The Naval Flank of the Western Front Mark Karau,2015-02-10 Belgium was once described as the dagger held at the throat of England a collection of provinces that had long been a critical factor in British foreign policy and the traditional concern was that Belgium and especially the Flanders coast would fall into the hands of the strongest continental power In 1914 Germany's occupation of Belgium brought about the spectre of enemy ships only seventy miles from the British coast and the coast of Flanders became effectively the naval flank of the Western Front Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz was one of the few within the German navy who recognised the strategic potential of the three ports of Ostend Zeebrugge and Brugges that they were closer to England than the Helgoland Bight for access by small craft and brought Germany to within a few hours sailing of the Thames estuary This new book tells the story of the creation purpose operations and career of the MarineKorps Flandern The Flanders harbours should have allowed the German navy to strike dangerous blows at vital British traffic in the Channel and southern North Sea but the MarineKorps was unable to fulfill the great expectations of von Tirpitz The author not only explains how the German conducted operations but also explains how the opportunities presented by the Flemish occupation were wasted away A significant and insightful book on an important theatre of the War
