanting to maintain some existing order of things. Two political moves regularly follow.

Steen, 2023-06-15 If thinking can be fast or slow metaphorical thinking can be fast and slow too But metaphorical thinking does not occur as often and in the ways that many metaphor scholars today think Slow metaphorical thinking does mean however that we can exert more control over metaphor than has previously been acknowledged We can even offer resistance to metaphor Deliberate Metaphor Theory DMT claims that there is an essential processing difference between non deliberate and deliberate metaphor use which can explain all this This book is the first full account of the DMT model for metaphor comprehension It presents explicit conceptualization and formal operationalization and is based on a well known cognitive psychological model for all utterance comprehension in discourse The original three dimensional model of DMT is here refined into a four dimensional model which reveals new research questions and discoveries about the use of metaphor The book brings together numerous cognitive scientific insights into metaphor It has a high degree of interdisciplinary accessibility to all students of metaphor whether master students PhDs post docs or established academics

The Reason of Metaphor Donald F Miller, 1992-03-24 Donald F Miller's theoretical insight into the metaphoricity of thought and his sensitive political critique of Indian culture are bound by the underlying investigation into the relationship between the self and the other There is never the suggestion of equivalence or exclusivity but rather the compulsion to discover the comprehensibility of the incommensurable Playful delightful study Political Studies A vibrant protest against the analytic frame of politics in which concepts are well defined and fundamental truths known The Reason of Metaphor emphasizes the lack of universal standards and truths and displays a dissatisfaction with the dominant western faith in reason Donald Miller argues against any cultural disposition to think only in terms of either/or and seeks to restore the dignity of metaphor both as the heart of all political discourse and as the primary tool of political analysis and demystification Attempting to expand the range of interpretations and options the author encourages an exploration of the both/and and neither/nor logic embodied in the Indian tradition of non dualism and in the ideas of Jacques Derrida Including a masterly analysis of the relation between language and thought as well as a seven fold typology of metaphor this thought provoking volume will be of wide interest to scholars in the fields of political science social theory philosophy language and culture postmodernism and linguistics Miller's writing style is lively and provocative Contributions to Indian Sociology Miller is not only illustrating the exilic dynamism of modernity but also attempting to incorporate the radial energy of polysemia into the language of critique The book begins and ends with a celebration of the creativity that comes with keeping open the tension in dualisms Indian Book Review

Analysing Political Speeches Jonathan Charteris-Black, 2018-08-24 Exploring speeches by public figures such as Emma Watson Tony Blair Donald Trump Julia Gillard and Lady Gaga this engaging textbook explains the ways in which political speeches can be analysed It examines the role of language in speeches and how it can be used to challenge or reinforce prevailing social cultural and political attitudes Each chapter introduces a particular discourse approach and then applies this in a model analysis of a passage of text The chosen texts concern issues of social cultural and political importance that address topics of significant importance to the

Kantian Theory and Human Rights Andreas Follesdal, Reidar Maliks, 2013-11-12 Human rights and the courts and tribunals that protect them are increasingly part of our moral legal and political circumstances The growing salience of human rights has recently brought the question of their philosophical foundation to the foreground Theorists of human rights often assume that their ideal can be traced to the philosophy of Immanuel Kant and his view of humans as ends in themselves Yet few have attempted to explore exactly how human rights should be understood in a Kantian framework The scholars in this book have gathered to fill this gap At the center of Kant's theory of rights is a view of freedom as independence from domination The chapters explore the significance of this theory for the nature of human rights their justification and the legitimacy of international human rights courts

Reconstituting the Body Politic Jonathan M. Hess, 1999 The concept that art must have no instrumental function is a doctrine traditionally traced back to Kant's Critique of Judgment In Reconstituting the Body Politic Jonathan Hess proposes that this concept of autonomous art marks not a withdrawal from the political realm but the ultimate embodiment of Enlightenment political culture a response to a crisis in the institution idealized by Jurgen Habermas as the bourgeois public sphere In Reconstituting the Body Politic Hess explores the moment in late eighteenth century Germany that witnessed the emergence of two concepts that marked the modern era the political concept of the public sphere and the doctrine of aesthetic autonomy By considering the extent to which at its very inception the concept of aesthetic autonomy is inextricably intertwined with the emergence of the concept of the public sphere he offers both a historical study of the political conditions that produced this concept and a contribution to contemporary literary and political theory Reading texts by Kant alongside the writings of contemporaries like Karl Philipp Moritz Hess examines a wide variety of eighteenth century texts discourses and institutions He then enters into a critical dialogue with Walter Benjamin Reinhart Koselleck and Jurgen Habermas to articulate a political critique of this aesthetic The aesthetic theory of Kant's Critique emerges not as a mere defense of the disinterestedness of aesthetic pleasure but as an engaged response to the political limitations of public culture during the Enlightenment Hess argues for an understanding of these concepts as functionally interdependent and he reflects on what this interdependence might mean for the practice of literary and cultural criticism today His work will interest not only Germanists and critical theorists but also art historians and historians of philosophy and political thought      Meaning-Making and Political Campaign Advertising Dorothea Horst, 2018-10-22 Although recent linguistic and media studies research has increasingly dealt with forms of imagery beyond language such as in audiovisual formats only little attention has been paid to the specific media character of audiovisual images This raises a theoretical as well as methodological problem How can processes of figurative meaning making in audiovisual media be adequately conceptualized and described The book intends to bridge this research gap with an analysis of campaign commercials a hitherto largely underexplored object of study in metaphor and metonymy research To achieve this goal a transdisciplinary film analytical and cognitive linguistic account of audiovisual figurativity is developed and examined through a comparative analysis of figurative meaning making processes in German and Polish campaign commercials from 2009 and 2011 By setting the inseparable intertwining of language and cinematic staging sensing and understanding center stage the book provides insight into the dynamic nature and embodied affective grounds of audiovisual figurativity and challenges the long known dichotomies of rational discourse and affective manipulation political message and media effect      Collections of United States Joint Publications Research Service Translations in the Social Sciences Emanating from Communist China United States. Joint Publications Research Service, 1961      Metaphor and Communication Elisabetta Gola, Francesca Ervas, 2016-02-24 This collection of papers presents different views on metaphor in communication The overall aim is to show that the communicative dimension of metaphor cannot be reduced to its conceptual and or linguistic dimension The volume addresses two main questions does the communicative dimension of metaphor have specific features that differentiate it from its linguistic and cognitive dimensions And how could these specific properties of communication change our understanding of the linguistic and cognitive dimensions of metaphor The authors of the papers collected in this volume offer answers to these questions that raise new interests in metaphor and communication      Specialized Communication Thorsten Roelcke, Ruth Breeze, Jan Engberg, 2025-06-02 Specialized communication in science technology or institutions is one of the most important and exciting fields of applied linguistics The handbook captures the current and relevant knowledge of specialized languages and professional communication It promotes international communication on central issues where dialogue is urgently needed concerning both their intellectual underpinning and the day to day practices associated with them
