A Handbook of Research Methods for Clinical and Health Psychology Jeremy Miles, Paul Gilbert, 2005 Though psychology as a discipline has grown enormously in popularity in recent years compulsory courses in research methods and statistics are seldom embarked upon with any great enthusiasm within the undergraduate and postgraduate communities Many postgraduate and PhD students start their research ill equipped to design effective experiments and to properly analyse their results This lack of knowledge also limits their ability to critically assess and evaluate research done by others This book is a practical guide to carrying out research in health psychology and clinical psychology It bridges the gap between undergraduate and postgraduate study As well as describing the various techniques and methods available to students it provides them with a proper understanding of what a specific technique does going beyond the introductory descriptions typical of most undergraduate methods books The book describes both quantitative and qualitative approaches to data collection providing valuable advice on methods ranging from psychometric testing to discourse analysis For both undergraduate and postgraduate students the book will be essential in making them aware of the full range of techniques available helping them to design scientifically rigorous experiments and effectively analyse their results

The Ethic of Care: A Moral Compass for Canadian Nursing Practice (Revised Edition) Kathleen Stephany, 2020-02-04 There is an increased use of technology and informatics heavier workloads and constant changes in the way in which disease processes are managed Yet when compared with other health professionals nurses still spend a great deal of time in direct contact with patients and clients They stay at the bedside listen to their stories give comfort and advocate The Ethic of Care A Moral Compass for Canadian Nursing Practice is unique from other nursing ethics textbooks in several key ways The book adds a heightened dimension to the already rich knowledge in the field of applied nursing ethics and the ethic of care. The author argues that the ethic of care or the moral imperative to act justly be the guiding compass for everything that nurses do. It is with passion and conviction that nurses are encouraged to embody the ethic of care as a lived virtue. Nurses are also inspired to be the leaders of tomorrow by working toward achieving accountability and sustainability in the Canadian publicly funded health care system and by effectively addressing social inequities. At the end of each chapter the author conveys real life case studies as derived from her experiences as a critical care nurse, psychiatric nurse, clinician and former Coroner. These vignettes bring the subject to life and serve as a means for applying newly acquired ethical knowledge. The aim of this book is to inspire nurses to be as skillful and compassionate as they can be so that they will leave every encounter with their clients better than when they first arrived. The book attempts to inspire nurses to be ethical leaders for social change at the patient, client, community and global level. This revised edition of the book includes additional information about trauma informed care to combat systemic racism and improve the health outcomes for Indigenous people. Ethics, gender and sexual orientation is dealt with in an inclusive and sensitive way and a new Code of Conduct has been included. An

Surviving Clinical Psychology James Randall, 2019-12-06. This vital new book navigates the personal, professional and political selves on the journey to training in clinical psychology. Readers will be able to explore a range of ways to enrich their practice through a focus on identities and differences, relationships and power within organisations, supervisory contexts, therapeutic conventions and community approaches. This book includes a rich exploration of how we make sense of personal experiences as practitioners, including chapters on self-formulation, personal therapy and using services. Through critical discussion, practice examples, shared accounts and exercises, individuals are invited to reflect on a range of topical issues in clinical psychology. Voices often marginalised within the profession write side by side with those more established in the field, offering a unique perspective on the issues faced in navigating clinical training and the profession more broadly. In coming together, the authors of this book explore what clinical psychology can become. Surviving Clinical Psychology invites those

Problematic Research Practices and Inertia in Scientific Psychology James Lamiell, Kathleen Slaney, 2020-11-04 This volume explores the abiding intellectual inertia in scientific psychology in relation to the discipline's engagement with problematic beliefs and assumptions underlying mainstream research practices despite repeated critical analyses which reveal the weaknesses and in some cases complete inappropriateness of these methods Such paradigmatic inertia is especially troublesome for a scholarly discipline claiming status as a science The book offers penetrating analyses of many albeit not all of the most important areas where mainstream practices require either compelling justifications for their continuation or adjustments possibly including abandonment toward more apposite alternatives Specific areas of concern addressed in this book include the systemic misinterpretation of statistical knowledge the prevalence of a conception of measurement at odds with yet purporting to mimic the natural sciences the continuing widespread reliance on null hypothesis testing and the continuing resistance within psychology to the explicit incorporation of qualitative methods into its methodological toolbox Broader level chapters examine mainstream psychology's systemic disregard for critical analysis of its tenets and the epistemic and ethical problems this has created This is a vital and engaging resource for researchers across psychology and those in the wider behavioural and social sciences who have an interest in or who use psychological research methods
