

The background of the slide is a classical-style painting of a rural landscape. In the foreground, a river flows from the bottom left towards the center. Several figures are depicted along the riverbank: some are washing clothes or laundry, while others are standing or sitting. The middle ground shows a wide, flat field with patches of green and brown, possibly representing different crops or land use. In the background, there are rolling hills and a small cluster of buildings, including a prominent red-roofed structure. The overall color palette is warm, with earthy tones of brown, tan, and muted greens.

popular representations of the international political world play. As critical geopolitics has become a more established part of political geography it has attracted ever more critique from feminists for its apparent blindness to the embodied effects of geopolitical praxis and from those who have been uncomfortable about its textual focus while others have challenged critical geopolitics to address alternative resistant forms of geopolitical practice. Again critical geopolitics has been reworked to incorporate these challenges and the latest iterations have encompassed normative agendas, non-representational theory, emotional geographies and affect. It is against the vibrant backdrop of this intellectual development of critical geopolitics as a subdiscipline that this Companion is set. Bringing together leading researchers associated with the different forms of critical geopolitics, this volume produces an overview of its achievements, limitations and areas of new and potential future development. The Companion is designed to serve as a key resource for an interdisciplinary group of scholars and practitioners interested in the spatiality of politics.

Feminist Geopolitics Deborah P. Dixon, Sallie A. Marston, 2016-09-17 Building on a trans disciplinary feminist project that foregrounds the bodies of those at the sharp end of various forms of international activity such as immigration, development and warfare, the chapters included in this book cover a variety of sites, concerns and hopes. These range from the fraught geopolitics of marriage and birth in Ladakh, India to the fate of detained migrant children in the U.S. and from the human rights abuses of women and children in Uzbekistan to the body politics of aid workers in Afghanistan. The collective aim is to expose the force relations that operate through and upon those bodies such that particular subjectivities are enhanced, constrained and put to work and particular corporealities are violated, exploited and often abandoned. Oriented around issues of security, population, territory and nationalism, these chapters expose the proliferating bodies of geopolitics not simply as the bearers of socially demarcated borders and boundaries but as vulnerable corporealities seeking to negotiate and transform the geopolitics they both animate and inhabit. This book was originally published as a special issue of Gender, Place and Culture: A Journal of Feminist Geography.

Political Culture and the Making of Modern Nation-States Edward Weisband, Courtney I. P. Thomas, 2015-11-17 This book focuses on transformations of political culture from times past to future present. It defines the meaning of political culture and explores the cultural values and institutions of kinship, communities and dynastic intermediaries including chiefdoms and early states. It systematically examines the rise and gradual universalization of modern sovereign nation states. Contemporary debates concerning nationality, nationalism, citizenship and hyphenated identities are engaged. The authors recount the making of political culture in the American nation state and look at the processes of internal colonialism in the American experience, examining how major ethnic, sectarian, racial and other distinctions arose and congealed into social and cultural categories. The book concludes with a study of the Holocaust, genocide, crimes against humanity and the political cultures of violation in post-colonial Rwanda and in racialized ethno-political conflicts in various parts of the world. Struggles over legitimacy in nation building and state building are at the heart of this new take on the important role of political culture.

Family-making Françoise Baylis, Carolyn McLeod, 2014 This volume explores the ethics of making or expanding families through adoption or technologically assisted reproduction For many people these methods are separate and distinct they can choose either adoption or assisted reproduction But for others these options blend together For example in some jurisdictions the path of assisted reproduction for same sex couples is complicated by the need for the partner who is not genetically related to the resulting child to adopt this child if she wants to become the child's legal parent The essays in this volume critically examine moral choices to pursue adoption assisted reproduction or both and highlight the social norms that can distort decision making Among these norms are those that favour people having biologically related children bionormativity or that privilege a traditional understanding of family as a heterosexual unit with one or more children where both parents are the genetic biological legal and social parents of these children As a whole the book looks at how adoption and assisted reproduction are morally distinct from one another but also emphasizes how the two are morally similar Choosing one the other or both of these approaches to family making can be complex in some respects but ought to be simple in others provided that one's main goal is to become a parent

The Maritime Political Boundaries of the World Victor Prescott, Clive Schofield, 2005-01-01 This book addresses the often vexed question of national maritime claims and the delimitation of international maritime boundaries The number of undelimited international maritime boundaries is much larger than the number of agreed lines The two boundaries that define the marine domain of coastal states are examined First the baselines along the coast may consist of low water lines or straight lines or a combination of both When straight lines are used they define the seaward limit of the state's internal waters Second the outer limits of claims to territorial seas contiguous zones and exclusive economic zones are measured from the baselines All states will have to delimit at least one international boundary with a neighbouring state whether adjacent or opposite In confined seas no state can claim the full entitlement and must negotiate international boundaries with all neighbours Many states bordering oceans can claim the full entitlement seawards although they will need to delimit national boundaries with adjacent neighbours
