Permanent Londoners Judi Culbertson, Tom Randall, 1991      Permanent Londoners Judi Culbertson, 1996      Historic London Stephen Inwood, 2012-06-28 There is hardly a city in the world with richer historical and cultural associations than London. It is a place where history has been made for thousands of years and where it is still being made today. It is not a city frozen in time, preserved in its ancient medieval pomp, but a place that has been at or near the centre of national life for a thousand years and at the forefront of international political, cultural and economic history for each of the past five centuries. Here Stephen Inwood, bestselling author of A History of London and a lifelong student of the city's rich and vibrant history, offers an explorer's guide to London's past. As you walk the streets of the capital, whether you live in the city or are just visiting it, Inwood will show you London's history all around you: stretches of Roman wall, medieval churches and Tudor houses that survived the Great Fire, monastic buildings that survived the Reformation, street markets first established centuries ago that survive today, Georgian streets and squares that were spared the wreckers' ball, Wren churches, Victorian terraces and Inns of Court that survived the Blitz. He takes you to the London of Chaucer and Shakespeare, Samuels, Pepys and Johnson, Dickens and Darwin, T. S. Eliot and George Orwell. It is the perfect book to have in your pocket or your bag as you go about your business in this most fascinating of cities.

Past Meets Present John H. Jameson, Sherene Baugher, 2007-04-17 In the face of an increasing public interest and demand for information, archaeologists are starting to collaborate with historians, educators, interpreters, museum curators, exhibit designers, landscape architects and other cultural resource specialists to devise the best strategies for translating an explosion of archaeological information for the public. In turn, some communities are partnering with archaeologists to become active players in the excavation, interpretation and preservation of their heritage. The last decade has witnessed numerous applications of public interpretation and outreach models and an increased interest in establishing partnerships between professional practitioners in public interpretation and educational institutions such as museums and schools. These developments have occurred in the context of a realization that community-based partnerships are the most effective mechanism for long-term success. It is clear that there is a need for a volume that addresses these latest trends and provides case studies of successful partnerships.

Capital Histories Patricia L. Garside, 2019-01-15 First published in 1998, this book reprints eight articles from The London Journal covering the history of London from the middle ages to the twentieth century. Each is an extensive bibliographical essay updated by the individual contributors for this anthology. The book comes with a new introduction from a previous editor of the journal, Patricia Garside, and also with a specially commissioned guide to sources for London history and the libraries and special collections that house them. The London Journal was founded in 1975 to provide a forum for the study of London history, an eclectic and multi-disciplinary field. As well as articles based on original research, The London Journal has carried notes and comments, viewpoint and review articles and general surveys of particular aspects of London life. In the past few decades, the specialist literature on London has become extensive intricate and dense The opportunity for a systematic review of this literature presented itself on the twentieth anniversary of the founding of The London Journal and the core of the work presented here first appeared in Volume 20 2 November 1995 Each of the authors specialists in one of seven periods from Roman to contemporary times was asked to evaluate the literature that had appeared in their field of London expertise during the last 20 years For this book each contribution has been updated where possible to take account of the very latest publications

London Richard Tames,2006 Richard Tames describes how London has been chronicled described celebrated named and mapped over the twenty centuries of its existence to become a city treasured even by those who have never set foot in it as a byword for innovation and diversity This book has been written for those who knowing London know that it is too vast too complex too elusive ever to be fully known but yet would like to know it better still
