Congress. Senate. Interstate and Foreign Commerce, 1950 Living within Limits Garrett Hardin, 1995-04-06 We fail to mandate economic sanity writes Garrett Hardin because our brains are addled by compassion With such startling assertions Hardin has cut a swath through the field of ecology for decades winning a reputation as a fearless and original thinker A prominent biologist ecological philosopher and keen student of human population control Hardin now offers the finest summation of his work to date with an eloquent argument for accepting the limits of the earth's resources and the hard choices we must make to live within them In Living Within Limits Hardin focuses on the neglected problem of overpopulation making a forceful case for dramatically changing the way we live in and manage our world Our world itself he writes is in the dilemma of the lifeboat it can only hold a certain number of people before it sinks not everyone can be saved The old idea of progress and limitless growth misses the point that the earth and each part of it has a limited carrying capacity sentimentality should not cloud our ability to take necessary steps to limit population But Hardin refutes the notion that goodwill and voluntary restraints will be enough Instead nations where population is growing must suffer the consequences alone Too often he writes we operate on the faulty principle of shared costs matched with private profits In Hardin s famous essay The Tragedy of the Commons he showed how a village common pasture suffers from overgrazing because each villager puts as many cattle on it as possible since the costs of grazing are shared by everyone but the profits go to the individual The metaphor applies to global ecology he argues making a powerful case for closed borders and an end to immigration from poor nations to rich ones The production of human beings is the result of very localized human actions corrective action must be local Globalizing the population problem would only ensure that it would never be solved Hardin does not shrink from the startling implications of his argument as he criticizes the shipment of food to overpopulated regions and asserts that coercion in population control is inevitable But he also proposes a free flow of information across boundaries to allow each state to help itself The time honored practice of pollute and move on is no longer acceptable Hardin tells us We now fill the globe and we have no where else to go In this powerful book one of our leading ecological philosophers points out the hard choices we must make and the solutions we have been afraid to consider
