Reproductive Laws For The 1990s Contemporary Issues In Biomedicine Ethic:

Reproductive Laws for the 1990s Sherrill Cohen, Nadine Taub, 2013-12-01 The Project on Reproductive Laws for the 1990s began in 1985 with the realization that reports of scientific developments and new technologies were stimulating debates and discussions among bioethicists and policymakers and that women had little part in those discussions either as participants or as a group with interests to be considered With the help of a planning grant from the Rutgers University Institute for Research on Women the Women's Rights Litigation Clinic at Rutgers University Law School Newark held a planning meeting that June attended by approximately 20 theorists and activists in the area of reproductive rights Project purposes methods and general shape took form at the meeting Two goals have characterized the Project's work since then first to generate discussion debate and where possible consensus among those committed to reproductive autonomy and gender equality as to how best to respond to the questions raised by reported advances in reproductive and neonatal technology and new modes of reproduction and second to ensure that those shaping reproductive law and policy appreciate the ramifications of these developments for gender equality In meeting this twofold agenda the Project focused on six areas time limits on abortion prenatal screening fetus as patient reproductive hazards in the workplace interference with reproductive choice and alternative modes of reproduction The Project identified individuals to take responsibility for drafting model legislation and position papers in the six areas for the drafters see the Appendix National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1991

Clinical Ethics Barry Hoffmaster, Benjamin Freedman, Gwen Fraser, 2012-12-06 There is the world of ideas and the world of practice the French are often for suppressing the one and the English the other but neither is to be suppressed Matthew Arnold The Function of Criticism at the Present Time From its inception bioethics has confronted the need to reconcile theory and practice At first the confrontation was purely intellectual as writers on ethical theory within philosophy theology or other humanistic disciplines turned their attention to topics from the world of medical practice Recently the confrontation has grown more intense The appointment of clinical ethicists in hospitals and other health care settings is an accelerating trend in North America Concomitantly those institutions involved in training people in clinical ethics have added organized exposure to the world of practice in the form of placement requirements to the normal academic course load In common with other disciplines bioethics has begun to see clinical training as a condition of didactic theory and

Jecker, 2012-12-06 The Aging Self and the Aging Society Ethical issues involving the elderly have recently come to the fore This should come as no surprise Since the turn of the century there has been an eightfold increase in the number of Americans over the age of sixty five and almost a tripling of their proportion to the general population Those over the age of eighty five the fastest growing group in the country are twenty one more times as numerous as in 1900 Demographers expect this trend to accelerate into the twenty first century The aging of society casts into vivid relief a number of deep and troubling questions On the one hand as individuals we grapple with the immediate experience of aging and mortality and seek to find in it philosophical or ethical significance We also wonder what responsibilities we bear toward aging family members and what expectations of others our plans for old age can reasonably include On the other hand as a community we must decide What special role if any do older persons occupy in our society What constitutes a just distribution of medical resources between generations And How can institutions that serve the old foster imperiled values such as autonomy self respect and dignity Only recently have we begun to explore these themes yet already a rich and fruitful literature has grown up around them Cumulated Index Medicus, 1989 Law, Policy and Reproductive Autonomy Erin Nelson, 2014-07-18 Reproductive choices are at once the most private and intimate decisions we make in our lives and undeniably also among the most public Reproductive decision making takes place in a web of overlapping concerns political and ideological socioeconomic health and health care all of which engage the public and involve strongly held opinions and attitudes about appropriate conduct on the part of individuals and the state Law Policy and Reproductive Autonomy examines the idea of reproductive autonomy noting that in attempting to look closely at the contours of the concept we begin to see some uncertainty about its meaning and legal implications about how to understand reproductive autonomy and how to value it Both mainstream and feminist literature about autonomy contribute valuable insights into the meaning and implications of reproductive autonomy The developing feminist literature on relational autonomy provides a useful starting point for a contextualised conception of reproductive autonomy that creates the opportunity for meaningful exercise of reproductive choice With a contextualised approach to reproductive autonomy as a backdrop the book traces aspects of the regulation of reproduction in Canadian English US and Australian law and policy arguing that not all reproductive decisions necessarily demand the same level of deference in law and policy and making recommendations for reform An Introduction to

Health Care Ethics Michael R. Panicola, 2007 An ideal introduction to health care ethics for students who are unfamiliar with the subject area Author ethicists Michael Panicola David Belde John Paul Slosar and Mark Repenshek have crafted a text grounded in rich theological and philosophical traditions and presented in an engaging manner This text provides students with an understanding of the foundational aspects of health care ethics and leads them into a discussion of contemporary issues through the use of timely and challenging case studies A unique focus on discernment and decision making brings the material to life for students Ethics, Law and Society Jennifer Gunning, 2022-07-30 This key collection brings together a selection of papers commissioned and published by the Cardiff Centre for Ethics Law Society It incorporates contributions from a group of international experts along with a selection of short opinion pieces written in response to specific ethical issues The collection addresses issues arising in biomedical and medical ethics ranging from assisted reproductive technologies to the role of clinical ethics committees It examines broader societal issues with particular emphasis on sustainability and the environment and also focuses on issues of human rights in current global contexts The contributors collect responses to issues arising from high profile cases such as the legitimacy of war in Iraq to physician related suicide The volume will provide a valuable resource for practitioners and academics with an interest in ethics across a range of disciplines
