From the early sixteenth century thousands of fishermen traders from Basque Breton and Norman ports crossed the Atlantic each year to engage in fishing whaling and fur trading which they regarded as their customary right In the seventeenth century these rights were challenged as France sought to establish an imperial presence in North America granting trading privileges to certain individuals and companies to enforce its territorial and maritime claims Bitter conflicts ensued precipitating more than two dozen lawsuits in French courts over powers and privileges in New France In Disputing New France Helen Dewar demonstrates that empire formation in New France and state formation in France were mutually constitutive Through its exploration of legal suits among privileged trading companies independent traders viceroys and missionaries this book foregrounds the integral role of French courts in the historical construction of authority in New France and the fluid nature of legal political and commercial authority in France itself State and empire formation converged in the struggle over sea power control over New France was a means to consolidate maritime authority at home and supervise major Atlantic trade routes The colony also became part of international experimentations with the chartered company an innovative Dutch and English instrument adapted by the French to realize particular strategic political and maritime objectives Tracing the developing tools of governance privilege granting and capital formation in New France Disputing New France offers a novel conception of empire one that is messy and contingent responding to pressures from within and without and deeply rooted in metropolitan affairs     Old Trails and New Directions Carol M Judd, Arthur J. Ray, 1980-12-15 Fur trade scholarship has changed considerably in recent years The tempo of research has quickened and the field has become more multidisciplinary bringing together scholars in archaeology economics ethnohistory geography history and anthropology The papers in this volume reflect recent developments in several specific areas of research mapping native cultures social and labour history personalities the Pacific coast and economics The moving of the Hudson s Bay Archives from London to Winnipeg in 1974 has patriated an incredibly rich source of information on many aspects of Canadian history and the effects of this superb collection being available to Canadian scholars are just beginning to be felt In this volume we can see that the history of the fur trade in Canada is not merely the story of the world s first great multi national the Hudson s Bay Company but a study of a complex society during a period of more than two centuries Languages customs transportation personalities marriage and even sex are looked at in the wide ranging papers in this book     The Principal Navigations, Voyages, Traffiques, and Discoveries of the English Nation Richard Hakluyt, 1889     Foreign Commerce and Navigation of the United States United States. Bureau of the Census, 1970 The statistics of Immigration and passenger movement are included in the report on foreign commerce to 1895 and for 1893 1894 are also published separately     Annals of Commerce, Manufactures Fisheries and Navigation (etc.) David Macpherson, 1805     A New Epitome of Practical Navigation Samuel Dunn, 1777     The Foreign Commerce and Navigation of the United States for the Year Ending ... United States.
