Agricultural Extension and Research Dennis Purcell, Jock R. Anderson, 1997-01-01 Environmentally Sustainable Development Studies and Monograph Series No 17 A 1995 publication from the World Bank Monitoring Environmental Progress A Report on Work in Progress generated great interest in the use of indicators to measure the pace and direction of change in environmentally sustainable development In particular the attempts to define what it means to be wealthy or poor by recognizing that a countrys wealth is the combination of various forms of capital produced natural and human resources led to new thinking on what constitutes wealth and how it might be measured The current document Expanding the Measure of Wealth Indicators of Environmentally Sustainable Development extends the earlier analysis by highlighting portfolio indicators for tracking a countrys progress toward sustainable development. These include new estimates of national wealth and genuine savings a detailed analysis of changes in subsidies that have environmental consequences and progress on the conceptual foundations of social capital The new estimates reinforce the importance of the natural resource base of all economies as well as the fundamental role of human resources including both human capital and the more difficult to define World Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology Abstracts ,1993 concept of social capital Occasional Paper -Department of Agricultural Economics, Cornell University New York State College of Agriculture. Department of Agricultural Economics, 1967 Rural Investment Climate in Indonesia Neil McCulloch, 2009 This book provides a comprehensive analysis of the constraints facing the development of rural non farm enterprises in Indonesia Recent years have seen a substantial effort by the Indonesian government to improve the investment climate To date much of this effort has focused on the constraints faced by businesses at the national level However if Indonesia is to be successful in creating jobs and reducing poverty across the archipelago this will require improving the investment climate for the 15 7 million micro and small enterprises that employ more than half of all the non farm workers in the country This book brings together leading Indonesian and international academics to consider seven key constraints that RNFEs face labour regulations and practices infrastructure competition and marketing knowledge transfer and technology access to credit and financial services local taxation and user charges and insecurity In each case the authors draw on the Indonesian Rural Investment Climate Survey a unique dataset of more than 2 500 RNFEs to identify the size and nature of the constraints the way in which they impact upon enterprise growth and the implications for policy In addition a key chapter estimates the strength of the linkage between agriculture and non agricultural activities in rural areas showing that agricultural revitalization is an essential complement to the development of the non farm economy Understanding the rural investment climate in both slow and fast growing economies has taken on new urgency in the wake of the world food crisis The rural non farm economy often provides half or more of the income of farm families and is especially important for food deficit rural households hard hit by rising

food prices The Indonesian Rural Investment Climate Assessment is the gold standard for how to achieve this understanding It is a delight to see it published and available to a wide audience C Peter Timmer Visiting Professor Program on Food Security and Environment Stanford University Non Resident Fellow Center for Global Development Global Agriculture and the American Farmer Kimberly Ann Elliott, 2017-06-27 The United States is one of the world's largest producers and exporters of a range of agricultural commodities and the largest provider of foreign assistance so U S policies have big effects on global food security and other global public goods linked to agriculture On the positive side of the ledger President Obama created the Feed the Future aid initiative to promote agricultural development in poorer countries as a tool to achieve the global goals of ending hunger and extreme poverty which are mostly rural But that generosity is undercut by U S support for farmers that distorts global markets and ignores negative spillovers for the rest of the world In this book Elliott focuses on three policy areas that are particularly damaging for developing countries traditional agricultural subsidy and trade policies that support the incomes of American farmers at the expense of farmers elsewhere the biofuels mandate which in its current form increases market volatility while doing little if anything to mitigate climate change and weak regulation of antibiotic use in livestock which contributes to the global spread of drug resistant super bugs While noting that broad reforms are needed to fix these problems Elliott also identifies practical steps that U S policymakers could take in the relatively short run to improve farm policies for American taxpayers and consumers as well as for the poor and vulnerable in developing countries Bibliography of Agriculture ,1965 The Bargain Sector Kate Meagher, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2001 Does the non farm sector offer new hope for rural Africa In the face of economic crisis and restructuring across Africa small scale enterprise has come to play a central role in rural livelihood and accumulation strategies This apparent dynamism has attracted favourable attention from development thinkers and policy makers who have identified non farm enterprise as a new low cost agent of rural development The research in this book challenges the growing consensus on the developmental potential of the non farm sector On the basis of recent fieldwork the author argues that the prospects for non farm led growth have been seriously undermined by the crippling pressures of structural adjustment agricultural instability and rural as well as interregional inequality Detailed village case studies from the populous and highly commercialized grain surplus region of the Nigerian savanna leads the reader to investigate the link between local economic and social realities and the wider regional national and global processes that form the development of the non farm sector in Africa Far from offering a bargain solution the author demonstrates that significant investment in agriculture and entrepreneurial development will be needed to create an enabling environment for non farm growth
