Perception Of Print Reading Research In Experimental Psychology:

Perception of Print Ovid J.L. Tzeng, Harry Singer, 2017-03-27 In the late 1970s reading research had become a true interdisciplinary endeavour with flavours of anthropology artificial intelligence cognitive psychology educational psychology linguistics neuroscience and instructional technology Given appropriate integration results from these diverse perspectives can enhance our understanding of reading behaviour tremendously both in its acquisition and in its skilled functioning Thus the enthusiasm for such interdisciplinary interaction had been quite intense for some time In the years before publication the National Reading Conference had been doing everything possible to accelerate this interaction Originally published in 1981 the chapters in this book are the fruits of that effort The research focuses on specifying skills in identifying alphabetical elements and the rules that govern their combination on constructing models that characterize the recognition of individual words and the interpretation of texts and on discovering what factors are responsible for blocking the normal acquisition process in many children Chapters 2 to 12 of this book reflect these changing foci They are nevertheless sandwiched by two chapters that deal with the historical background and future outlook of reading instruction

The Alphabet and the Brain Derrick de Kerckhove, Charles J. Lumsden, 2013-04-17 This book is a consequence of the suggestion that a major key to ward understanding cognition in any advanced culture is to be found in the relationships between processing orthographies lan guage and thought In this book the contributors attempt to take only the first step namely to ascertain that there are reliable con stancies among the interactions between a given type of writing and specific brain processes And among the possible brain processes that could be investigated only one apparently simple issue is being explored namely whether the lateralization of reading and writing to the right in fully phonemic alphabets is the result of formalized but essentially random occurrences or whether some physiological determinants are at play The original project was much more complicated It began with Derrick de Kerckhove s attempt to establish a connection between the rise of the alphabetic culture in Athens and the development of a theatrical tradition in that city from around the end of the 6th century B c to the Roman conquest The underlying assumption first proposed in a conversation with Marshall McLuhan was that the Greek alphabet was responsible for a fundamental change in the psychology of the Athenians and that the creation of the great tragedies of Greek theatre was a kind of cultural response to a con dition of deep psychological crisis

Basic Processes in Reading Derek Besner, Glyn W. Humphreys, 2012-11-12 The chapters in this new book span the range of reading processes from early visual analysis to semantic influences on word identification thus providing a state of the art summary of current work and offering important contributions to prospective reading research Basic Processes in Reading examines both future plans and past accomplishments in the world of word identification research Three chapters provide a futuristic view taking a parallel distributed processing approach to semantic priming phonology and the identification of old words and the learning of new words Reviews on eye movements in reading and semantic priming on word identification provide a retrospective summary of work on these issues as well as solid pointers for future investigations Other chapters provide new demonstrations of the importance of phonological contributions to word identification of interactive processes in the identification of handwritten words and a re evaluation of the processes involved in the neuropsychological syndrome described as letter by letter reading

Handbook of Reading Research, Volume II Rebecca Barr, Michael L. Kamil, Peter B. Mosenthal, P David Pearson, 2016-11-18 A comprehensive overview of important contemporary issues in the field of reading research from the mid 1980s to mid 1990s this well received volume offers readers an examination of literacy through a variety of lenses some permitting microscopic views and others panoramic views A veritable who's who of specialists in the field chapter authors cover current methodology as well as cumulative research based knowledge Because it deals with society and literacy the first section provides the broadest possible view of literacy The second section defines the range of activities culturally determined to be a part of the enterprise known as literacy The third focuses on the processes that individuals engage in when they perform the act of reading The fourth section visits the environment in which the knowledge that comprises literacy is passed on from one generation to the next The last section an epilogue to the whole enterprise of reading research provides apt philosophical reflection

Cognitive Processing of the Chinese and the Japanese Languages C.K.

Leong, Katsuo Tamaoka, 2013-03-09 The area of cognitive processing of Chinese and Japanese is currently attracting a great deal of attention by leading cognitive psychologists They aim to find out the similarities and differences in processing the morphosyllabic Chinese and Japanese syllabary as compared with alphabetic language systems Topics under the processing of Chinese include the use of phonological codes in visual identification of Chinese words the constraint on such phonological activation recognition of Chinese homophones Chinese sentence comprehension and children's errors in writing Chinese characters Topics under the processing of Japanese include the automatic recognition of kanji within an interactive activation framework On reading and Kun reading of kanji characters processing differences between hiragana and kanji the effect of polysemy on katakana script and the writing behavior of Japanese and non Japanese speakers The interactive activation model provides the phonologic orthographic links in processing both language systems The present volume should add greatly to our understanding of this topic Many of the contributors are internationally known for their experimental psychological work

Executive Control Processes in Reading B. K. Britton, S. M. Glynn, 2013-10-28 First published in 1987 The first thing the reader of this volume needs to know is What is executive control in reading exactly Executive control processes coordinate the functioning of the human cognitive system This book seeks to examine how mature skilled readers use information about the difficulty and importance of text and of their comprehension tasks in allocating their reading time and effort

The Cambridge Handbook of Literacy David R. Olson, Nancy Torrance, 2009-02-16 This volume demonstrates how literacy is more than learning to read and write Literacy creates communities organizes personal and social lives makes possible civil society and the rule of law and underwrites the commitment of both modern and developing societies to universal education and ever higher levels of literate competence Everything that is involved in being and becoming literate is the concern of this interdisciplinary group of distinguished scholars Orthography, Phonology, Morphology and Meaning R. Frost, Marian Katz, 1992-10-20 The area of research on printed word recognition has been one of the most active in the field of experimental psychology for well over a decade However notwithstanding the energetic research effort and despite the fact that there are many points of consensus major controversies still exist This volume is particularly concerned with the putative relationship between language and reading It explores the ways by which orthography phonology morphology and meaning are interrelated in the reading process Included are theoretical discussions as well as reviews of experimental evidence by leading researchers in the area of experimental reading studies The book takes as its primary issue the question of the degree to which basic processes in reading reflect the structural characteristics of language such as phonology and morphology It discusses how those characteristics can shape a language's orthography and affect the process of reading from word recognition to comprehension Contributed by specialists the broad ranging mix of articles and papers not only gives a picture of current theory and data but a view of the directions in which this research area is vigorously moving Contemporary Reviews in Neuropsychology Harry Whitaker, 2012-12-06 Contemporary Reviews in Neuropsychology arrays the most current research on hemispheric specialization of the brain Special attention is given to the functioning of the right hemisphere in the processing of spatial and sequential information Among the topics discussed are the nature of hemisphere asymmetries lexical processing spatial memory and humor and the right hemisphere Cognition and the Symbolic Processes Robert R. Hoffman, David S. Palermo, 2014-01-14 This volume is a festschrift dedicated to James J Jenkins a pioneer in many areas of experimental psychology It has three major goals to provide a forum for debate on current theoretical issues in cognitive psychology to capture the state of the art in reviews of research methods and results and to generate ideas for new research directions and methodologies Contributors including Jenkins former students and present colleagues ponder fundamental questions such as How do people learn to read What happens during the processes of speech perception How do people acquire problem solving skills How do cognitive and motor skills develop and integrate with one another Many chapters focus specifically on ecological and applied cognitive psychology Specific topics covered include visual and speech perception language memory motivation child development problem solving and pedagogy Graphonomics H.S.R. Kao, R. Hoosain, G.P. Van Galen, 1986-09-01 Graphonomics is the newly created term for the science of handwriting and other graphic skills The Second International Conference on the Neural and Motor Aspects of Handwriting attracted contributions from experimental psychologists neuropsychologists neurologists linguists biophysicists and computer scientists from 12 countries This volume the proceedings of the conference features clinical studies of the neural basis of agraphia and dysgraphia from brain damaged patients The motor aspects of handwriting are further extended to new areas of interests Research on handwriting in the English Chinese and Japanese languages forms the first attempt in the field to investigate handwriting from the psycholinguistic perspective of different languages Proceedings of the Twentieth Annual Conference of the Cognitive Science Society Morton Ann Gernsbacher, Sharon J. Derry, 2022-05-16

This volume features the complete text of the material presented at the Twentieth Annual Conference of the Cognitive Science Society As in previous years the symposium included an interesting mixture of papers on many topics from researchers with diverse backgrounds and different goals presenting a multifaceted view of cognitive science This volume contains papers posters and summaries of symposia presented at the leading conference that brings cognitive scientists together to discuss issues of theoretical and applied concern Submitted presentations are represented in these proceedings as long papers those presented as spoken presentations and full posters at the conference and short papers those presented as abstract posters by members of the Cognitive Science Society Language Awareness and Learning to Read J.

Downing, R. Valtin, 2012-12-06 During the 1970s there was a rapid increase in interest in metacognition and metalinguistics The impetus came from linguistics psychology and psycho linguistics But with rather unusual rapidity the work from these scientific disciplines was taken over in education This new direction in these various areas of academic study was taken simultaneously by several different investigators Although they had varying emphases their work sometimes appears to be overlapping despite this it has been rather difficult to find a consensus This is reflected in the varying terminology used by these independent investigators linguistic awareness metacognition metalinguistic ability task awareness lexical awareness and so on For educators these developments presented a glittering array of new ideas that promised to throw light on children's thinking processes in learning how to read Many reading researchers and graduate students have perceived this as a new frontier for the development of theory and research However the variety of independent theoretical approaches and their accompanying terminologies has been somewhat confusing Teaching Chinese Literacy in the Early Years Hui

Li, 2014-08-21 The Chinese language is now used by a quarter of the world's population and is increasingly popular as a second language Teaching Chinese Literacy in the Early Years comprehensively investigates the psychology pedagogy and practice involved in teaching Chinese literacy to young children This text not only explores the psycholinguistic and neuropsychological processing involved in learning Chinese literacy but also introduces useful teaching methods and effective practices relevant for teaching within early years and primary education Key issues explored within this text include The Psycholinguistics of Chinese Literacy Neuropsychological Understanding of Chinese Literacy The pedagogy of teaching Chinese as a first language The Pedagogy of Teaching Chinese as a second language Teaching Chinese literacy in early childhood settings Assessing Chinese Literacy Attainment in the Early Years With the addition of two reliable Chinese literacy scales Teaching Chinese Literacy in the Early Years is an essential text for any student lecturer or professional teacher who is interested in learning and teaching Chinese literacy Indigenous Cognition: Functioning in Cultural

Context J.W. Berry, S.H. Irvine, E.G. Hunt, 2012-12-06 Cognitive psychology has established itself as one of the major branches of the discipline with much to its credit in such areas as decision making information processing memory and learning Similarly the assessment of cognitive abilities has become one of the hallmarks of the practice of psychology in the school in the factory and in the clinic In recent years these two branches have begun to interact and the two approaches have begun mutually to engage each other A third trend that of cross cultural cognitive psychology has been informed both by experimental cognitive sciences and by the practice of ability assessment see for example Berry and Dasen 1974 Cole and Scribner 1974 However the reverse has not been true the cognitive processes and abilities of much of the world's peoples studied by cross cultural psychologists have not been introduced to psychologists working in these two Western traditions see Irvine and Berry 1987 This volume attempts to begin this introduction by asking the question What is known about the cognitive functions of other peoples that could enable extant psychology to become more comprehensive to attain a universal cognitive psychology Who are these other peoples and by extension what then is indigenous cognition The first question is rather easy to answer but the second is more difficult

Cognitive Processing of Chinese and Related Asian Languages Hsuan-Chih Chen, 1997 The aim of this volume is to integrate the most recent research in the cognitive processing of Chinese and related Asian languages i.e. Japanese and Korean into a single academic reference Because so much more was learned about the topic over the past several years the proposed volume is intended to provide something like a state of art review and to capture what is currently going on in a new and rapidly expanding field

Literacy and Orality David R. Olson, Nancy Torrance, 1991-07-26 A detailed examination of the relationship between orality and literacy includes the traditions upon which they are based and the functions which they serve as well as the psychological and linguistic processes that influence them

Psychology of Human Movement Mary M. Smyth, Alan W. Wing, 2013-10-22 Approx 339 pages

Language Processing in Bilinguals (RLE Linguistics C: Applied Linguistics) Jyotsna Vaid, 2014-01-10 For decades bilingualism has resisted definition If bilingualism is defined as habitual fluent correct and accent free use of two languages few individuals would qualify as bilinguals A more viable approach may be to concede that bilingual can be seen instead as a range of points on a continuum that allows for differences The psychological study of bilingualism encompasses a wide range of phenomena including the organization and representation of the grammar the perception and production of language mixing cerebral lateralization of language functions and patterns of recovery of aphasic patients This book collects together an international array of researchers in experimental psychology linguistics and neuropsychology who bring their expertise to bear on the critical issues that are raised by the bilingual phenomena

Visual Object Processing Glyn W. Humphreys, M. Jane Riddoch, 2017-03-27 Originally published in 1987 this book attempted to bring together work by researchers concerned with the functional and neurological mechanisms underlying visual object processing and the ways in which such mechanisms can be neurologically impaired The editors termed it a Cognitive Neuropsychological approach because they believed it tried to relate evidence from neurological impairments of visual object processing to models of normal performance in a new and important way Two broad aims are apparent One is to test models of normal performance by evaluating how well the models account for the patterns of impairment and preservation of abilities that can occur following brain damage The other is to use models of normal performance to further their understanding of acquired disorders of visual object processing These aims distinguish the approach from neuropsychological work whose primary aim is to relate acquired deficits to the sites of damage and from work in the field of cognitive psychology which attempts only to develop models of normal performance
