5. Conditional Formatting: This feature allows users to apply formatting based on specific conditions. For example, cells can be highlighted if they contain a certain value, making it easier to identify trends or outliers.
6. Charts and Graphs: Applications often include the ability to create visual representations of data, such as bar charts, line graphs, and more.
7. Data Validation: Users can set rules and constraints on the type of data they can be entered into specific cells. This helps ensure data integrity and accuracy.
8. Data Import and Export: Applications often allow to import data from external sources or export data to other formats like CSV. This facilitates data integration and comparison with other tools and applications.
