Macauley, Laura Pustarfi, 2025-06-01 Pioneering essays that reveal the significance of new interdisciplinary understandings of trees and forests especially in terms of their philosophical and ecological dimensions and their importance for addressing the climate emergency This is the first book to apply philosophical thinking to trees Through a series of sixteen diverse essays by leading scholars and writers along with an in depth introduction to the key issues and ideas it examines the new and emerging understanding of trees in science and society Contributors show how these developments encourage a revisioning of philosophical thought and a more sustainable relationship with trees and forests a reconceptualization with important ecological and social implications for responding to deforestation the loss of biodiversity and the climate emergency The interdisciplinary contributions in this collection investigate the many interconnected dimensions of arboreality focusing on subjects related to time mind truth memory being beauty goodness silence wisdom personhood and death The volume engages in a conversation about why trees matter how they can best be protected our obligations to them and even what or who they are Most of the chapters are informed by natural history or ecological science and many share a particular emphasis on continental philosophy and the environmental humanities Reader's Index and Guide ,1919 The Sounds of Life Karen Bakker, 2024-03-12 When we think of animal sounds we tend to think about birds or other highly sonic animals However scientists are learning that a much wider range of animals and even plants use sound and they are figuring this out with the help of AI and other digital technologies This book tells the stories of scientists who are using these digital technologies to decode the hidden world of nonhuman sound The author shows how digital technology so often associated with our alienation from nature is offering an opportunity to listen to plants and animals in powerful ways changing our understanding of nonhuman communication and reviving our connection to the natural world This book is a story of discovery Early chapters describe early 20th century discoveries about whale noise while subsequent chapters describe how digital technologies have revealed the surprising sonic worlds of elephants turtles corals and plants Through these stories we learn that many more plants and animals can make and sense sound and that these sounds are linked to complex communication and social behavior But as we learn this science is not merely about listening to nature in new ways it also creates new possibilities for both conservation and interspecies communication In the book's later chapters the author describes fascinating breakthroughs aided by robotics and AI that may enable people to communicate with other species She ends the book by exploring how conservationists are using bioacoustics to protect endangered species address the threat of noise pollution and create innovative responses to biodiversity loss and climate change Throughout the book the author describes the research of a diverse range of scientists with a particular emphasis on female and indigenous scientists And while she ultimately champions the potential of digital technology she is not naive to its limitations and is careful throughout to highlight the limits of technology Ultimately we see that bioacoustics aided by digital tech offers humanity a powerful window into the nonhuman world Publishers' Circular and Booksellers' Record of British and Foreign Literature ,1917

Darwin Adrian J. Desmond, James Richard Moore, 1994 In lively and accessible style the authors tell how Darwin came to his world changing conclusions and how he kept his thoughts secret for twenty years Hailed as the definitive biography this book explains Darwin's paradox and offers a window on Victorian science theology and mores Contains a wealth of new information and 90 photographs     Science Progress ,1918     Naming Nature Carol Kaesuk Yoon, 2009 Biologist Carol Kaesuk Yoon explores the historical tension between evolutionary biology and taxonomy Carl Linnaeus struggled in the eighteenth century to define species in light of their mutability while still relying on intuitive visual judgments As taxonomy modernized it moved into labs yielding results counterintuitive to humanity's innate predisposition to order the world By conceding scientific authority to taxonomists Yoon argues we've contributed to our own alienation from nature     The Age of Scientific Naturalism Bernard Lightman, Michael S. Reidy, 2016-02-19 Physicist John Tyndall and his contemporaries were at the forefront of developing the cosmology of scientific naturalism during the Victorian period They rejected all but physical laws as having any impact on the operations of human life and the universe Contributors focus on the way Tyndall and his correspondents developed their ideas through letters periodicals and scientific journals and challenge previously held assumptions about who gained authority and how they attained and defended their position within the scientific community
