Living at the Borderlines Cynthia Barrow-Giles,Don D. Marshall,2003 The idea that the Caribbean could be devolving downward in wealth function and sovereignty has become a recurrent theme in both academic and popular literature By focusing on some of the current issues facing Caribbean nation states the editors and contributors to this volume hope to inform and contribute to the ongoing debate on the broad themes of Sovereignty and Development and the prospects for survival of Caribbean nation states in a globalised world While some of the papers seek to describe and analyse the range and complexity of the challenge to national sovereignty and public policy autonomy others focus on issues relating to small country size gender and ethnic tensions security constitutional reform and regional integration The result is a balanced perspective the contributors do not gloss over the problem faced by the region At the same time they do not present a hyper pessimistic picture of Caribbean development prospects What gives the collection a particular dynamism is the way in which the authors have challenged the terrain of political possibilities traditionally defined for small peripheral societies

Foreign Policy and the Black (Inter)National Interest Charles P. Henry,2000-08-31 Examines African American influence on United States foreign policy in the post Cold War era

Corporate versus National Interest in US Trade Policy Richard L. Bernal,2020-10-31 This book provides a history of the

WTO US EU banana dispute through the lens of a major actor the US owned multinational firm Chiquita Brands International It documents and explains how Chiquita succeeded in having the Clinton administration pursue a trade policy of forcing the European Union to dismantle its preferential banana import regime for exports from the small English speaking Caribbean ESC countries The export of bananas was critically important to the social stability and economic viability of these countries and that was in the national security interest of the United States The experience indicates that succeeding in this goal was detrimental to U S national security interest in the Caribbean The European Union and the Developing Countries Olufemi Babarinde, Gerrit Faber, 2005-02-01 The relationships between the European Union and developing countries in Africa the Caribbean and the Pacific or ACP countries have been called a model for North South development cooperation The Lom Conventions were the embodiment of this model After 25 years the European Union and the ACP group signed a new partnership agreement the Cotonou Agreement Given the disappointing results of the former conventions this book investigates the innovations in the EU ACP relationship Authors from different backgrounds including law political science and economics analyze the forces that gave rise to the new agreement as well as the negotiating process of the new agreement and the negotiations that are taking place to produce the planned Economic Partnership Agreements EPA that are to replace the existing non reciprocal trade preferences that are incompatible with WTO law The potential benefits of EPAs are discussed as is the alternative in the shape of an improved and general preferential system The amended mechanism for aid delivery the increased stress on political dialogue between the partners and the introduction of more civil society participation in the cooperation are extensively analyzed and discussed The effects of the introduction of the Euro and the effect of the planned stimuli on Direct Foreign Investment in ACP economies make this volume very complete in coverage of the ACP EU relations Its relevance extends far beyond the ACP EU relationship as it shows and discusses particular solutions for problems that occur in North South relations in general Between Preservation and Exploitation Kemi Fuentes-George, 2016-03-25 A study of biodiversity governance analyzes the factors that determine the effectiveness of transnational advocacy networks and the importance of justice claims to conservation In the late 2000s ordinary citizens in Jamaica and Mexico demanded that government put a stop to lucrative but environmentally harmful economic development activities bauxite mining in Jamaica and large scale tourism and overfishing on the eastern coast of the Yucat n Peninsula In each case the catalyst for the campaign was information gathered and disseminated by transnational advocacy networks TANs of researchers academics and activists Both campaigns were successful despite opposition from industry supporters Meanwhile simultaneous campaigns to manage land in another part of the Yucat n and to conserve migratory birds in Egypt had far less success In this book Kemi Fuentes George uses these four cases to analyze factors that determine the success or failure of efforts by TANs to persuade policymakers and private sector actors in developing countries to change environmental behavior Fuentes George argues that in order to influence the design and implementation of policy TANs must generate a scientific consensus create social relationships with local actors and advocate for biodiversity in a way that promotes local environmental justice Environmentally just policies would allow local populations access to their lands provided they use natural resources sustainably Justice claims are also more likely to generate needed support among local groups for conservation projects In their conservation efforts Jamaica Mexico and Egypt were attempting to meet their obligations under the UN Convention on Biological Diversity and other regional agreements Fuentes George s innovative analysis shows the importance of local environmental justice for the implementation of international environmental treaties
