New Advances in Causation, Agency and Moral Responsibility Fabio Bacchini, Stefano Caputo, 2015-01-12 This volume brings together a number of previously unpublished essays that will advance the reader's philosophical understanding of specific aspects of causation agency and moral responsibility These are deeply intertwined notions and a large proportion of the volume is taken up by papers that shed light on their mutual connections or defend certain claims concerning them The volume investigates several important questions including Can causation be perceived If it can can it be perceived in any way other than visually Can the interventionist theory developed by James Woodward offer an adequate account of causation Is a causal relation a necessary condition for moral responsibility Can there be a responsibility difference without a causal difference Are causal ascriptions based on the more primitive language game of blame ascriptions What can be learnt from the analogy between causal interference and unbreakable processes on one side and motivational interferences and unbreakable resolutions on the other side How can humans be routinely considered responsible for non deliberated omissions Should the connection between moral responsibility and the epistemic conditions usually required for moral responsibility to be obtained be weakened What is the connection between awareness of one's doing and intentional action

Challenges to Mean-Based Analysis in Psychology: The Contrast Between Individual People and General Science Craig P. Spielman, Marek McGann, 2016-11-29 In a recent paper we Spielman McGann 2013 argued that psychology's reliance on data analysis methods that are based on group averages has resulted in a science of group phenomena that may be misleading about the nature of and reasons for individual behaviour The paper highlighted a tension between a science in search of general laws on the one hand and the individual variable and diverse nature of human behaviour on the other This Research Topic explored this concern about the pitfalls of using the mean for the basis of psychological science The problem is universal in its applicability to psychology and opinion papers reviews and original empirical research from all areas of the discipline were invited A total of 16 authors contributed 9 articles to the Topic The range of issues that the authors viewed through the lens provided is impressive The papers in this collection include a range of perspectives that provide concrete examples of how to approach research design data collection and analysis differently No one contribution will provide a solution to our multifarious challenges but nor should it Our subject matter is complex and subtle our investigations and methodological techniques will need to be equally so Scribner's Monthly, an Illustrated Magazine for the People ,1904
