Personal Assistance The Future Of Home Care:

Personal Assistance Robert Morris, Francis G. Caro, John E. Hansan, 1998 Because of wide ranging changes in demographics family structure and the financing and delivery of health services long term care has emerged as an important concern for health and public policy But long term care has lacked a conceptual foundation that public policy analysts and families can draw upon to shape its development Personal Assistance The Future of Home Care examines how community based long term care can develop constructively in an environment in which expanded public financing is an unlikely option The authors begin by discussing the history financing and delivery of long term care Chapters propose strategies for strengthening home and community based services expanding cash payments and more extensive self financing expanding the use of assistive technology and supported housing and increasing the use of volunteers Examining all aspects of current medical and home care services the authors propose a new model for home care that maximizes cost effective delivery of reliable services tailored to individual needs Unlike current health care programs their proposal builds on new insurance options to show how reallocating personal resources can make home care costs comparable to those of a nursing home but allow the individual greater personal freedom At a time when an aging population changing family structure and rising medical costs combine to create an ever greater need for long term care the conclusions and recommendations in this book are especially timely Personal Assistance will be of interest to health care professionals policy makers and all who are involved in caring for the nearly twenty million persons who currently live at home with disabilities Advancing Aging Policy as the 21st Century Begins Francis G Caro, Jill Norton, Robert Morris Deceased, 2023-04-28 By the end of the current decade many baby boomers will be senior citizens What policies should we enact to prepare for an aging society In the coming decade we have a unique opportunity to create new and better aging policies This collection of twenty essays by prominent educators researchers and policy analysts in the field of gerontology brings together innovative ideas from the United States Europe and Japan Instead of focusing on utopian dreams these exciting proposals are based on policy changes that may well be attainable in the next ten years The vital concerns addressed in Advancing Aging Policy as the 21st Century Begins include work and retirement issues the aging prison population long term care Latino elders transportation death and dying issues and the aging of the baby boom generation Advancing Aging Policy as the 21st Century Begins explores innovative policies and care arrangements around the world the importance of a strong economy that provides opportunities for seniors who seek them and support for those who need it the need for flexible retirement and employment policies for older adults the connections between family policy and aging policy the importance of improving training and compensation for workers in long term care the special needs of our diverse and rapidly growing population of older people the importance of focusing aging policy on people rather than on programs This forward looking book on policy and aging in the coming decade puts the experience and insight of leaders in the field from around the world in your hands Policymakers educators and students of gerontology will find it an invaluable resource The Future of Disability in America Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on Disability in America, 2007-09-24 The future of disability in America will depend on how well the U S prepares for and manages the demographic fiscal and technological developments that will unfold during the next two to three decades Building upon two prior studies from the Institute of Medicine the 1991 Institute of Medicine's report Disability in America and the 1997 report Enabling America The Future of Disability in America examines both progress and concerns about continuing barriers that limit the independence productivity and participation in community life of people with disabilities This book offers a comprehensive look at a wide range of issues including the prevalence of disability across the lifespan disability trends the role of assistive technology barriers posed by health care and other facilities with inaccessible buildings equipment and information formats the needs of young people moving from pediatric to adult health care and of adults experiencing premature aging and secondary health problems selected issues in health care financing e g risk adjusting payments to health plans coverage of assistive technology and the organizing and financing of disability related research The Future of Disability in America is an assessment of both principles and scientific evidence for disability policies and services This book's recommendations propose steps to eliminate barriers and strengthen the evidence base for future public and private actions to reduce the impact of disability on individuals families and society

Migrant Care Workers Karen Christensen, Ingrid Guldvik, 2016-04-22 In this beautifully argued book Karen Cristensen and Ingrid Guldvik provide a comparatively based insight to the historical context for public care work and show how migration policies general welfare and long term care policies including the cash for care schemes as well as cultural differences in values in the UK and Norway set the context for how migrant care workers can realise their individual life projects Through viewing migrants as individuals who actively construct their lives within the options and conditions they are given at any time they bring to the discussion an awareness of what might be called a new type of migrant one who is neither a victim of the divide between the global north and the global south nor someone leaving family behind but individuals using care work as a part of their own life project of potential self improvement Caring for our future Great Britain: Department of Health,2012-07-11 Care and support affects a large number of people eight out of 10 people aged 65 will need some care and support in their later years some people have impairments from birth or develop them during their working life some 5 million people care for a friend or relative some for more than 50 hours a week The current system does not offer enough support until a crisis point is reached the quality of care is variable and inconsistent and the growing and ageing population is only going to increase the pressure Consequently two core principles lie at the heart of this White Paper The first is that individuals communities and Government should do everything possible to prevent postpone and minimise people s need for formal care and support The system should be built around the promotion of people s independence and well being The second principle is that people should be in control of their own care and support with personal budgets and direct payments backed by clear comparable information and advice that will allow individuals and their carers to make the choices that are right for them This paper sets out the principles and approach with sections covering strengthening support within communities housing better information and advice assessment eligibility and portability for people who use care services carers support defining high quality care improving quality keeping people safe a better local care market workforce personalised care and support integration and joined up care Social Work in Health Care Surjit Singh Dhooper,2012 This book is a comprehensive look at the US healthcare industry from its historical development to its current status It pays particular attention to four domains of health care and the role that social workers play in these roles in the present day and in the future Public Policy and Aging ,2001 The Encyclopedia of Human Ecology Julia R. Miller,Richard M. Lerner,Lawrence B. Schiamberg,Pamela M. Anderson,2003-08-13 The first and only source to integrate the multiple disciplines and professions exploring the many ways people interact with the natural and designed environments in which we live Comprising more than 250 informative entries The Encyclopedia of Human Ecology examines the interdisciplinary and complex topic of human ecology Knowledge gathered from disciplines that study individuals and groups is blended with information about the environment from the fields of family science geography anthropology urban planning and environmental science At the same time professions intended to enhance individual and family life marriage and family therapy clinical psychology social work dietetic and other health professions are represented alongside those concerned with the preservation conservation and management of the environment and its resources How rampant are eating disorders among our youth Are AIDS educational programs effective What problems do adolescents transitioning into adulthood encounter Here four leading scholars in the field have assembled a team of top tier psychologists sociologists anthropologists and other experts to explore these and hundreds of other timely issues
