Discover the Sidewalks of Washington, D.C. Robert Seidenberg, 1989 Word on the Street, 2011 Images of illustrations and text inscribed in wet cement of Washington D C sidewalks Sustainable Urban Transport Financing from the Sidewalk to the Subway Arturo Ardila-Gomez, Adriana Ortega-Sánchez, 2015-12-31 Urban transport systems are essential for economic development and improving citizens quality of life To establish high quality and affordable transport systems cities must ensure their financial sustainability to fund new investments in infrastructure while also funding maintenance and operation of existing facilities and services However many cities in developing countries are stuck in an underfunding trap for urban transport in which large up front investments are needed for new transport infrastructure that will improve the still small scale and perhaps poor quality systems but revenue is insufficient to cover maintenance and operation expenses let alone new investment projects The urban transport financing gap in these cities is further widened by the implicit subsidies for the use of private cars which represent a minority of trips but contribute huge costs in terms of congestion sprawl accidents and pollution Using an analytical framework based on the concept of Who Benefits Pays 24 types of financing instruments are assessed in terms of their social economic and environmental impacts and their ability to fund urban transport capital investments operational expenses and maintenance Urban transport financing needs to be based on an appropriate mix of complementary financing instruments In particular for capital investments a combination of grants from multiple levels of government and loans together with investments through public private partnerships could finance large projects that benefit society Moreover the property tax emerges as a key financing instrument for capital operation and maintenance expenses By choosing the most appropriate mix of financing instruments and focusing on wise investments cities can design comprehensive financing for all types of urban transport projects using multi level innovative revenue sources that promote efficient pricing schemes increase overall revenue strengthen sustainable transport and cover capital investments operation and maintenance for all parts of a public transport system from the sidewalk to the subway

Goldstein, 2016-01-22 Many of Bolivia s poorest and most vulnerable citizens work as vendors in the Cancha mega market in the city of Cochabamba where they must navigate systems of informality and illegality in order to survive In Owners of the Sidewalk Daniel M Goldstein examines the ways these systems correlate in the marginal spaces of the Latin American city Collaborating with the Cancha s legal and permanent stall vendors fijos and its illegal and itinerant street and sidewalk vendors ambulantes Goldstein shows how the state s deliberate neglect and criminalization of the Cancha s poor a practice common to neoliberal modern cities makes the poor exploitable governable and consigns them to an insecure existence Goldstein s collaborative and engaged approach to ethnographic field research also opens up critical questions about what ethical scholarship entails Transit Street Design Guide National Association of City Transportation Officials,2016-04-14 The Transit Street Design Guide sets a new vision for how cities can harness the immense potential of transit to create active and efficient streets in neighborhoods and downtowns alike Building on the Urban Street Design Guide and Urban Bikeway Design Guide the Transit Street Design Guide details how reliable public transportation depends on a commitment to transit at every level of design Developed through a new peer network of NACTO members and transit agency partners the Guide provides street transportation departments transit operating agencies leaders and practitioners with the tools to actively prioritize transit on the street Site Web de NACTO Accessible Rights-of-way Lois Thibault,1999

Sidewalk City Annette Miae Kim,2015-05-27 For most the term public space conjures up images of large open areas community centers for meetings and social events the ancient Greek agora for political debates green parks for festivals and recreation In many of the world s major cities however public spaces like these are not a part of the everyday lives of the public Rather business and social lives have always been conducted along main roads and sidewalks With increasing urban growth and density primarily from migration and immigration rights to the sidewalk are being hotly contested among pedestrians street vendors property owners tourists and governments around the world With Sidewalk City Annette Miae Kim provides the first multidisciplinary case study of sidewalks in a distinctive geographical area She focuses on Ho Chi Minh City Vietnam a rapidly growing and evolving city that throughout its history her multicultural residents have built up alternative legitimacies and norms about how the sidewalk should be used Based on fieldwork over 15 years Kim developed methods of spatial ethnography to overcome habitual seeing and recorded both the spatial patterns and the social relations of how the city s vibrant sidewalk life is practiced In Sidewalk City she transforms this data into an imaginative array of maps progressing through a primer of critical cartography to unveil new insights about the importance and potential of this quotidian public space This richly illustrated and fascinating study of Ho Chi Minh City s sidewalks shows us that it is possible to have an aesthetic sidewalk life that is inclusive of multiple publics aspirations and livelihoods particularly those of migrant vendors Catalogue of the Public Documents of the ...
