and selected 89 papers for presentation. The papers presented here encompass the extensive domain of databases together with the other conferences and workshops of the DEXA event cluster: a vast part of applied computer science was covered. In this way DEXA has blazed the trail. At this point we would like to acknowledge to all institutions which actively supported this conference and made it possible. These are IUT Université Aix Marseille II, FAW DEXA Association, the Austrian Computer Society and Microsoft Research.

Textual Information Access Eric Gaussier, François Yvon, 2013-02-04. This book presents statistical models that have recently been developed within several research communities to access information contained in text collections. The problems considered are linked to applications aiming at facilitating information access: information extraction and retrieval, text classification and clustering, opinion mining, comprehension aids, automatic summarization, machine translation, visualization. In order to give the reader as complete a description as possible, the focus is placed on the probability models used in the applications, concerned by highlighting the relationship between models and applications and by illustrating the behavior of each model on real collections. Textual Information Access is organized around four themes: informational retrieval and ranking models, classification and clustering, regression, logistics, kernel methods, Markov fields, etc. multilingualism and machine translation and emerging applications such as information exploration.

Graph Drawing Software Michael Jünger, Petra Mutzel, 2012-12-06. Automatic Graph Drawing is concerned with the layout of relational structures as they occur in Computer Science, Database Design, Data Mining, Web Mining, Bioinformatics, Metabolic Networks, Business Informatics, Organization Diagrams, Event Driven Process Chains or the Social Sciences, Social Networks. In mathematical terms, such relational structures are modeled as graphs or more general objects such as hypergraphs, clustered graphs or compound graphs. A variety of layout algorithms that are based on graph theoretical foundations have been developed in the last two decades and implemented in software systems. After an introduction to the subject area and a concise treatment of the technical foundations for the subsequent chapters, this book features 14 chapters on state of the art graph drawing software systems ranging from general tool boxes to customized software for various applications. These chapters are written by leading experts; they follow a uniform scheme and can be read independently from each other.

Advances in Information Retrieval David E. Losada, Juan M. Fernández-Luna, 2005-04-01. Welcome to Santiago de Compostela. We are pleased to host the 27th Annual European Conference on Information Retrieval Research (ECIR 2005) on its first visit to Spain. These proceedings contain the refereed full papers and poster abstracts presented at ECIR 2005. This conference was initially established by the Information Retrieval Specialist Group of the British Computer Society (BCS IRSG) under the name Annual Colloquium on Information Retrieval Research. The colloquium was held in the United Kingdom each year until 1998 when the event was organized in Grenoble, France. Since then the conference venue has alternated between the United Kingdom and Continental Europe, reflecting the growing European orientation of ECIR. For the same reason, in 2001 the event was renamed European Conference on Information Retrieval Research. In recent years ECIR has continued to grow and has become the major European forum for the discussion of research in the field of information retrieval ECIR 2005 was held at the Technical School of Engineering of the University of Santiago de Compostela Spain In terms of submissions ECIR 2005 was a record breaking success since 124 full papers were submitted in response to the call for papers This was a sharp increase from the 101 submissions received for ECIR 2003 which was the most successful ECIR in terms of submissions ECIR 2005 established also a call for posters and 41 posters were submitted Paper and poster submissions were received from across Europe and further a field including North America South America Asia and Australia which is a clear indication of the growing popularity and reputation of the conference

Svoboda, 2019-10-31 This book provides a perspective on the application of machine learning based methods in knowledge discovery from natural languages texts By analysing various data sets conclusions which are not normally evident emerge and can be used for various purposes and applications The book provides explanations of principles of time proven machine learning algorithms applied in text mining together with step by step demonstrations of how to reveal the semantic contents in real world datasets using the popular R language with its implemented machine learning algorithms The book is not only aimed at IT specialists but is meant for a wider audience that needs to process big sets of text documents and has basic knowledge of the subject e g e mail service providers online shoppers librarians etc The book starts with an introduction to text based natural language data processing and its goals and problems It focuses on machine learning presenting various algorithms with their use and possibilities and reviews the positives and negatives Beginning with the initial data pre processing a reader can follow the steps provided in the R language including the subsuming of various available plug ins into the resulting software tool A big advantage is that R also contains many libraries implementing machine learning algorithms so a reader can concentrate on the principal target without the need to implement the details of the algorithms her or himself To make sense of the results the book also provides explanations of the algorithms which supports the final evaluation and interpretation of the results The examples are demonstrated using realworld data from commonly accessible Internet sources Beyond open access: visions for open evaluation of scientific papers by post-publication peer review Nikolaus Kriegeskorte, Diana Deca, A scientific publication system needs to provide two basic services access and evaluation The traditional publication system restricts the access to papers by requiring payment and it restricts the evaluation of papers by relying on just 2-4 pre publication peer reviews and by keeping the reviews secret As a result the current system suffers from a lack of quality and transparency of the peer review evaluation process and the only immediately available indication of a new paper's quality is the prestige of the journal it appeared in Open access is now widely accepted as desirable and is slowly beginning to become a reality However the second essential element evaluation has received less attention Open evaluation an ongoing post publication process of transparent peer review and rating of papers promises to address the problems of the current system However it is unclear how exactly such a system should be designed The evaluation system steers the attention of the scientific community and thus the very course of science For better or worse the most visible papers determine the direction of each field and guide funding and public policy decisions Evaluation therefore is at the heart of the entire endeavor of science As the number of scientific publications explodes evaluation and selection will only gain importance A grand challenge of our time therefore is to design the future system by which we evaluate papers and decide which ones deserve broad attention So far scientists have left the design of the evaluation process to journals and publishing companies However the steering mechanism of science should be designed by scientists The cognitive computational and brain sciences are best prepared to take on this task which will involve social and psychological considerations software design and modeling of the network of scientific papers and their interrelationships This Research Topic in Frontiers in Computational Neuroscience collects visions for a future system of open evaluation Because critical arguments about the current system about these papers will focus on constructive ideas and comprehensive designs for open evaluation systems Design decisions include Should the reviews and ratings be entirely transparent or should some aspects be kept secret Should other information such as paper downloads be included in the evaluation How can scientific objectivity be strengthened and political motivations weakened in the future system Should the system include signed and authenticated reviews and ratings Should the evaluation be an ongoing process such that promising papers are more deeply evaluated How can we bring science and statistics to the evaluation process e g should rating averages come with error bars How should the evaluative information about each paper e g peer ratings be combined to prioritize the literature Should different individuals and organizations be able to define their own evaluation formulae e g weighting ratings according to different criteria How can we efficiently transition toward the future system Ideally the future system will derive its authority from a scientific literature on community based open evaluation We hope that these papers will provide a starting point

Life Sally Fincher, Panos Markopoulos, David Moore, Roy Ruddle, 2007-03-11 The eighteenth annual British HCI Conference chose as its theme Design for Life Life has many facets from work of course or should we say inevitably to travel fun and other forms of leisure We selected 23 full papers out of 63 submitted which covered our interaction with computer systems in a variety of types of life situation including games tourism and certain types of work and also covered a variety of stages in our lives from the young to the elderly These papers were complemented by others that described more traditional aspects of research in the field of human computer interaction In putting together the programme we followed a three stage process First each paper was reviewed by at least three reviewers Then a member of the committee conducted a meta review Finally all sets of reviews were considered by the technical chairs who assembled a programme that was submitted to and approved by the full committee This process was greatly assisted by the use of the Precision Conference Solutions web based submission system Even more important of course were the volunteer reviewers themselves In recognition this year we have made an award for the best reviewer as well as one for the best paper
