SPACE TO CREATE IN CHINESE SCIENCE FICTION. Robert G. Price, 2017 This study of Chinese science fiction will be of interest to students SF fans and even to those with a mere passing fancy of science fiction in the Middle Kingdom The book is split into three main parts firstly the development of Anglo American and Chinese SF are compared mainly for those who are new to the genre Next the unspoken limiting guidelines for authors that no one can will universally agree on are discussed Also historical case studies demonstrate why freedom to create is absolutely vital to the progressive developments of companies and even countries which also rings true for China s role in the 21st century Finally a sampling of 12 short stories by three major authors over the last forty years are examined for content that agrees with statements made about SF in China by experts in SF studies as well as authors themselves All this helps even a novice in the subject to gain important insights into what it means to be an SF author in China

Diverse Voices in Chinese Translation and Interpreting Riccardo Moratto,Martin Woesler,2021-02-02 This book presents a thoughtful and thorough account of diverse studies on Chinese translation and interpreting TI It introduces readers to a plurality of scholarly voices focusing on different aspects of Chinese TI from an interdisciplinary and international perspective The book brings together eighteen essays by scholars at different stages of their careers with different relationships to translation and interpreting studies Readers will approach Chinese TI studies from different standpoints namely socio historical literary policy related interpreting and contemporary translation practice Given its focus the book benefits researchers and students who are interested in a global scholarly approach to Chinese TI The book offers a unique window on topical issues in Chinese TI theory and practice It is hoped that this book encourages a multilateral dynamic and international approach in a scholarly discussion where more often than not approaches tend to get dichotomized This book aims at bringing together international leading scholars with the same passion that is delving into the theoretical and practical aspects of Chinese TI

Shaping Minds Guy Ramsay,2008-11-18 Mental illness is an increasing concern of government health services across the globe It is timely therefore that community education about mental illness is subject to discourse analysis Shaping Minds explores how the psychoeducational message is presented to Chinese speaking audiences in China Taiwan and Australia The book uniquely examines community education materials in a language rarely examined by discourse analysts but which is nevertheless spoken by around a fifth of the world s population and constitutes an important minority language throughout the Western world The book identifies the discursive features that characterise the Chinese language texts and analyses them cross culturally highlighting the impact of cultural traditions political systems and dominant conceptions of society These insights into how Chinese language community health pamphlets and handbooks are positioned to shape the minds of readers will engage both discourse analysts and mental health professionals providing services to Chinese speaking communities across the globe

Paperbound Books in Print ,1992 The Bloomsbury Handbook of Modern Chinese Literature in Translation Cosima Bruno,Lucas Klein,Chris Song,2023-10-19 Offering the first systematic overview of modern and contemporary Chinese literature from a translation studies perspective this handbook provides students researchers and teachers with a context in which to read and appreciate the effects of linguistic and cultural transfer in Chinese literary works Translation matters It always has of course but more so when we want to reap the benefits of intercultural communication In many universities Chinese literature in English translation is taught as if it had been written in English As a result students submit what they read to their own cultural expectations they do not read in translation and do not attend to the protocols of knowing engagements and contestations that bind literature and society to each other The Bloomsbury Handbook of Modern Chinese Literature in Translation squarely addresses this pedagogical lack Organised in a tripartite structure around considerations of textual social and large scale spatial and historical circumstances its thirty plus essays each deal with a theme of translation studies as emerged from the translation of one or more Chinese literary works In doing so it offers new tools for reading and appreciating modern and contemporary Chinese literature in the global context of its translation offering in depth studies about eminent Chinese authors and their literary masterpieces in translation The first of its kind this book is essential reading for anyone studying or researching Chinese literature in translation Singing the Village Rachel Harris,2004-12-23 This is a highly readable account of the musical and ritual life of the Sibe people who have lived in the remote desert region of Chinese Central Asia since the eighteenth century Descendants of the military garrisons of Imperial China they remember their heritage through song and through song they communicate with their ancestors aided by their powerful shamans The book describes contemporary musical life in the Sibe villages and discusses the impact of fifty years of Communism on their unique culture Samples of the music appear both in the book and on the free audio CD

Selected Stories of Lu Hsun Lu Hsun,2004-01-01 When I was young I too had many dreams Most of them came to be forgotten but I see nothing in this to regret For although recalling the past may make you happy it may sometimes also make you lonely and there is no point in clinging in spirit to lonely bygone days However my trouble is that I cannot forget completely and these stories have resulted from what I have been unable to erase from my memory Literature and the Work of Universality Alice Duhan,Stefan Helgesson,Christina Kullberg,Paul Tenngart,2024-07-22 In an age of accelerating ecological crises global inequalities and democratic fragility it has become crucial to achieve renewed articulations of human commonality With anchorage in critical theory as well as world literary studies this volume approaches literature and modes of literary thinking as a key resource for such a task Universality is understood here not as an established universalism but as a horizon towards which intellectual inquiry and literary practices orient themselves In the field of world literature there is by now a wide repertoire of epistemological resources through which claims to universality can be both questioned and reconfigured If at one end of the spectrum world literature confronts us with the spectre of homogenisation and the commodification of difference under a regime of global capitalism at another end renewed forms of philological anthropological and ecological attentiveness to the particulars of languages and texts within the crucible of connected histories allow for defamiliarising perspectives both on received historical narratives and aesthetic practices Vernacularity emerges here as a central point of reference for constructing the universal from within the particular the idiomatic and the experiences of social subordination or complicity      Redefining History Chun-shu Chang, Shelley Hsueh-lun Chang, 1998

An intimate examination of early Ch'ing China
