The Smells and Senses of Antiquity in the Modern Imagination

Adeline Grand-Clément, Charlotte Ribeyrol, 2021-12-16 This volume tackles the role of smell under explored in relation to the other senses in the modern rejection reappraisal and idealisation of antiquity Among the senses olfaction in particular has often been overlooked in classical reception studies due to its evanescent nature which makes this sense difficult to apprehend in its past instantiations And yet the smells associated with a given figure or social group convey a rich imagery which in turn connotes specific values perfumes scents and foul odours both reflect and mould the ways in which a society thinks or acts Smells also help to distinguish between male and female citizens and strangers and play an important role during rituals The Smells and Senses of Antiquity in the Modern Imagination focuses on the representation of ancient smells both enticing and repugnant in the visual and performative arts from the late 18th century up to the 21st century The individual contributions explore painting sculpture literature and film but also theatrical performance museum exhibitions advertising television series historical reenactment and graphic novels which have all played a part in reshaping modern audiences perceptions and experiences of the antique Prelogical Experience Edward S. Tauber, Maurice R.

Green, 2013-04-15 One of the foundational texts of interpersonal psychoanalysis Prelogical Experience 1959 is a pioneering attempt to elaborate an interpersonal theory of personality that encompasses the nonpropositional nonverbal dimension of human experience Prelogical processes the authors hold cannot be consigned to infancy rather they shape experience throughout life and are especially salient in relation to dreams emotion perception and the arts Of special note is Tauber and Green's elaboration of the clinical situation that grows out of an appreciation of prelogical experience In a striking anticipation of contemporary thinking they approach patient therapist interaction in terms of the continuous exchange of presentational data by patient and analyst These data enable patient and therapist alike to know more about the other than can ever be expressed in propositional terms This perspective assigns an important role to what Piaget would term the cognitive unconscious in the clinical process It likewise sustains a view of the countertransference which includes the analyst's own dreams as a vital source of presentational data about the patient As Donnel Stern notes in his Introduction these and other insights amount to a surprisingly contemporary description of psychoanalytic treatment

Sex and Gender

H. T. Wilson, 2023-12-28 This book shows how different a focus on gender is from one on sex whether in scholarly thinking professional activity or public policy making It indicates how incorrect contemporary renditions of the difference between them is provides an explanation of this tension and difference based on the critical analysis of key institutions and shows the serious consequences of this confusion for women in particular across a wide range of institutional processes and practices in North America and Western Europe This confusion out of the failure to understand adequately the historical origins of sex as a civil designation in a political economy and in state taxation and census concerns and the corollary determination of spokesmen for the emerging capitalist and industrial nation state to extirpate the last vestiges of gender given its tie to a pre industrial kinship system found in towns and local communities This is a forcefully written study which integrates material from a vast range of disciplines and professional practices It also seeks to integrate salient work in women s and feminist studies into a critique of key institutions and practices if advacned industrial societies it uses critical theory and makes this available to students and practitioners as well as scholars and academics
