Patch, In First Lessons in Nature Study Edith Patch provides an engaging and accessible introduction to the natural world for young readers Through a series of carefully crafted lessons Patch guides children in observing and understanding the plants animals and natural phenomena that surround them This book serves as an invaluable resource for parents and educators seeking to foster a love and appreciation for nature in the next generation

Darwin and the Nature of Species David N. Stamos, 2012-02-01 Since the 1859 publication of On the Origin of Species the concept of species in biology has been widely debated with its precise definition far from settled And yet amazingly there have been no books devoted to Charles Darwin's thinking on the term until now David N Stamos gives us a groundbreaking historical reconstruction of Darwin's detailed yet often misinterpreted thoughts on this complex concept Stamos provides a thorough and detailed analysis of Darwin's extensive writings both published and unpublished in order to reveal Darwin's actual species concept Stamos argues that Darwin had a unique evolutionary species concept in mind one that was not at all a product of his time Challenging currently accepted views that believe Darwin was merely following the species ascriptions of his fellow naturalists Stamos works to prove that this prevailing nominalistic view should be overturned This book also addresses three issues pertinent to the philosophy of science the modern species problem the nature of concept change in scientific revolutions and the contextualist trend in professional history of science

A Treatise of Human Nature by David Hume L.A.

Selby-Bigge, Hume David, 1964

Descartes and the Metaphysics of Human Nature Justin Skirry, 2005-11-27 The traditional account of mind-body union attributed to Descartes supposes that the immaterial thinking mind and the material non-thinking body interact by means of efficient causation that the mind causes events in the body e.g. the voluntary raising of an arm and vice versa e.g. the visual sensation of a tree But this gives rise to a notorious philosophical problem how can this causal interaction occur between the spiritual mind and the physical body since they have absolutely nothing in common and cannot come into contact with one another Justin Skirry's book shows how Descartes in fact avoids this enormous problem Skirry argues through a critical re-examination of Cartesian metaphysics that the union of mind and body is not as most scholars have always maintained constituted by efficient causal interaction for Descartes because this would not result in one complete human nature but in an aggregate of two numerically distinct natures Descartes argues in the 6th Meditation and elsewhere that mind-body union is constituted by what the scholastics called a substantial union i.e. the union that form/mind has with matter/body This substantial union produces a whole that is more than the sum of its parts the capacity for modes of sensation and voluntary bodily movement are emergent properties of the whole substantially united mind and body Therefore the Cartesian problem of mind-body efficient causal interaction is avoided altogether since efficient causal occurrences between mind and body play no role in explaining the existence of these modes
