Magnusson, 2013-05-09 Public discussion of euthanasia and assisted suicide is growing In Australia as elsewhere the debate is difficult contentious and confronting and hampered by the secrecy that necessarily surrounds illegal practice Most people simply have no way of knowing how and how often medically assisted death actually occurs Roger Magnusson presents for the first time detailed first hand accounts by doctors nurses therapists and other health professionals who have been participants in assisted death All have been intimately involved in caring for people with AIDS both in Australia and in California He places these ambivalent self incriminating accounts within the broader context of the right to die debate and the challenges of palliative care The frankness of the health workers and the richness of their collected evidence set this book apart From within a culture of deception they speak knowingly and movingly of the merciful release of a peaceful death while acknowledging the reality of botched attempts euthanasia without consent precipitative euthanasia lack of accountability and professional distance and many other disturbing issues Angels of Death provides a window into the euthanasia underground a secret part of medicine and nursing that few professionals will publicly acknowledge It brings a sense of urgency and precision to public debate and equips us all to think more independently about these crucial issues

Global Health and Geographical Imaginaries Clare

Herrick,David Reubi,2017-03-16 To date geography has not yet carved out a disciplinary niche within the diffuse domain that constitutes global health However the compulsion to do and understand global health emerges largely from contexts that geography has long engaged with urbanisation globalisation political economy risk vulnerability lifestyles geopolitics culture governance development and the environment Moreover global health brings with it an innate powerful and politicising spatial logic that is only now starting to emerge as an object of enquiry This book aims to draw attention to and showcase the wealth of existing and emergent geographical contributions to what has recently been termed critical global health studies Geographical perspectives this collection argues are essential to bringing new and critical perspectives to bear on the inherent complexities and interconnectedness of global health problems and purported solutions Thus rather than rehearsing the frequent critique that global health is more a set of problems than a coherent disciplinary approach to ameliorating the health of all and redressing global bio inequalities this collection seeks to explore what these problems might represent and the geographical imaginaries inherent in their constitution This unique volume of geographical writings on global health not only deepens social scientific engagements with health itself but in so doing brings forth a series of new conceptual methodological and empirical contributions to social scientific multidisciplinary scholarship

The Role of Emotions in Preventative Health Communication Jessica Gall Myrick,2015-09-17 Health related media permeate our modern experience from using an online search engine to reading a pamphlet about vaccinations at the doctor s office or watching a television news report on the dangers of sitting too much This book makes the argument that if prevention focused health messages are to motivate behavior change they must tug at the heartstrings and researchers need to understand more precisely how different emotional reactions influence health message effects In making this case this book takes a quantitative social science based approach to understanding the role of emotions in shaping individual level effects to preventative health messages disseminated through mass media channels The book focuses on how discrete emotions evoked by preventative health media messages influence how audiences respond to those messages Are they persuaded to change their behavior Will they seek more information Will they share information with others Will they support prevention focused policies While a rich literature exists on the effects of health related fear appeals on audiences researchers have yet to fully explore the role that other discrete emotions play in health communication processes and outcomes This book fills that gap by providing an overview of the role of nine different emotions both positive and negative in various prevention focused health communication settings It also introduces readers to commonly employed emotional theories and concepts and relates them to literature on prevention focused health and policy communication In addition to reviewing and synthesizing the literature this book offers new directions to researchers hoping to improve the effectiveness of prevention focused health messages

The Promiscuity of Network Culture Robert Payne, 2014-12-05 Liking sharing friending going viral what would it mean to recognize these current modes of media interaction as promiscuous In a contemporary network culture characterized by a proliferation of new forms of intimate mediated sociality this book argues that promiscuity is a new standard of user engagement Intimate relations among media users and between users and their media are increasingly structured by an entrepreneurial logic and put to work for the economic interests of media corporations But these multiple intimacies can also be understood as technologies of promiscuous desire serving both to liberalize mediated social connection and to contain it within normative frames of value Payne brings crucial questions of gender sexuality intimacy and attention back into conversation with recent thinking on network culture and social media identifying the queer undercurrents of these current media dynamics eHealth Timothy M.
