Objective

Selective awareness is the tendency to get more and more familiarized and involved with certain aspect of the environment or completely cease to do so.

We will try to analyze the continuum of selective awareness from clinical, social and psychological perspectives.

Van Boxtel, 2013-06-03

Although often used in everyday speech and in the scholarly literature selective attention and consciousness lack clear undisputed definitions Partly because of this deficit there exists a lively debate on the relationship between the two Nevertheless attention has been studied scientifically for a long time because a variety of tasks allow researchers to control several of its aspects e g focused and feature based attention Consciousness as a scientific subject of study has emerged more recently but is now rapidly gaining traction Scientific studies of consciousness concern the state or level of consciousness e g awake as opposed to in coma dreamless sleep or under anaesthesia as well as the contents of consciousness or the phenomenology of perception With the increase in consciousness focused research there is a concomitant surge in research examining the relationship between attention and consciousness This relationship between attention and consciousness is the topic of this Research Topic Contributions related to or focused solely on attention or on consciousness will not be considered. It had long been assumed that attention and consciousness are inextricably intertwined two sides of the same coin. However, recently substantial evidence has emerged that attention and consciousness are interacting but separable processes. It is however debated how tight the interactions are and what the exact nature of the relationship is. Therefore, we invite researchers from different camps to provide opinionated but balanced literature reviews. Different groups will interpret the same data in different ways. We feel that combining these views in one Research Topic is immensely valuable to researchers from different fields. Apart from reviews, we also invite potential contributors to provide new and exciting evidence in the form of original contributions that may support any of the different views. Even though attention and consciousness are critical aspects of many different cognitive processes, they are mainly studied though not exclusively in the domain of visual perception. In other sensory modalities, e.g., olfaction or audition, it is currently not clear whether distinctions between attention and consciousness exist, which is even more true for other cognitive processes such as memory. Therefore, we specifically invite contributions covering the auditory, somatosensory, olfactory, and memory domain. We ask all contributors to provide discussions on the relationship between attention and consciousness and focus on 1. the influence of attention on sensory processing, 2. the formation of conscious perception, 3. the evidence for unconscious processing and its modulation by attention, 4. potential indications for dissociations between attention and consciousness, e.g., does paying attention to a stimulus decrease performance on e.g., a discrimination task, 5. neuroimaging and neurophysiology data pertaining to these questions. Often, one is caught in one's own research field and lacks the time or the knowledge to delve into another field. This Research Topic should provide a great overview in great breadth of the current state of knowledge on the links between attention and consciousness and their interactions in several different sensory modalities.

Psychology of Attention Elizabeth A. Styles, 1997 Considers the nature of attention and covers the most recent developments in this field. It offers a comprehensive and accessible guide to the complex research of this area that will be essential reading for all levels of students. Occupation-based Activity Analysis Heather Thomas, 2012 Beginning with defining the domain of practice through the areas of occupation, students will learn to identify occupations and activities while learning to understand the importance of analysis to their domain of practice. Students and practitioners will also discover how to analyze the demands inherent to the activity itself and the context which surrounds the activity and the people engaged in it. The component steps to analyzing activities or occupations are uncovered in separate chapters; each aspect reinforces concepts that are foundational to occupational therapy practice. Interaction Between Attention and

Language Systems in Humans Ramesh Kumar Mishra, 2015-10-09 This original volume examines the interface between attentional and linguistic processes in humans from the perspectives of psycholinguistics and cognitive science. It systematically explores how autonomy and automaticity are reflected during language processing in a variety of situations. A true mechanistic explanation of how humans process language would require a complete understanding of the interface language has with important cognitive systems like attention, memory, as well as with vision. Interdisciplinary work in this area has so far not been able to generate a substantial theoretical position on this issue. This volume therefore looks at different language processing domains such as speaking, listening, reading, as well as discourse and text processing to evaluate the role attention plays in such performances and also at how often linguistic inputs affect attentional processing. In this sense, it proposes that the attention language interface is bidirectional. It also considers applied issues like language disorders, bilingualism, and illiteracy where the attention language interface seems especially relevant as a theoretical apparatus for research investigations. Therefore, this volume brings closer theoretical explanations from the language sciences and cognitive sciences. It argues that language processing is multi-modal in its very essence and many conceptual structures in language evolve out of a complex interplay among participating cognitive systems such as attention and memory supported by vision and audition.

Dictionary of Marketing Communications Norman A. P. Govoni, 2004 Students of marketing must sort their way through a plethora of concepts, terms, and jargon. Norm Govoni's Dictionary is the answer. Compact, accurate, and accessible, it stands as an authoritative resource and a valuable adjunct to our marketing course materials. Robb Kopp, Babson College. The Dictionary of Marketing Communications is the most authoritative and comprehensive lexicon of marketing terms available today. Presented in down-to-earth language, it promises to be an essential and enduring resource for students, beginners, and seasoned professionals alike. Suzanne B. Walchli, University of the Pacific. The Dictionary of Marketing Communications contains more than 4,000 entries, including key terms and concepts in the promotion aspect of marketing, with coverage of advertising, sales promotion, public relations, direct marketing, personal selling, and e-marketing. Growing out of a database of terms compiled over many years by the author for use in his marketing classes at Babson College, this dictionary is a living, growing document reflecting the changing dynamics of the marketing profession. It will be an essential reference to practitioners, managers, academics, students, and individuals with an interest in marketing and promotion. Key Features: Provides an up-to-date, accurate, comprehensive collection of terms and concepts that are essential for an understanding of the basic promotion functions of marketing. Entries are clear, applied, practical, and non-technical, designed for both students and professionals. International entries are included to give the reader a greater awareness of the language of marketing than has been previously available. About the Author: Norman A. Govoni is Professor of Marketing at Babson College, where he served as Division Chair for fifteen years (1975-1990). Cognitive Psychology PressGrup Academician Team, Despite its essential role memory consolidation can also be susceptible to interference leading to forgetting or distortion of memories Retroactive interference occurs when newly acquired information disrupts the retention of previously learned material This effect can hinder the consolidation of older memories and highlights the competitive nature of memory processing Furthermore contextual factors such as environmental cues and emotional states during the consolidation phase influence how well memories are retained For example memories tested in the same context in which they were encoded tend to demonstrate enhanced recall a phenomenon known as context dependent retrieval This principle underscores that both encoding and consolidation work synergistically to optimize memory performance
