Peacebuilding in the Balkans Paula M. Pickering,2018-07-05 After suffering years of war Bosnia is now the target of international efforts to reconstruct and democratize a culturally divided society The global community s strategy has focused on reforming political institutions influencing the behavior of elite populations and cultivating nongovernmental organizations But expensive efforts to promote a stable peace and a multiethnic democracy can be successful only if they resonate among ordinary people Otherwise such projects will produce fragile institutions and alienated citizens who will be susceptible to extremists eager to send them back into war Paula M Pickering challenges the conventional wisdom that common people are merely passive recipients of peacebuilding projects Instead in Peacebuilding in the Balkans she shows how ordinary people particularly minorities in Bosnia understand elite rhetoric and actively shape reconstruction Pickering s years of fieldwork direct observation interviews and analysis of many surveys has yielded a precise understanding of how ordinary citizens react to and influence peacebuilding programs in their neighborhoods workplaces municipal agencies and other real life social settings The evidence suggests that international efforts to rebuild an inclusive Bosnia will be futile unless they pay sufficient attention to citizens varying ties to ethnic groups indigenous forms of civic activity and the development of nondiscriminatory employment and responsive political institutions Pickering s insights from reconstruction in the Balkans have important implications for peacebuilding elsewhere in Eurasia

Religion, Class, and Identity Mary J. Hickman,1995 This book examines the experience of the Irish Catholic working class and their descendants in Britain as a minority experience which has been profoundly shaped by the responses of both the British state and the Catholic church to Irish migrants The book challenges notions that the Irish have smoothly assimilated to British society and demonstrates how the reception and policies that greeted the Irish in 19th century Britain created the framework within which the experiences of Irish migrants to Britain in the 20th century have been formed Research about the education of Irish Catholics is used to investigate how a labour migrant group who in the 19th century were large visible and problematised were socially constructed as invisible by the mid 20th century through a process of incorporation and denationalization

Ethnic Conflict and Development Ralph R. Premdas,1995 This work offers empirical evidence and theoretical insights into the behaviour of the ethnic factor in the developmental experience on one Third World country Guyana The role of pressure groups ethnic domination and rigged ballot boxes are some of the issues explored

Britannia's Crescent Danièle Joly,1995 An analysis of Muslims in British society It examines community issues mosques and the structure of Islam politics and the local state how Muslims relate to education in Britain and changes for the new generation

Israeli Scholars' Publications in Human Geography and Development Studies Shaul Krakover,Y. Gradus,2000

Ethnic Mobilisation in a Multi-cultural Europe John Rex,Beatrice Drury,1994 This book deals with two interrelated and intertwined topics One is that of the meaning of the concept of the multi cultural society in Europe both as an ideal and as a means of describing actual societies The other is that of ethnic political organizations and the role that they do and should desirably play in a democratic Europe Unlike the question of racism on which most liberal scholars are united the problem of ethnic politics in the multi cultural society gives rise to considerable controversy which is well represented in this book For many the notion of the multi cultural society is a desirable ideal but for others it involves a kind of apartheid incompatible with the ideals of liberty and equality in such a society and a political situation in which minority groups can be manipulated and controlled These themes have been the basis of considerable research in Britain but it has become clear in communications with European scholars that many of the assumptions underlying British research are by no means acceptable to researchers in Europe

Consuming Tradition, Manufacturing Heritage Nezar Alsayyad,2013-12-16 From the Grand Tour to today s packages holidays the last two centuries have witnessed an exponential growth in travel and tourism and as the twenty first century unfolds people of every class and from every country will be wandering to every part of the planet Meanwhile tourist destinations throughout the world find themselves in ever more fierce competition those places marginalized in today's global industrial and information economy perceiving tourism as perhaps the only means of surviving But mass tourism has raised the local and international passions as people decry the irreversible destruction of traditional places and historic sites Against these trends and at a time when standardized products and services are marketed worldwide there is an increasing demand for built environments that promise unique cultural experiences This has led many nations and groups to engage in the parallel processes of facilitating the consumption of tradition and of manufacturing tradition The contributors to this volume drawn from a wide range of disciplines address these themes within the following sections Traditions and Tourism Rethinking the Other Imaging and Manufacturing Heritage Manufacturing and Consuming Global and Local Their studies dealing with very different times environments and geographic locales will shed new light on how tourist gaze transforms the reality of built spaces into cultural imagery

Through Different Eyes David Parker, 1995 Analysis of the experiences and changing identities of young Chinese people in Britain

Housing, 'race', Social Policy and Empowerment Malcolm L. Harrison, 1995 This work explores a range of concerns in housing social policy and ethnic relations It offers an analysis of issues in the welfare state drawing on empirical material from housing research Topics covered include the black voluntary housing movement the experiences of ethnic minority building contractors and the impact of racism in housing
