

A close-up photograph of a woman with light brown hair and bangs, her eyes closed in a peaceful expression as she smells a bouquet of flowers. The bouquet includes several white daisies and a large, vibrant red flower. The background is a soft, out-of-focus grey. Overlaid on the right side of the image is the text 'How Music Shapes Our Feelings, Choices, and Life' in a white, cursive-style font with a thin black outline. The text is arranged in four lines, with the final line 'Life' partially cut off by the bottom edge of the frame.

demonstrates how the zoom brought life and energy to cinema decades before the zoom boom of the 1970s and reveals how the zoom continues to play a vital and often overlooked role in the production of contemporary film and television

Film Study Frank Manchel, 1990-10 The four volumes of Film Study include a fresh approach to each of the basic categories in the original edition Volume one examines the film as film volume two focuses on the thematic approach to film volume three draws on the history of film and volume four contains extensive appendices listing film distributors sources and historical information as well as an index of authors titles and film personalities

Channels of Discourse, Reassembled Robert Allen, 2010-01-27 Since its original publication in 1987 Channels of Discourse has provided the most comprehensive consideration of commercial television drawing on insights provided by the major strands of contemporary criticism semiotics narrative theory reception theory genre theory ideological analysis psychoanalysis feminist criticism and British cultural studies The second edition features a new introduction by Robert Allen that includes a discussion of the political economy of commercial television Two new essays have been added one an assessment of postmodernism and television the other an analysis of convergence and divergence among the essays and the original essays have been substantially revised and updated with an international audience in mind Sixty one new television stills illustrate the text Each essay lays out the general tenets of its particular approach discusses television as an object of analysis within that critical framework and provides extended examples of the types of analysis produced by that critical approach Case studies range from Rescue 911 and Twin Peaks to soap operas music videos game shows talk shows and commercials Channels of Discourse Reassembled suggests new ways of understanding relationships among television programs between viewing pleasure and narrative structure and between the world in front of the television set and that represented on the screen The collection also addresses the qualities of popular television that traditional aesthetics and quantitative media research have failed to treat satisfactorily including its seriality mass production and extraordinary popularity The contributors are Robert C Allen Jim Collins Jane Feuer John Fiske Sandy Flitterman Lewis James Hay E Ann Kaplan Sarah Kozloff Ellen Seiter and Mimi White

Prophetically Incorrect Robert H. Jr. Woods, Paul D. Patton, 2010-08-01 The Bible includes prophetic speech and at times the church and its representatives are called to speak prophetically But in our media saturated age when many claim to speak for God how can we evaluate the avalanche of supposedly prophetic speech What does it mean to truly be prophetic And when Christians should speak prophetically how can they do so in a biblical and effective way Using vivid examples this book offers clear guidelines for creating critiquing and consuming popular media as well as practical suggestions for faithful communication It also helps readers think critically about communication technology The book includes a foreword by Quentin Schultze and a preface by Clifford Christians

Videostyle in Presidential Campaigns Anne Johnston, Lynda Kaid, 2000-10-30 Since 1952 when Eisenhower's media consultants decided they could warm up the General's personality and overcome selective exposure by using short spots on television advertising has played a major role in American presidential campaigns By the late 1990s candidates and their political parties spend hundreds of millions on TV ads Political spots have become the dominant form of communication between voters and candidates Kaid and Johnston report the results of a systematic and thorough analysis of virtually all of the political commercials used in general election campaigns from 1952 through the 1996 presidential contest Important to scholars students and other researchers involved with political communications mass communications and presidential elections Image Bite Politics Maria Elizabeth Grabe,Erik Page Bucy,2009-03-02 Image Bite Politics systematically assesses the visual presentation of presidential candidates in network news coverage of elections and connects these visual images with shifts in public opinion The authors highlight the remarkably potent influence of television images when it comes to evaluating leaders Audio in Media Stanley R.
