This Handbook brings together the voices of a range of contributors interested in the many varied experiences of women in criminal justice systems and who are seeking to challenge the status quo. Although there is increasing literature and research on gender and certain aspects of the criminal justice system often Western focused there is a significant gap in the form of a Handbook that brings together these important gendered conversations. This essential book explores research and theory on how women are perceived, handled and experience criminal justice within and across different jurisdictions with particular consideration of gendered and disparate treatment of women as law breakers. There is also consideration of women's experiences through an intersectional lens including race and class as well as feminist scholarship and activism. The Handbook contains 47 unique chapters with nine overarching themes: Lessons from history and theory; Routes into the criminal justice system; Intersectionality; Sentencing and the courts and community punishments; Specific offences; Incarcerated women's experiences; Mothers and families; Rehabilitation and reintegration; Practitioner relationships; and each theme includes contributions from different countries as well as the experiences of contributors from different stages in their own journey. International and interdisciplinary in scope, this Handbook is essential reading for scholars and students of criminology, sociology, social policy, social work and law. It will also be of interest to practitioners such as social workers, probation officers, prison officers and policy makers.

Intergenerational Relations Albert, Isabelle, Ferring, Dieter, 2013-06-27. Population ageing today affects most industrialised countries and it will have an impact on many facets of the social system. Intergenerational relationships will play a key role in dealing with the demographical and societal change. This book provides innovative views in the multidisciplinary research field of intergenerational family relations in society with a focus on Europe. Different but complementary perspectives are integrated in one volume bringing together international scholars from sociology, psychology and economics. The book's chapters are grouped into three thematic sections which cover conceptual issues, multigenerational and cross cultural perspectives as well as applied issues. Implications for research, policy and practice are addressed and suggestions for future directions are discussed. By raising recent discussions on controversial issues, this book will stimulate the current discourse at various levels. Intergenerational relations in society and family will be equally interesting for researchers, advanced level students and stakeholders in the fields of social policy, population ageing.

Routledge Handbook of the Tourist Experience Richard

Sharpley, 2021-11-17 Routledge Handbook of the Tourist Experience offers a comprehensive synthesis of contemporary research on the tourist experience. It draws together multidisciplinary perspectives from leading tourism scholars to explore emergent tourist behaviours and motivations. This handbook provides up to date critical discussions of established and emergent themes and issues related to the tourist experience from a primarily socio cultural perspective. It opens with a detailed introduction which lays down the framework used to examine the dynamic parameters of the tourist experience. Organised into five thematic sections, chapters seek to build and enhance knowledge and understanding of the significance and meaning of diverse elements of the tourist experience. Section 1 conceptualises and understands the tourist experience through an exploration of conventional themes such as tourism as authentic and spiritual experience as well as emerging themes such as tourism as an embodied experience. Section 2 investigates the new developing tourist demands and motivations and a growing interest in the travel career. Section 3 considers the significance, motives, practices and experiences of different types of tourists and their roles such as the tourist as photographer. Section 4 discusses the relevance of place to the tourist experience by exploring the relationship between tourism and place. The last section, Section 5, scrutinises the role of the tourist in creating their experiences through themes such as transformations in the tourist role from passive receiver of experiences to co creator of experiences and external mediators in creating tourist experiences. This handbook is the first to fill a notable gap in the tourism literature and collate within a single volume critical insights into the diverse elements of the tourist experience today. It will be of key interest to academics and students across the fields of tourism, hospitality, management, geography, marketing and consumer behaviour.

Intersectional Feminist Research

Methodologies Jennifer Cooke, Line Nyhagen, 2024-08-14 Intersectional Feminist Research Methodologies: Applications in the Social Sciences and Humanities is a multi disciplinary volume in which emerging and established scholars present new feminist research methods and re evaluate existing approaches. This collection examines how both new and established feminist methods address intersecting identities and structures of inequality including gender, race, sexuality and class. Each chapter provides a case study of a methodology or methodologies that have been adopted, developed or adapted within the author's field including sociology, criminology, political science, history, literature and performance studies. The volume articulates the importance of knowledge production that arises from the situated and lived experiences of individuals, groups and communities. It discusses how we survive as feminists in today's neoliberal universities and includes research on trans and nonbinary people, Indonesian history and the MeToo movement, world literature from the Philippines, memory work and crime on the London transport network. The contributors engage with intersectionality in different ways but collectively they demonstrate the pervasiveness of intersectional thinking and practice in feminist scholarship today. Intersectional Feminist Research Methodologies will be of value to both undergraduate and graduate students conducting research as well as doctoral researchers and more established feminist researchers Facing Hazards and Disasters National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Committee on Disaster Research in the Social Sciences: Future Challenges and Opportunities, 2006-09-10 Social science research conducted since the late 1970s has contributed greatly to society's ability to mitigate and adapt to natural technological and willful disasters. However, as evidenced by Hurricane Katrina, the Indian Ocean tsunami, the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks on the United States, and other recent events, hazards and disaster research and its application could be improved greatly. In particular, more studies should be pursued that compare how the characteristics of different types of events, including predictability, forewarning, magnitude, and duration of impact, affect societal vulnerability and response. This book includes more than thirty recommendations for the hazards and disaster community.

Designing and Teaching Undergraduate Capstone Courses

Robert C. Hauhart, Jon E. Grahe, 2014-12-02 Enrich your students and the institution with a high impact practice Designing and Teaching Undergraduate Capstone Courses is a practical research backed guide to creating a course that is valuable for both the student and the school. The book covers the design administration and teaching of capstone courses throughout the undergraduate curriculum guiding departments seeking to add a capstone course and allowing those who have one to compare it to others in the discipline. The ideas presented in the book are supported by regional and national surveys that help the reader understand what is common, what is exceptional, what works and what doesn't within capstone courses. The authors also provide additional information specific to different departments across the curriculum including STEM, social sciences, humanities, fine arts, education and professional programs. Identified as a high impact practice by the National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE) and the Association of American Colleges and Universities LEAP initiative, capstone courses culminate a student's final college years in a project that integrates and applies what they've learned. The project takes the form of a research paper, a performance, a portfolio or an exhibit and is intended to showcase the student's very best work as a graduating senior. This book is a guide to creating for your school or department a capstone course that ties together undergraduate learning in a way that enriches the student and adds value to the college experience. Understand what makes capstone courses valuable for graduating students. Discover the factors that make a capstone course effective and compare existing programs both within academic disciplines and across institutions. Learn administrative and pedagogical techniques that increase the course's success. Examine discipline specific considerations for design administration and instruction. Capstones are generally offered in departmental programs but are becoming increasingly common in general education as well. Faculty and administrators looking to add a capstone course or revive an existing one need to understand what constitutes an effective program. Designing and Teaching Undergraduate Capstone Courses provides an easily digested summary of existing research and offers expert guidance on making your capstone course successful.

A Long View of Undergraduate Research Kristine Johnson, J. Michael Rifenburg, 2024-11-08 Drawing from in depth interviews with alumni across the disciplines this book explores the benefits of undergraduate research: meaningful intellectual engagement, a sense of belonging in the campus community and vocational clarity and career success after college. What matters to alumni about their research experience is often not what is represented in scholarship. The compelling stories featured in this text describe intellectual and emotional uncertainty and excitement, deeply personal mentoring relationships and the powerful ways in which undergraduate research shapes and directs career paths. The book brings a novel perspective that begins during the research experience and extends into the years after college offering practical insight into program design, mentoring and research to career practices that are flexible enough to be implemented in the natural sciences, social sciences, arts and humanities.
