Natural History Of The British Islands:

The British Islands: Their Physical Geography and Natural History Thomas Milner (M.A.), 1875 A Sketch of the Natural History (vertebrates) of the British Islands Frederick George Aflalo, 1898 Islands and the British Empire in the Age of Sail Douglas Hamilton, John McAleer, 2021 Islands are not just geographical units or physical facts their importance and significance arise from the human activities associated with them The maritime routes of sailing ships the victualling requirements of their sailors and the strategic demands of seaborne empires in the age of sail as well as their intrinsic value as sources of rare commodities meant that islands across the globe played prominent parts in imperial consolidation and expansion This volume examines the various ways in which islands and groups of islands contributed to the establishment extension and maintenance of the British Empire in the age of sail Thematically related chapters explore the geographical topographical economic and social diversity of the islands that comprised a large component of the British Empire in an era of rapid and significant expansion Although many of these islands were isolated rocky outcrops they acted as crucial nodal points providing critical assistance for ships and men embarked on the long distance voyages that characterised British overseas activities in the period Intercontinental maritime trade colonial settlement and scientific exploration and experimentation would have been impossible without these oceanic islands They also acted as sites of strategic competition contestation and conflict for rival European powers keen to outstrip each other in developing and maintaining overseas markets plantations and settlements The importance of islands outstripped their physical size the populations they sustained or their individual economic contribution to the imperial balance sheet Standing at the centre of maritime routes of global connectivity islands offer historians of the British Empire fresh perspectives on the intercontinental communication commercial connections and territorial expansion that characterised that empire

It is forty years since Burgeff published in 1926 the first comprehensive catalogue of the genus Zygaena Fabricius forming part 33 of the Lepidopterorum Catalogus Following the pattern and general layout of Burgeff's work we have attempted to produce a catalogue in which all names in the genus Zygaena are included with references to the literature where these names were originally published Additional references are included when these refer to illustrations of a species subspecies or form or to a taxonomic change e g a change in status References to misidentifications are generally omitted unless a new species has been described at a later date In compiling this work we have adhered to the International Code of Zoological Nomenclature as adopted by the XV International Congress of Zoology However although the International Commission on Zoological Nomenclature recognises the necessity of names of lower rank than subspecies they do not at present deal with such names The provisions of the Code do not apply to them and therefore such names have no nomenclatural status Every subspecies is given equal status in the catalogue although their relative value is not always the same Certain authors have very often separated sub species on minute differences and a subsequent examination of further material taken over a number of years has shown that the differences are not always constant In many cases however we have been unable to verify the status of each subspecies
